Unit formed to revise Raupp Center plans

Joseph Settanni, Buffalo Grove park board president, has appointed a special committee to consider revising plans for the Raupp Memorial Museum and Community Center.

Formation of the committee, to be chaired by Park Comr. Raymond Ledinsky, was announced at the Thursday meeting of the park board.

Park officials consider such changes as a reduction in the size of the community center and cutbacks in park programs. The changes are in response to several objections raised by residents in the vicinity of the planned center.

The complaints include traffic congestion on Dunham Lane, the access route to the complex. and hazards to children that some residents say will result from cars going to and from the center.

Parking for only six cars is planned due to lack of space around the complex. This also has caused residents to object because motorists would be forced to park their cars along Dunham.

ALSO TO BE WEIGHED is the possible installation of a 300-foot pull-in lane for autos, which is viewed by park officials as a means of relieving the feared traffic congestion.

Several residents have suggested reducing the size of the center and program cutbacks as a way to lessen that problem.

Several residents were present at the park board meeting and restated their objections.

The park district plans to construct the community center for preschool programs and civic group meetings. A drop-in teen center also is planned.

The old Levitt and Co. sales office is being moved to the site and is slated for use as a historical museum.

THE PROJECT IS being financed as part of a $1.25-million bond issue dating back to 1971 that was intended to pay for several major park projects.

One resident also suggested a citizens' advisory committee be formed to assist park commissioners in planning changes on their proposals.

Settanni said such a committee was a good idea, as long as the group's opinions were not binding on park officials.

RESIDENTS ALSO objected Thursday to plans for landscaping. Spending large amounts of money on landscaping would be a "waste of taxpayers' money," Settanni said.

Landscaping will be done as funds become available, he said. There are no "instant parks," he said.

The special committee will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday in the park district center, 150 Raupp Blvd., to discuss the proposed changes, and will report to park officials at a later date.

Firm sues village for building permits

A Chicago development firm is suing the Village of Buffalo Grove to obtain building permits so it can proceed with a development turned down by village officials earlier this year.

The suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court on behalf of Dominion Development Corp. seeks a court order that would force Buffalo Grove to issue building permits on a Pizza Hut and chicken restaurant project.

An attorney for Dominion could not be reached for details on the matter Thursday. Spokesmen for the firm also were unavailable.

THE VILLAGE board voted down a Dominion request last July for permission to build the structures on the site, Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads. The board decision upheld a unanimous plan commission rejection of the proposal more than a year earlier.

Officials of the firm in July threatened to take the matter to court if the village refused to overturn the plan commission decision.

Originally, Dominion sought and received village authorization to construct a service station on part of the property and a commercial office building on the remainder.

The section slated for the service station later was sold, however, to Marathon Oil Co. and the firm's plans were changed to include building of a Pizza Hut.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS disapproved, however, saying the project did not conform to the original site plan and such a restaurant was unsuitable for the property.

Several trustees and plan commissioners also said such use would create traffic problems, congestion and was architecturally unattractive.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said officials were "satisfied" with Dominion's original plans. "We had gone into an agreement that the land would be developed in a certain manner and then they came in with a Pizza Hut that didn't conform."

He said eventual voting down of plans by both village agencies was done "rightfully so."

IN COMMENTING on the suit, Armstrong said Dominion "had the right to develop as had been mutually agreed but they didn't conform to what we had agreed and now they're trying to force it down our throats and we're not going to swallow it."

Armstrong said the village has "every intention" of fighting the suit in court.

Village Atty. Richard Raysa said Thursday he would have no comment because he had not had a chance to examing details of the complaint.

He said, however, that he would file an answer to the request for court order and a hearing date would probably be set after that.

Decoy helps catch assault suspect

A 25-year-old Palatine woman posed as a decoy to help Palatine police catpure an assault suspect.

Clayton D. Pittenger, 17, of Palatine, was charged with aggravated battery and resisting arrest when he attacked the woman Tuesday night, police said.

The woman agreed to assist police in setting a trap after a 22-year-old Palatine woman was attacked near Paddock School on Washington Court while walking home Dec. 3. Police have not released the name of either woman.

In both attacks, the women were knocked down and grabbed about the chest, police said. Neither woman was injured.

Pettinger was released Wednesday on $2,500 bond and is to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court Dec. 26. Police would not release the youth's address at the request of his parents.

The arrest was the second Palatine police have made in two months with the use of a decoy.

A 27-year-old Mount Prospect woman who was attacked in downtown Palatine in October agreed to serve as a decoy and helped police capture Gary Bahn, 18, 106 S. Hale St., Palatine.

Bahn was charged with three counts of battery, stemming from the two incidents along with the attack of a 19-year-old Palatine woman Sept. 28 in a municipal parking lot, police said.

Permanent signals slated at intersection

Permanent traffic signals are to be activated Tuesday at the intersection of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, said Edwin Gillen, an engineer for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

Previously, a temporary traffic signal was located at the intersection after the completion of road repairs.

Gillen said permanent signals recently were installed along Dundee Road at Buffalo Grove and Schoenbeck roads.

Anyone want a pup?

German shepherd collies dropped in 8 yards; but you'd better hurry—only 3 cuties left

by RICH HONACK

When the fog lifted over Buffalo Grove early Thursday afternoon strange whimpers were heard coming from eight front yards — the cries came from eight abandoned puppies.

It was around then that police received the first of eight inquiries as to anyone losing a puppy. It was after the third call, from a Buffalo Grove police watch commander, that they realized something was amiss. Within the next 45 minutes the police received four more calls and later in the day another about the same subject: "I've got a 4- to 6-week-old puppy, has one been reported missing?"

Buffalo Grove Patrolman Kerry Kenny drew the assignment to round up the abandoned pups which were dropped in every section of the village. Kenny said whoever abandoned the pups, which are believed to be part collie and part shepherd, apparently circled the village leaving at least one in each section of town.

"We got seven of them and the eighth is being kept by a lady who called to say she found it and wants to keep it at least until Friday," said Kenny. Two other residents also said they would keep their unexpected visitors.

ONE OF THE two, police Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki, said the dog will be welcomed by his family. "The mail lady came to the door holding the pup. She asked if we lost it and I said 'No', but we'd keep it while she checked the rest of the block. I called the police department and found out it was part of a bigger situation. We decided to keep the pup," said Gozdecki.

Gozdecki, his wife and two children named the puppy "Kringle" in honor of the coming holiday season.

Carolyn Karabotsos, 700 Indian Spring Ln., found her puppy while she was checking the mail. "He was crying and walked toward me. I had to bring it in. I called police because I thought it may have been someone's Christmas present, and a lady told me I was the seventh caller. I'll keep the dog as long as I can," she said.

AS FOR THE remaining five pups, the finders did not want to be the keepers.

But the fever of having a new puppy around for an afternoon spread to two police radio operators, who took two of the remaining five pups home for Christmas.

As for the other three, they spent the night in the police station with hopes of going the way of the rest of the litter today. Kenny said if no one claims the puppies today they will be taken to Kay's Animal Shelter in Arlington Heights.

Anyone wishing to have one of the remaining pups can do so by stopping by the Buffalo Grove police station, 50 Raupp Blvd. But please, if you take it, keep it.

Crane to vote no on Rockefeller confirmation

by BOB LAHEY

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, said Thursday he will vote against the confirmation of former New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller as Vice President of the U.S., despite his expectation that Rockefeller will be confirmed by a wide margin.

Crane cited "the man's horrendous career as governor of New York" as the principal reason for his opposition.

Crane, one of the principal conservative Republican survivors of the Democrats' November election landslide, said he expected no more than 25 GOP votes against Rockefeller in the House and perhaps twice that many among Democrats. There are 435 members in the House.

THE SENATE Tuesday confirmed the Rockefeller nomination by a vote of 90 to 7, with three Republicans, including former presidential candidate Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., dissenting.

Crane said the budget of New York state rose from $1.9 billion to $9 billion during Rockefeller's nearly 20-year reign as governor.

He cited "any number of budget proposals" by Rockefeller that he said led to continually increasing taxes in New York. "Business took flight from New York," said Crane. "The state lost more than 400,000 jobs due to his taxing policies."

"If he were to administer the United States the way he ran New York, we would have a nation in chaos," Crane added.

HE SAID THAT Congress, in voting to confirm Rockefeller as Vice Presiddnt "is very possibly voting for the next President."

Crane said he had decided to vote against Rockefeller's confirmation before disclosures of the New York governor's generous financial gifts and "loans" to political associates and his financial backing of a book detrimental to a Democratic opponent, Arthur Goldberg.

Those factors only added to his opposition to Rockefeller's appointment, Crane said.

Meyer expected to seek 3rd term

Mayor Roland J. Meyer is expected to announce Tuesday night he will seek a third term as head of city government in Rolling Meadows. Meyer apparently intends to head a slate of candidates that will include several city council incumbents. Two city council members are considering running against Meyer.

Sewer rate hike asked

Citizens Utilities Co. has asked the Illinois Commerce Commission for permission to raise sewer rates 36.5 per cent for the 3,000 households it serves in the Mount Prospect-Des Plaines area. The Addison firm is seeking a boost in rates from $6 a month to $8.18. The ICC granted the firm a $3 monthly increase in sewer rates, along with a raise in water rates, in August. Mount Prospect officials say they'll help foot the legal bill for residents of the northeast section of the village to fight the petition. "I can't understand how in the world they can do it," said Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley. "I thought the other raise on sewers was too much."

Yule gifts banned

Buffalo Grove village employes have been banned from accepting holiday gifts from residents, developers and contractors. Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the order applies to all full-and part-time village employes "from me on down." "All residents and businessmen are treated equally and fairly," he said. "It's just to illustrate our professionalism — we're not trying to provide an image that you get better service if you give us a gift."

Viator case remains undecided

It's been three months since attorneys presented arguments before a three-judge U. S. Appeals Court panel in the Arlington Heights-Viator housing case, but there is no indication when a decision will be made. The Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. is appealing loss of its lawsuit which charged the village with racial discrimination in turning down a low-and moderate-income housing project.

Teachers ask successor role

A request from Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers that teachers and community groups take part in the selection of a new district superintendent has met with favorable response from the board of education. "Past experience with the school board's policy of hiring and firing superintendents without consulting the rest of the school community has proven to be unsuccessful," the teachers' council said in a statement.

Woman aids in arrest

A 25-year-old Palatine woman was a decoy to help Palatine police capture an assault suspect. The woman agreed to assist police in setting a trap after a 22-year-old woman was attacked Dec. 3 while walking home near a school. The suspect, Clayton D. Pittenger, 17, of Palatine, was arrested Tuesday as he assaulted the decoy, police said. He was released on $2,500 bond and will appear Dec. 26 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Three-hour partial solar eclipse in Midwest today

Midwest residents will be "short-changed" on their morning sun during a three-hour partial eclipse today.

Astronomer Larry Ciupik of the Adler Planetarium said the partial solar eclipse will begin here at 8:10 a.m. and reach a maximum of 60 per cent about 9:31 a.m. The eclipse will subside about 11 a.m.

Ciupik said viewers should not look directly at the sun to view the eclipse because eyes can be damaged permanently. An indirect viewing system, such as a shadow box or camera-type projection in which the sun's image is directed onto a piece of paper, is the best method. "The eclipse won't be evident unless you look for it," he said.

Although the eclipse will be over before the sun rises in parts of California, a 7 a.m. sunrise in the Midwest will allow Chicago viewers to witness the entire process. The maximum eclipse will occur in central Canada, where 83 per cent of the sun will be covered by the moon at midmorning.

Partial solar eclipses are not uncommon, even on Friday the 13th, Ciupik said.

Government sees some good signs

1975: a bad start, then a rebound

From Herald news services

The government tried to mix some optimism in with the latest bad economic news Thursday, looking ahead to better times by the end of next year.

Budget Director Roy L. Ash — at a Senate Budget Committee Hearing — said the first two quarters of 1975 will be bad, "in fact, they'll be quarters we'll want to see in history as soon as possible."

But he predicted there will then be a tapering off of inflation, and a snapping back that will feature lower interest rates reviving housing, home products selling briskly, business investment remaining steady or increasing and auto sales bouncing back.

Ash denied a charge from Sen Walter Mondale, D-Minn., that the administration is deliberately pursuing policies designed to throw one to two million people out of work to slow down the economy and bring inflation under control.

Ash's comments followed a Labor Department report that the Wholesale Price Index jumped another 1.2 per cent in November, rounding out a total increase of 23.5 per cent in the past 12 months.

But the department saw good news in the figures, indicating the upward price spiral may at last be leveling off. More than half the total November increase was in higher charges for processed food and feeds, largely because of the sharp rise in the price of sugar. Total increases were less widespread than in previous months, with industrial commodities — which form a major part of the index — up 0.9 per cent, the smallest one-month gain since September, 1973.

In other economic news Thursday:

• The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development reported consumer prices in the industrialized world were up an average 14.5 per cent in the year ending Oct. 31. Japan suffered the worst inflation rate at 26.2 per cent, largely because of oil supply problems, while the United States was expected to finish the year up about 11 per cent.

• The world's major oil exporting nations agreed in Vienna to adopt a simple new system for pricing crude oil — tying it to supply and demand and an index of industrial commodities, such as grains and metals. Oil ministers were expected to act today on 1975 oil prices, with indications of small increases or none.

• The House Rules Committee voted 9-4 to block House action on a bill which would end the oil depletion allowance and give a tax cut to 40 million low and middle-income Americans. The action touched off a bitter floor debate and charges that Democratic leaders — including Speaker Carl Albert from the oil state of Oklahoma — killed the bill. There is a chance the bill could be called to the House floor next week, but it would take a two-thirds vote.

• President Ford met with auto industry representatives, promising the government would do something to help the ailing business, but making no specific commitments. Shortly after the meeting, Chrysler Corp. said its Newark, Del., assembly plant — one of five it closed before Thanksgiving until Jan. 6 — will not reopen as scheduled because of a large backlog of unsold cars.

• The Senate and House passed and sent to conference committee multi-million dollar programs to provide public service jobs and special benefits for thousands of Americans idled by the recession.

RANCHERS VIEW cattle trucked to Washington from South Dakota after challenging Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz to fatten 10 "feeder" steers for market and tell consumers how much it cost to get them market ready. Cattlemen say they lose money due to the high cost of feed.

Levi called choice to succeed Saxbe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House official said Thursday that Edward Levi, president of the University of Chicago, will be nominated as attorney general to succeed William B. Saxbe, in line to become ambassador to India.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said President Ford had decided upon Levi, who served with the Justice Department from 1940 to 1945 as first assistant in the War Division, and later as first assistant in the Antitrust Division.

Edward Levi

Officials of both the White House and the Justice Department declined to confirm for the record that Levi will be the choice. There also was no official confirmation that Saxbe intends to resign and accept the ambassadorship, although reliable sources said the move definitelv is being planned.

Levi, 63, was reported visiting in New York City and could not be reached immediately for comment.

Levi is a highly regarded legal scholar. He formerly was dean of the University of Chicago Law School and has written several books. It was known that he had planned to retire as president of the University of Chicago in 1976.

If appointed, Levi could run into conservative opposition in the Senate, which would have to approve his nomination. He is considered more liberal than Saxbe, the former Republican senator from Ohio.

Sens. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., and Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., conferred with Ford at the White House Thursday morning and were believed to have expressed opposition to Levi.

Mentioned previously as possible choices to succeed Saxbe were Deputy Attorney General Laurence Silberman, former Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, former Sen. Charles Goodell, R-N.Y., former Transportation Undersecretary John Robson, and James R. Thompson, U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Illinois.

If Saxbe does get the ambassadorsip, he would succeed Daniel Patrick Moynihan in New Delhi.

House committee vote virtually assures Rocky's OK by Congress next week

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary committee Thursday voted 26 to 12 to approve Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president, virtually assuring the former New York governor's confirmation by Congress next week.

The vote came after Democrats on the 38-member committee warned that the merging of Rockefeller's great personal wealth with the power of the vice president would lead to unavoidable conflicts of interest.

Of the 21 Democrats on the panel, 12 voted against Rockefeller, while all 17 Republicans voted for him.

In comparison, only eight committee members, all Democrats, voted against Gerald Ford when he was confimred as vice president last year to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Spiro T. Agnew.

Chairman Peter Rodino said he hoped to bring the Rockefeller nomination, already approved by the Senate, to a House vote by next Thursday and wants to limit debate on the nominee to eight hours.

Generally, Democrats who voted against Rockefeller said they did so because of the potential conflict of interest arising out of his vast financial holdings and those of the entire 84-member Rockefeller family estimated well over $1 billion.

Rep. Don Edwards, D.-Calif., said that "by approving Rockefeller we are approving a merger of great economic power and great political power."

Rep. Charles Rangel, D.-N.Y., said he voted for Rockefeller because "it is clear to me that President Ford needs all the help he can get."

Rep. Barbara Jordan, D.-Tex., who voted against Ford last year called Rockefeller "a man swollen with wealth" but said she would support Rockefeller's confirmation because she believed he would attract into government "persons of high caliber" to help Ford and because of his pledge "to work to improve and strengthen the civil rights laws.

Benny, Streisand allegedly swindled

13 indicted in massive stock fraud scheme

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A prominent Oklahoma attorney and 12 other persons were indicted Thursday in an alleged $130 million oil company stock fraud scheme whose investors included such celebrities as "tightwad" Jack Benny.

Robert S. Trippe, Tulsa, president and board chairman of Home-Stake Production Co., headed the list of executives indicted by a federal grand jury in the court of U.S. District Judge Irving Hill.

The U.S. attorney's office said that over a nine-year period, there was a "domino effect" in which not only show business people but astute investors were drawn into buying Home-Stake stocks because they learned other "smart" people had done so.

Among those allegedly swindled were Liza Minnelli, Walther Matthau, Andy Williams, Buddy Hackett, Barbra Streisand, Alan Alda, Jacqueline Bisset, Phyllis Diller, Tony Curtis, Jonathan Winters and Bob Dylan.

A total of 2,000 persons were said to have jumped into the venture from 1964 through 1973 to the tune of $130 million while Home-Stake returned $30 million in dividends and refunds to keep business moving.

Special federal prosecutor Stephen Wilson asked the court to set bond for Trippe at $250,000. Judge Hill said he could not set such an amount even for "the worst type of mayhem" and fixed bond at $75,000.

The U.S. attorney's office agreed that the other 12 defendants be released on their own recognizance after arrest pending trial.

In another case yesterday, a California-based silver and coin dealer sold nearly $1 billion in silver he did not have in what appears to be the largest fraud in U.S. history, the Securities and Exchange Commission alleged. The Pacific Coast Coin Exchange consented to the SEC charges in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles. A consent is an agreement not to contest the charge.

Cosmonauts: craft ready to dock with U.S. Apollo

ZVOYZDNI GORODOK, USSR (UPI) — Soviet cosmonauts said Thursday the recent Soyuz 16 manned flight went without a hitch and proved the craft is ready for next July's space link-up with an American Apollo spaceship.

Civilian flight engineer Nikolai Rukavishnikov said: "We do not have a single complaint about the docking system — it worked without breakdowns. All the improvements on Soyuz 16 worked stably and reliably and the Soyuz is quite fit for the joint experiment."

Rukavishnikov and Lt. Col. Anatoly V. Filipchenko flew Soyuz 16 through six days of tests in earth orbit Dec. 2-8.

A Soyuz spaceship — not Soyuz 16 but an identical vehicle — and an Appollo with a three-man crew are scheduled to rendezvous and dock 140 miles above the earth next July 17.

Rukavishnikov and Filipchenko, the backup crew for the July mission, made their comments at a crowded news conference for foreign and Soviet journalists at the Zvoyzdni Gorodok — "Star City" — cosmonaut living and training center 25 miles from Moscow.

Jimmy Carter in presidential race

• The official field for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination now numbers two. Georgia's departing Gov. Jimmy Carter, speaking in Atlanta, put himself into the race with a pledge to be close to the people and avoid the abuses and shady practices which have undermined public confidence in government. Unable to succeed himself under Georgia law, Carter — a wealthy peanut farmer and former nuclear submarine officer — said he'll devote all his time and energy to an aggressive campaign. He joins Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., in the race, and they'll probably be joined soon by Fred Harris, the former Oklahoma senator and Democratic national chairman, who said he'll make his plans known Jan. 11.

People

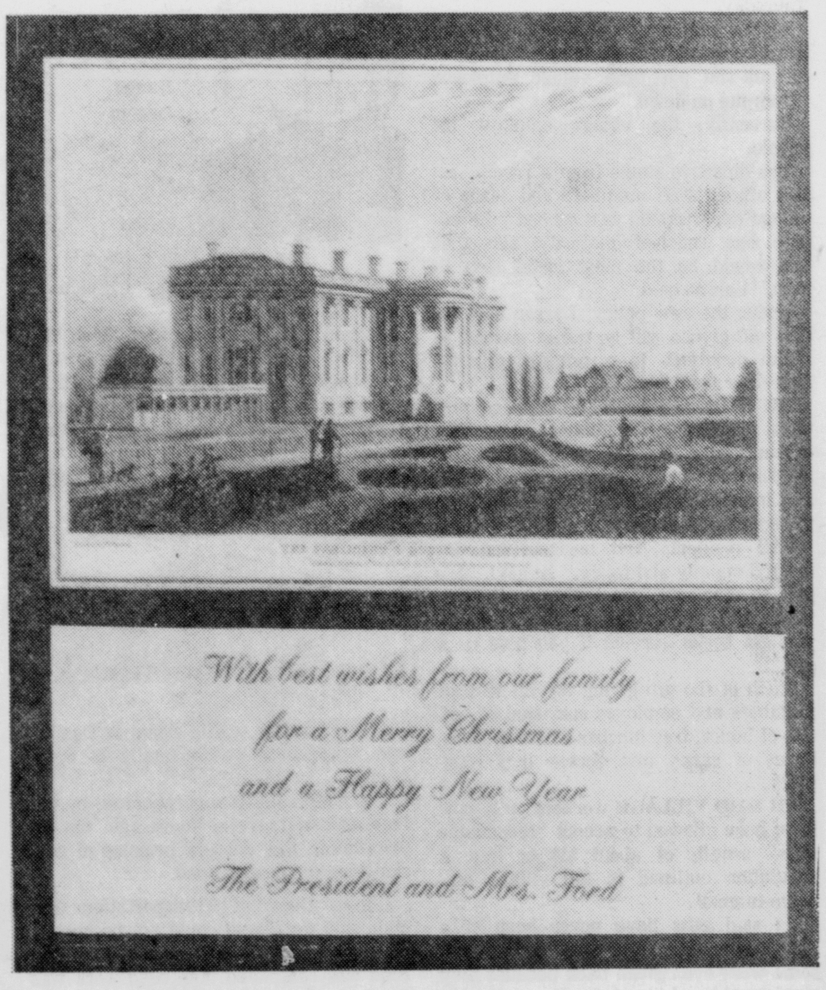
• This will be a busy day for the postal service in Washington. President and Mrs. Ford's Christmas cards — 40,000 of them — are to go into the mail to leaders around the world, members of Congress, some state and federal officials and personal friends. The cards, trimmed in gold and green, feature a reproduction of an 1831 engraving entitled "The President's House, Washington."

• The president's son Jack Ford will play host at a White House luncheon today. Special guest: former Beatle George Harrison, who got the invitation when he met young Ford backstage in Salt Lake City.

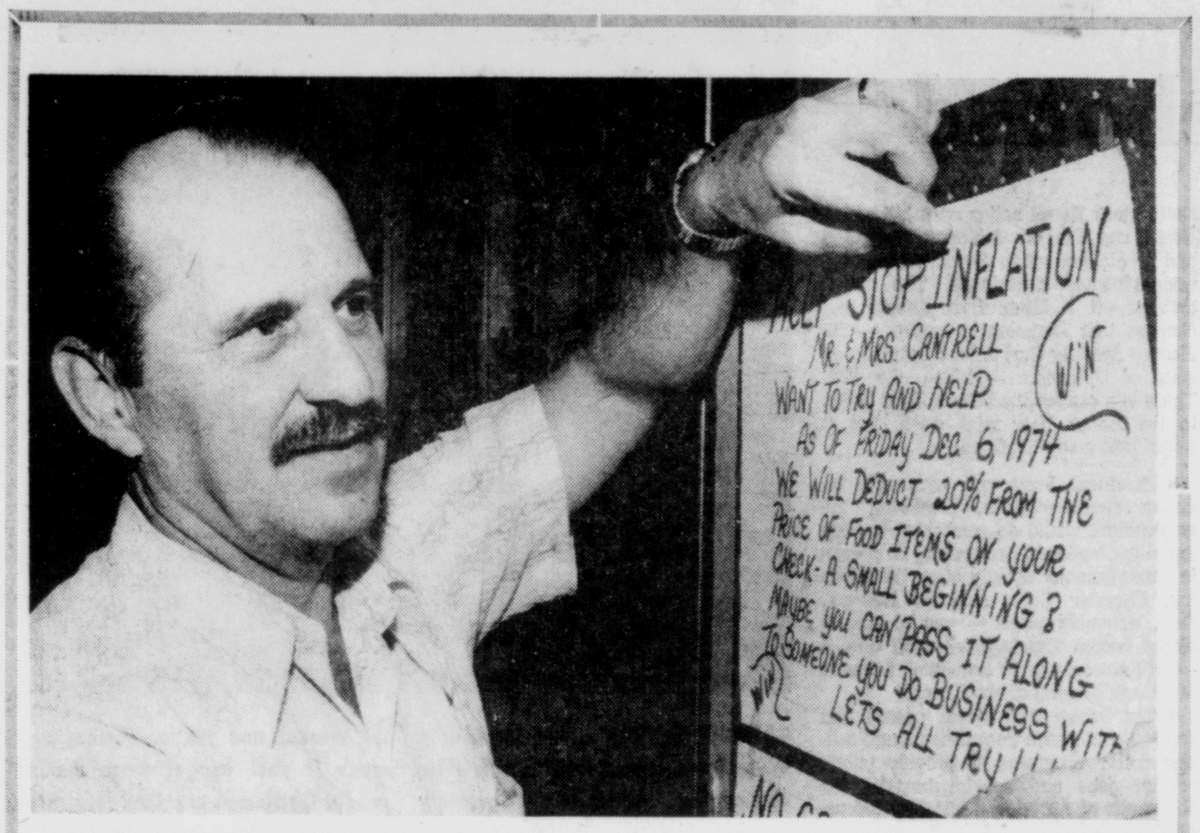
• The United States' first native-born saint — Elizabeth Seton — will be formally canonized next Sept. 14, one of the major events of the 1975 Holy Year celebration. Mother Seton was a Protestant-born convert to Catholicism whose Sisters of Charity ministered to the wounded on both sides in the Civil War.

• Arab oil money is buying a lot of things these days, and it may soon help establish the first Moslem place of worship in Rome. The Saudi Arabian embassy in Rome said King Feisal will put up at least $7 million toward building the mosque in the capital of Catholicism as soon as Italian authorities give final approval.

• For what it's worth, Caroline and John Kennedy made it into the newest listing of New York's Social Register, a winning inclusion because of their mother's belonging to a Social Register family. Listed under the names of Mr. and Mrs. Aristotle Onassis, the children of the late President John Kennedy are the only members of the family listed in the 89th edition of the register. Still in the list: Patricia Nixon Cox, who survived the storm of her father's resignation, although that kind of thing in the past has been cause for getting unlisted.



The First Family's Christmas card



STARTING A ONE-MAN war against inflation, Henry Cantrell, the owner of the Mr. Steak restaurant, 1145 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, puts up a poster announcing prices will be rolled back 20 per cent. Cantrell is trying to get his suppliers to drop their prices too and hopes the move will encourage others to do the same. Cantrell said he hopes to continue the discount program as long as possible.

Eat to WIN

Restaurateur cuts prices 20% in fight against inflation, urges all other businesses do same

While President Ford is polishing his WIN buttons and economists are spreading reports of financial doom across the land, one Des Plaines restaurateur has decided to take the fight against inflation into his own hands.

Henry Cantrell, owner of the Mr. Steak Restaurant, 1145 S. Elmhurst Rd., started a program this week to roll back his prices 20 per cent.

But this move, which is certain to make Cantrell's customers happy, doesn't stop with just the price rollback.

"I'm calling all of my purveyors and asking tht they start to do something about this inflation thing by lowering their prices to me," he said.

CANTRELL HOPES there will be a snowball effect and others might begin to lower their prices.

He agreed that people usually just stand around and complain that prices are too high and something has to be done. But usually nothing happens.

He said three suppliers already have agreed to drop their prices and another is considering donating some items for as long as Cantrell is able to keep up his efforts.

"I don't consider this a promotion, and we will keep it as long as possible," Cantrell said.

CANTRELL SAID the chain reaction could spread to some of his customers who might be encouraged to drop their prices once they see someone already has stuck his neck out.

"This is just my small way of doing something about the economy," he added.

Cantrell said other businesses may be dealing with the troubled economy the wrong way.

"The car dealers are advertising 1974 models at 1974 prices, but they should be selling the '74s at 1973 prices to stimulate trade," he said.

EVEN THOUGH some of his prices are rising, Cantrell said he is doing everything possible to keep the 20 per cent discount program going.

"I'd like to sell coffee for a dime a cup, but people would drink more than one cup for a dime. We had our price at 30 cents a cup and right now it is down to 24 cents."

Cantrell indicated that if everyone were able to drop prices, people probably would be willing to spend a little more and the spending would stimulate the economy, creating more jobs.

"I believe everyone could take part in something like this and that it would benefit everyone," Cantrell said.

Incidents apparently unrelated

3 area women assaulted; one raped at knifepoint

Police are investigating three apparently unrelated assaults on Northwest suburban women within the last week, including one in which a 27-year-old woman was raped and robbed at knifepoint in Maine Township.

Sheriff's Police said they are looking for a white man between the ages of 27 and 30 in connection with the sexual assault last Friday morning at Greenwood Trace Apartments, 8974 Western Ave., Maine Township.

Schaumburg police are searching for a young white man in his late 20s for attempting to rape a 21-year-old woman Wednesday night at gunpoint in her apartment at International Village Apartments, Meacham and Algonquin roads.

In connection with an assault late Wednesday night on a 30-year-old Hoffman Estates woman at the Moon Lake Village apartment complex, police are also looking for a white man about 28 years old.

SHERIFF'S POLICE said a man entered the Greenwood Trace apartment under the guise that he was a repairman coming to fix a leaky faucet. Authorities said there was a leaky tap in the apartment but that it had not been reported.

The man demanded entry to the apartment after the woman told him to come back when her husband returned. He checked the faucet, put a pair of socks in his hands, grabbed the woman and demanded money. She gave him $200 in cash. He then brandished a knife and raped her, investigators said.

Authorities said the woman was beaten and that the intruder took her clothes and ripped a telephone cord out of the wall. The intruder was described as being about 5 feet 8 inches tall, between 150 and 160 pounds and having brown eyes, fair complexion and short, thick brown hair. He was last seen wearing a blue leather, waist-length jacket and blue pants.

IN CONNECTION with the Schaumburg assault, police said they are looking for a man about 6 feet 1 inch tall and about 160 pounds. He was wearing beige trousers and a dark blue sweater.

The intruder, armed with a handgun, ransacked the apartment and tied up the woman. He was attempting to rape her when a friend of the woman arrived at the apartment door, police said. He had ransacked the apartment, but it was unknown if anything was taken. The intruder fled on foot after threatening the two with the gun.

In the Hoffman Estates incident, the 30-year-old victim was approached by a man in the hallway of her apartment building. He asked her for directions, walked away and returned to grab her, but the attacker was scared off by her screams, police said.

Maine Township suspect

Hoffman Estates suspect

Police believe the man drove away in a white Chevrolet. He was described as about 5 feet 6 inches tall, about 145 pounds with sand-colored hair and gold-rimmed glasses. He was last seen wearing a beige jacket and blue pants.

Anyone with information concerning any of the three recent incidents are urged to call authorities. The Sheriff's Police number is 443-6113; Schaumburg police, 894-3141, and Hoffman Estates police, 882-3131.

Schools refuse to extend parks' use of facilities

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education refused Thursday night to allow the Wheeling Park District free use of school facilities until spring.

The park district formerly received use of school facilities in return for cutting school lawns. Its agreement with Dist. 21 had expired in October and it was decided that the park district would pay for school use and end its lawn-cutting role.

The district asked in the letter to continue the old arrangement until spring but the school board refused.

In other action, the board approved the school administration applications for 15 "mini-grants" and four major grants for federal funds. The mini-grants cover a variety of subjects areas from "Training Parents as Teachers" to a remedial math lab for junior high students. About 60 projects will be selected throughout the state for $10,000, 1-year grants.

Major grants include:

- About $140,000 for expanding the early education program.
- About $60,000 for Field School to evaluate and improve the current education programs through parent and student involvement.
- About $7,750 for instructional materials.
- About $17,000 for library materials.

Susan Rose, board member, was selected to represent Dist. 21 on the Northwest Educational Cooperative Board. She will take the place of Jeremia Crise who has served in that cpacity for six years, before his resignation Thursday night for business reasons.

The board also approved the purchase of a machine to analyze tests for $2,524; draperies for $4,372 for the junior high additions and a copying machine for $1,250.

Village employes ordered to avoid accepting gifts

Buffalo Grove officials have banned village employes from receiving gifts from residents, developers and contractors, Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said Thursday.

Larson said the order, to be discussed Monday by the village board, applies to all full-and part-time village employes "from me on down."

Currently, the village employs 134 people.

The directive stems from a recent session among staff members and heads of village departments who agreed "the village has reached maturity and that this would be the most locial step to take," Larson said.

Under the new policy, Larson said future gift-givers will be asked instead to make donations to a private charity, church or institution.

HE SAID THERE have been no previous problems with village workers receiving gifts. He said one reason for adopting the policy was to relieve firms and individuals who do business with the village from feeling "obligated."

"All residents and businessmen are treated equally and fairly," he said. "It's just to illustrate our professionalism — we're not trying to provide an image that you get better service if you give us a gift."

Much of the gift-giving to village staff members and employes consisted of bottles of liquor, free lunches or car washes, boxes of candy and cheese tray samplers.

HE SAID VILLAGE workers up to now have been allowed to accept "reasonable gifts" usually of about $10 or less, a regulation outlined in the village employe manual.

He said gifts have never been of a "large monetary value" and in the past, some were even given back because they were considered "too large."

When gifts were turned back, however,

Daniel Larson

Larson said it was at the "individual's discretion."

Larson said there had never been "intent" of favoritism involved with staff members receiving gifts but that "we all felt we have developed a highly professional staff and it's demeaning to accept a gift."

When asked to comment on the matter Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said, "I commend them for their judgment."

Install traffic light at Dundee, Schoenbeck

A long-awaited traffic signal at Dundee and Schoenbeck roads finally is operational.

The traffic signal was requested by village officials several years ago, but its installation was delayed because of construction on Dundee Road.

Illinois Dept. of Transportation officials said the signal could not be hooked up until widening and repaving of the road was completed. The road work was finished last month and the light was installed at a cost of $27,000 to the village.

One driver injured in 5-vehicle crash

A Des Plaines man was injured in a five-car accident Wednesday afternoon at Golf and Algonquin roads in Rolling Meadows when his van was hit by a dump truck, which then hit three cars.

Harold E. Johnson, 1696 Webster Ln., is in fair condition at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights with a fractured shoulder and cuts. He was ticketed by Rolling Meadows police for failure to yield the right-of-way, and is scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court Jan. 27.

Johnson was driving westbound on Algonquin Road attempting to make a left turn onto Golf Road when his vehicle was struck by the dump truck. Johnson's van, which was demolished in the accident, spun around and hit a car.

The truck, eastbound on Algonquin Road, continued after hitting the van and struck two other vehicles and a stop light at the southwest corner of Golf and Algonquin roads.

Minor damage was done to the cars involved in the accident. No other persons were injured.

State school board to ask independence from Walker

by WANDALYN RICE

The new Illinois Board of Education moved Thursday to officially assert its independence from Gov. Daniel Walker and other state agencies when it takes office Jan. 13.

The board agreed to ask that legislation be introduced in the Illinois General Assembly to free the board from the controls of the state personnel office, which is run by Walker.

The action will ensure that the board, like the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the University of Illinois, will have control of its own hiring outside of the regular Civil Service system.

IN ADDITION, the board reasserted its belief that the state education office should continue to prepare its own budget independent of Walker's Bureau of the Budget. Board Pres. Jack Witkowsky said the staff of the education office will cooperate with the budget bureau because "we don't want to secede from the State of Illinois," but he added, "In no way is the bureau going to make up our budget."

The present state schools superintendent, Michael Bakalis, had warned earlier this week that the new board might find itself under Walker's control if it allowed the bureau of the budget and department of personnel to take over functions of the office.

Under Bakalis, the education office has been independent of the personnel department and the budget bureau.

Witkowsky said that in every conversation he has had with Walker, the governor has said he favors independence of the state board. Witkowsky added, "Gov. Walker assured me that he will help sponsor a bill to free this department from the governor's personnel code."

THE STATE BOARD, created by the 1970 Illinois Constitution, will replace Bakalis Jan. 13. He is the last elected state school superintendent. The board recently appointed Joseph Cronin, secretary of education for Massachusetts, to take office as state school superintendent Jan. 13.

Also Thursday, Cronin attended his first official meeting of the board and said he plans to spend January, February and March visiting school districts and private schools throughout the state to "formally engage in fact-finding" on the needs and problems of education in Illinois.

At Cronin's request, the board hired Allan Cohen, Cronin's chief assistant in Massachusetts, to act as "transition officer" until Jan. 13 and to act as Cronin's administrative assistant after that date.

Cohen, a graduate of Harvard University, has served in the Massachusetts education office since 1971. He will be paid $36,000 per year in his Illinois job.

Retired teachers to be tapped

by United Press International

A new program will use volunteer retired school teachers to help overburdened public school teachers, Illinois Supt. Michael J. Bakalis said today.

The new program, Retired Volunteers in Education Program, "will encourage local school districts and other education organizations to take advantage of the expertise of retired teachers," Bakalis said in a statement.

"School districts need help — they need teacher aides, tutors, library helpers, teachers for homebound students."

The program will be coordinated by the Illinois Retired Teachers Assn. Retired teachers will be offered volunteer jobs in the state education office and eventually "jobs ranging from reading project proposals to serving on school visitation teams," Bakalis said. Some jobs may pay nominal salaries.

Failing economy shortchanges Mercy drives

Crusade of Mercy fund-raising campaigns are closing this year short of their goals in most communities, although some tallies are surpassing last year's goals.

Campaigns officially ended Thursday, although some efforts will still be made and some donations have not been collected. Missing from most totals are some large corporate contributions.

Northwest suburban campaign chairmen generally agree that the failing economy of the nation led to reduced donations from some local residents and employes.

Des Plaines suffered the greatest losses, with present totals of $37,000 falling far short of the goal of $60,000. Raymond Slivka, campaign director, said the effort will continue until $47,000 is raised to meet the city's commitment to the Metropolitan Crusdade of Mercy drive. Last year's goal of $44,000 was met by early December.

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove and the Palatine drives are very near their new goals, and the Schaumburg Township United Fund reports 92 per cent of its $11,750 goal has been collected.

PALATINE CHAIRMAN A. "Dobby" Dobkin said the village is within $1,000 of its goal. "There is no question we will hit our quota. The question is how much we will go over. I would like to hit $25,000," he said. Palatine's goal last year was $15,000, and $19,000 was collected.

Countering the feeling that a declining economy hurts fund-raising, Dobkin said, "This isn't a rough year. You just have to use the right approach." For Palatine, the right approach was increasing the active members of the drive from the usual handful to about 50 or 60 people. Schaumburg Township used a similar approach.

Dobkin said the village also will maintain interest in the drive by sending out monthly releases on how much money it has allocated to local organizations.

James Bauer, president of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove United Fund, will be satisfied with a $19,000 total, just short of the $20,000 goal. "It might be that we were overly optimistic in setting our goal," he said. "In light of the economy I think we did pretty well by increasing the figure over the $15,000 collected last year."

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS also faces the prospect of falling short of last year's collection figure as well as this year's goal. Judith Reading, secretary for the local campaign, said, "The state of the economy is so bad people are having to tighten their belts. I guess giving is one of the areas you tighten." Arlington Heights' total is $49,471, with another $10,000 expected in payroll deductions. The new goal was $70,000, but the campaign will probably raise only $60,000, somewhat less than last year's total of $63,000.

The Mount Prospect Combined Appeal has about 82 per cent of its $31,000 goal, and Pres. Harold J. Predovich says that is normal. He said the 83 per cent mark seems to be the limit. The village has $25,518 in cash and pledges now and another $1,500 is expected before the drive comes to a complete halt in July.

"The thing I am disturbed about is that we are getting about half the participation from the residential community that we did last year, Predovich said. About 5 per cent of the 14,000 residential solicitations got responses this year, compared to 10 per cent last year. He added that the size of the gifts seems to be increasing, even though fewer people are giving. Business community donations were "way up," he said.

In Arlington Heights the pattern was contrasted, with most of the collected money coming from the residents.

THE ELK GROVE Village effort stalled short of its $22,000 goal, but Chairman Michael Leyden is pleased that the collections to date exceed last year's total. With $14,000 in and some major contributions yet to come, Leyden said they probably will surpass last year's goal of $16,000. "I think the economic atmosphere has given us some difficulties, but the effect hasn't been dramatic," he said.

The coffers in Rolling Meadows are particularly bare, said Frank Catini, treasurer of the fund. He reported that a week before the close of the campaign the city had registered about $7,000 of its $11,000 goal. Attributing the difference to the economy, Catini said the drive will continue past the deadline and will include special mailings and a canvass of businessmen.

Economic crisis or not, residents and businesses have contributed a substantial amount of money to keep the local United Fund and Crusade of Mercy agencies operating through what threatens to be a dim year in the nation's economy.

Fire destroys Springfield landmark

Flaming ashes were showered over much of downtown Springfield early Thursday morning as fire destroyed a turn-of-the-century building in the downtown square near the old state capitol.

Authorities said the blaze in the three-story Roberts Brothers Clothing Store broke out before midnight on the second floor of the building, but firemen were unable to get to the source of the fire because of heavy smoke.

Flames ripped through the roof of the building and heat from the fire shattered windows in the new Illinois National Bank building next door. The bank, still under construction, already has some tenants.

All available police and fire units were called to the scene and Civil Defense auxiliary police were called to duty. The fire burned into the early morning hours.

No estimate of damage was available Thursday and the cause of the blaze was not immediately determined.

Hefner called in drug death

When Playboy emperor Hugh Hefner returns to Chicago later this week, Cook county officials will be waiting to serve him with a subpoena to appear before a county grand jury.

Hefner is being called to testify in an investigation of the drug death of Playboy bunny Adrienne Pollack in September 1973.

Approximately 20 of Hefner's employes have been subpoenaed in a federal probe of drug use at Playboy mansions in Chicago and Beverly Hills, Calif. Hefner himself has not been subpoenaed in the federal investigation. His county appearance concerns the death of the 23-year-old Miss Pollack who worked for 18 months as a bunny at the Chicago Playboy Club. A doctor, who reportedly conducted physical examinations of Playboy Enterprises employes, listed the cause of her death as "acute cardiac dilation . . . associated in the use of methaqualone," a depressant drug.

County judge reprimanded

The Illinois Courts Commission Thursday reprimanded a Cook County Circuit Court Judge for promising two defendants their freedom if they would drop a police brutality complaint.

The commission criticized Judge Charles J. Durham, 46, of Chicago, for the practice which it admitted is widespread in Illinois.

By reprimanding Durham the commission said it hoped to point out "the impropriety of this conduct," Durham, who tossed out the arrests of James and William Gilmartin after making them swear to drop Chicago police brutality charges filed by their mother, said what he did is common in courtrooms and is not prohibited by law or Supreme Court rule.

Water near Byron poisoned

Pregnant women and infants have been warned against drinking water from some wells and streams near Byron after Commonwealth Edison Co. officials said cyanide had been found on Edison property.

The source of the poison, found in barrels stored on property Edison had purchased, has been shipped to Kansas City for destruction at a cost of $200,000 Edison officials said.

The poison was discovered several months ago ion upon the death of a cow and two calves.

Health officials have warned the estimated 200 residents of the area to take precautions, but haven't outlawed drinking the water except for infants and pregnant women.

The property is slated for construction of a nuclear plant in 1980. Edison officials declined to say if company investigators had determined the original owner of the cyanide. Presumably this information could become a critical factor in any lawsuits arising from the contamination.

Edison request denied

An Atomic Energy Commission committee denied a request from Commonwealth Edison Co. Thursday to operate the Zion nuclear plant at full power.

The Committee on Reactor Safeguards recommended that the plant continue operating at 85 per cent power until after Edison refuels the first reactor in one year.

The committee in denying the request said a number of incidents having significance to the reliability of engineered safety features have occurred at the Zion plant. The committee said despite recent changes in organization and administration at the plant, the operations were not yet smooth enough at 85 per cent power to go to full power.

The Federal Energy Office in Washington sought approval for increasing the plant output.

Illinois coal 'adaptable'

Illinois coal is "adaptable to the coal gasification process," the president of the Illinois Coal Operators Assn. said this week.

Otis Gibson said in Springfield that tests in Scotland show Illinois high-sulphur coal has properties which strengthen the chances of the state someday becoming a multi-billion-dollar coal-gasification complex.

Gibson's association shipped 10,000 tons of coal from southwestern Illinois to Westfield, Scotland, for the tests more than a year ago, but results of the tests were received only recently.

Gibson said additional sources of oil, gas and nuclear energy will be needed however, before coal gasification plants can become a reality in the state, Gibson said.

5 die in Chicago fire

Five people died in a fire Wednesday night in a Chicago apartment building.

The fire, which swept through the building at 7416 S. Jeffery, was apparently started by the burners on a kitchen stove igniting a wall.

Police said the adults killed in the fire were L. C. Strong and his common-law wife, Maxine. Three children who died in the fire were Elonda Shivers, 2; Donna Shivers, 6; and Charlene Mays, 3.

Police said Rose Mays, the mother of Charlene Mays, was admitted to Jackson Park Hospital suffering from smoke inhalation.

Names of dead patients told

The names of 6 of the 12 mentally retarded patients who died at a Waukegan nursing home in a four-month period were made public Thursday by Lake County Coroner Oscar Lind.

Lind said the deaths of the six were attributed to pneumonia.

The patients, who were among several hundred transferred to nursing homes from state mental hospitals, are part of an investigation by state agents of nursing home conditions.

The names made public by Lind were Warren Williams, 26; Robert Horn, 26; Timothy Wendt, 32, and John Przewoznik, 30, all of Chicago; Harry Blanchette, 24, of Bartlett, and Robert A. Schurr, 19, of Fox Lake.

FIREMEN POUR water onto a blaze that destroyed the Roberts Brothers Men's Store, a Springfield landmark since 1919. There were no injuries in the fire, which showered ashes over much of downtown Springfield Thursday.

House overrides benefit-hike veto

From Roll Call Report

The U.S. House of Representatives joined the Senate last week in overriding President Ford's veto of legislation increasing benefits for post-Korean War veterans. In the Senate, an amendment delaying the cutoff of foreign aid to Turkey was approved in an attempt to give the Ford administration added time to negotiate a removal of Turkish troops from Cyprus.

Following is a summary of the key votes of the Illinois congressional delegation during the period from Dec. 2-4.

Included in the summary are the actions of Illinois' two senators, Republican Charles H. Percy and Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson III, and Northwest suburban congressmen U.S. Rep. Phillip M. Crane, R-12th, and U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

House

GI BENEFITS: Overrode, 394 to 10, President's veto of legislation increasing veterans' benefits for monthly educational assistance by 23 per cent; providing loans of $600 per year for living costs, and increasing federal funding of job-training programs by 18 per cent.

Yes (to override veto): Republicans Derwinski, Arends, Anderson, O'Brien, Michel, McClory, Erlenborn, Railsback, Findley, Madigan. Democrats Murphy, Kluczynski, Gray, Annunzio, Collins, Rostenkowski, Yates, Price.

No (to sustain veto): Republicans Collier and Hanrahan.

Not Voting: Republicans Crane, Young. Democrat Metcalfe.

DESEGRATION: Reaffirmed, 212 to 176, language in an appropriations bill that says that federal-education funding cannot be used as a tool to require schools to statistically classify students by religion, race, sex or national origin. The language was seen as a deterrent to efforts by the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare to combat school discrimination on those grounds.

The language, previously approved by the House, had been rejected by the Senate, but was included in a House-Senate conference report. It now must be voted upon again in the Senate.

Yes: Republicans Hanrahan, Derwinski, Collier, Arends, O'Brien, Michel. Democrat Annunzio.

No. Republicans McClory, Erlenborn, Railsback, Findley, Madigan. Democrats Collins Rostenkowski, Yates, Price.

Not voting: Republicans Crane, Young, Anderson. Democrats Kluczynski, Gray.

Senate

AID TO TURKEY: Adopted, 55 to 36, an amendment to delay the cutoff of foreign aid to Turkey until Feb. 15, 1975. If negotiations for removal of Turkish troops from Cyprus are not successful by that date, aid to Turkey will be stopped.

The amendment extended the previous deadline of Dec. 10, 1974.

No: Stevenson.

Not voting: Percy.

U. S. AID: Adopted, 65 to 27, an amendment reducing by nearly $20 million the proposed 1975 U.S. contribution to agencies of the United Nations. The effect of the vote was to maintain the U.S. contribution at roughy the same level of 1974, about $165 million.

No: Percy, Stevenson.

Ways and Means — the new look

The House committee that will handle tax reform, national health insurance and welfare reform next year has been changed dramatically and flooded with liberal new members.

The liberal bent of the new House Ways and Means Committee is evident despite the inclusion of one of Congress' most conservative voices, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th. Balancing Crane's conservatism will be 10th District congressman-elect Abner Mikva.

The House Ways and Means Committee — a traditionally conservative body dominated for almost 17 years by U.S. Rep Wilbur Mills, D-Ark. — is not conservative any more, slightly less powerful and no longer dominated by anyone.

NEWLY NOMINATED members "are more liberal in philosophy, but I feel they will be responsible," said U.S. Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the new committee chairman.

Ullman is expected to be more democratic and open in committee affairs than the recently resigned Mills.

Joining 13 Democratic holdovers will be 12 new Democrats, all but two of whom can be considered liberal or moderate.

EVEN THE SIX mainly conservative Republican holdovers will be joined by six new members about equally split between liberal, moderate and conservative outlook.

The new Democrats include U.S. Rep. Charles Rangle of New York, the first black member of this century.

Two other freshmen are considered among the most able of the 76 Democrats — economist Joseph Fisher of Virginia and U.S. Rep. Martha Keys of Kansas, who will become the only woman on the committee. U.S. Rep. Martha Griffiths of Michigan retired this year.

Other new members considered liberal to moderate are U.S. Rep. Henry Helstoski of New Jersey, William C. Cotter of Connecticut, Fortney H. Stark of California, Mikva of Illinois, and Andrew Jacobs of Indiana.

ONLY TWO Democrats could be considered conservatives — U. S. Rep. Jake Pickle of Texas and U. S. Rep. James Jones of Oklahoma.

Republican nominations included two liberals — William A. Steiger of Wisconsin and Bill Frenzel of Minnesota; two moderates — James Martin of North Carolina and Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan, and two conservatives — Crane and L. A. Bafalis of Florida.

Help for spastic colon

Could you give me some information on spastic colon? I'm 36 years old and have this problem. Excitement seems to cause uncontrolled bowel movements, more than what I eat, although certain foods or coffee will do the same thing.

I have had this problem for six years. I quit drinking alcohol four years ago. My brother and sister also have this problem.

I had an X ray of my colon and the specialist told me there was nothing wrong, except a couple of spots on the intestinal wall. At times, the bowel movement may be firm, but it seems within a few minutes, it's right back to the bathroom.

Spastic colon means that the muscles in the wall of the colon overcontract, or actually cramp. This makes it possible to have the food residue delayed in passage. During this delay, too much water is squeezed out and absorbed, causing small, hard, bowel movements.

The same rapid, excessive muscle contractions can cause diarrhea. It is not unusual to have both constipation and diarrhea with spastic colon.

You will need to set up a program of proper eating and actually train your bowel to help you avoid this problem. That covers a lot of territory.

It's true that excitement and psychological factors can influence how your colon reacts. That is why some doctors prescribe tranquilizers as part of the treatment program.

COFFEE IS something that anyone with digestive or bowel problems should avoid. The caffeine increases nervousness and has the opposite actions of tranquilizers.

People with severe problems should even avoid the decaffeinated products. The flavor oils in coffee that give coffee its taste are irritating to a sensitive intestine.

These same comments go for tea, colas, and chocolate drinks. One reader wrote in frantically to tell me I must be wrong about cocoa. I wasn't. The bean that cocoa comes from, like the coffee bean, does contain caffeine.

Some people who think they have spastic colon really have other problems, including intolerance to milk and milk products. I think it is always worth a try to see if avoiding milk will relieve digestive complaints. Those people who can't break down milk sugar (lactose) often have gas problems and symptoms of spastic or irritable colon.

The amount of fluid you drink and the development of a bowel habit, without dependence upon chemical laxatives, is important in the management of such problems.

Herald opinion

RTA leadership pick blocked by Democrats

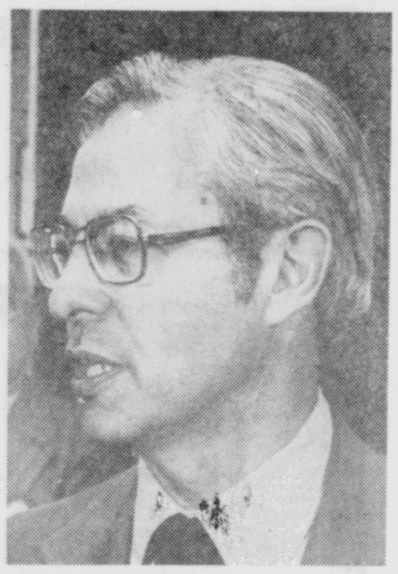
You don't have to be a genius to realize that the current deadlock of the Regional Transportation Authority is as predictable as cold weather in January.

Despite reports to the contrary, the current stand-off over the selection of an RTA chairman isn't entirely the fault of the four suburban commissioners; rather, blame must rest firmly on the shoulders of the four Chicago members of the RTA board as representatives of the politically greedy Chicago political machine.

For seven months, the eight board member have argued aimlessly whether Milton Pikarsky, the current CTA boss and choice of the four Chicagoans, should head the RTA.

As the debate has droned on, vital transportation decisions have been deferred, budgeting for 1975 perhaps will have to be delayed and the Chicago Democrats have refused to approve even temporary staff members. There's not even an RTA meeting scheduled for the near future, though each of the eight appointed members is receiving up to $25,000 a year for his labors.

As The Herald stated earlier, this deadlock was predictable, for at stake is the control of the massive transportation system serving seven million people.



MILTON PIKARSKY

Who else but Mayor Daley of Chicago would like to extend his political control, via a patronage army of transportation employes, into the outlying suburbs?

To date, the four suburban commissioners have remained loyal to the needs of the suburbs by blocking the Pikarsky appointment, even though the pressure from Daley's office on suburban mayors has increased in recent weeks.

As the stalling and maneuvering for political control continues, so grows the threat to existing transportation systems, both in Chicago and the suburbs. The RTA obviously must pay considerable attention to the plight of the Chicago Transit Authority, but failing bus lines and fading commuter railroads also are desperately in need of the kind of planning and federal money that only competent transportation leadership can provide.

Gov. Daniel Walker should take the lead in ending this wasteful deadlock, by encouraging legislation that will allow him to appoint an RTA chairman. After all, the RTA is the creature of the legislature, and apparently only through its leadership can we obtain a functioning board which will begin the long-delayed task of straightening out the future of mass transportation in the six-county area.

Obviously the present RTA board — and the Democratic machine which jeopardizes its future — are incapable of working out a compromise on RTA leadership. For the sake of the public, the legislature should act.

GOP seeks a Daley foe

AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Metropolitan Affairs Editor

The search for a Republican party candidate to oppose Mayor Richard Daley next spring strangely echoes November, 1973, when GOP stars politely declined battle with Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill.

Atty. Gen. William Scott, U.S. Rep. John Anderson, R-Rockford, and Donald Rumsfeld, Assistant to the President, were unwilling to run against Stevenson. Even former U.S. Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson, a resident of Massachusetts, was rumored as a possible candidate.

With the same brilliance that pulled George Burditt into the U.S. Senate race, Republican leaders are searching for a Daley dumper in 1975.

For the same reasons that viable candidates declined the Stevenson race, GOP stars are saying "no" to the Chicago mayoral election.

Nothing will stop the mayor from winning a sixth term. Even indictment or death, given the strength of Daley's machine in Chicago, may be a less than formidable wall to Daley's re-election.

Despite admission that Chicago insurance business was funneled to Daley's sons, despite indictment of Daley's political cronies, despite the escalating cost of city government, U.S. Atty. James Thompson saw no chance of defeating the mayor.

So Thompson said "no" to GOP leaders.

Another "no" came from unsuccessful candidate for sheriff Peter Bensinger. "It's difficult to twist a guy's arm when he just lost one election," one GOP leader said.

RICHARD DALEY

From the serious, the Republican search has moved to the ridiculous. Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck regularly receive more votes for political office than Mike Royko, Len O'Connor and other stars who shine less than brightly on political horizons.

Former State's Atty. Benjamin Adamowski, a crony of Daley's in the General Assembly, lost one mayoral election to the mayor and now wants a pledge of $500,000 to run again. Bensinger couldn't raise $500,000 county-wide to run for sheriff and the GOP will not find $500,000 to attract Adamowski.

County GOP chairman Floyd Fulle insists that the party will field a candiate for the mayoral election. Republicans will not back an anti-Daley Democrat, Fulle said.

Fulle's search committees will be naming an after-the-fact candidate because any real challenge to Daley will come in the city's primary election. Ald. William Singer carries the liberal banner. Former State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan, fresh from defeat for a U.S. House job, is law-and-order with a touch of apple pie. E. Duke McNeil and State Sen. Richard Newhouse, D-Chicago, will fight for the black vote.

Chicago's April 1 election threatens, with Daley running, to become a ho-hum repeat of Nov. 5. That's probably why the GOP candidate search is reminiscent of preparations for the recent general election.

For suburbanites, the future contains four more years of a Daley-dominated environment. The General Assembly is Democratic, Congress is Democratic and the County Board is Democratic.

After Daley wins his sixth term, airplanes landing at O'Hare Airport will pull huge banners proclaiming the mayor's greatness.

Republicans should use the same banner space to advertise for a mayoral candidate.

Ford backs globe-trotter

Kissinger still safe despite sharp criticism

by R. H. GROWALD
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This is a winter of discontent for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

He is far from 97-pound weakling status, but his Superman image has faded at home and abroad.

In Congress, such critics as Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., nay-say such Kissinger doings as East-West detente and Washington-Moscow deals to limit nuclear weapons.

In the Washington press corps, debate over Kissinger tends to run to whether he will be out of office next year or when.

But the discontent is nothing unless one of two men act. President Ford and Kissinger himself are the only critics the secretary of state need have pause over. Only Ford or the man himself is powerful enough now to end the career of the spectacular secretary.

Is Ford likely to dump Kissinger?

It is taken for granted the President is tinkering with Cabinet carpentry and that at least half a dozen of those Cabinet Room leather chairs bearing the dates of entry of each member will be switched before the cherry blossoms bloom again around the Tidal Basin.

But the chair bearing the small brass plaque "Secretary of State, Sept. 21, 1973" seems certain to be around as long as the one saying "The President, Aug. 9, 1974."

Ford has pledged publicly his allegiance to the genius and the need of Kissinger. The pluses claimed by Ford's four-month-old administration — for example, the Vladivostok nuclear limitation pact with the Russians — largely stem from the secretary of state.

Kissinger is not one to suffer fools, even in higher office. During the latter months of former President Nixon's administration, Kissinger did not shrink from intimating — through facial gestures if not words — his belief in the dispensability of that president.

But even in the tightness of his suite aboard his 18-year-old jet, Kissinger makes it clear with words his belief that Ford is a president well worth serving.

Kissinger's outburst in Salzburg, Austria, in June, when he threatened to resign if he had to put up with defending himself against allegations of Watergate-era misdoings, reflected:

- His sincere belief that a secretary of state who deals in such face-to-face globe-trotting diplomacy as he does has to possess a maiden's moral innocence to carry conviction in dealing with world leaders.
- A recognition that Watergate so poisoned the image of all Washington politicos that he was being tarred no matter how pure he was. This is a fear that lingers today.
- The Kissinger face for believing the worst of his critics. This is a hallmark of genius, according to his friends.

For example, Kissinger believes that Jackson's criticism of his policy stems from Jackson's being willing to overlook the truth in favor of partisan politics; from Jackson believing it is easy to get publicity by casting stones at the once almost unchallengeable Kissinger; from Jackson wanting issues in order to further his own presidential ambitions.

The congressional military aid cutoff to Turkey strikes Kissinger as nonsense. Not nonsense because it represents the peaceable ideals of its supporters, but nonsense because it robs Kissinger of leverage in dealing with the Turks. It thus will in no way benefit Greece, America's NATO defense alliance or chances for peace on Cyprus.

It is frustrating for a secretary of state who measures his own worth in his ability to wheel and deal. Perhaps only when Kissinger feels the wheeling and the dealing are no longer possible, will Kissinger — the only man really able to end the spectacular State Department career of "Henry the K" — chop himself down.

Hits Mugalian strategy

Fence post
letters to the editor

Having always said that I would be the first to admit a mistake, I would now like to do so now while everything is fresh in my mind. The mistake I refer to is the supporting of Richard Mugalian, our State Representative to the 12th District and our Democratic committeeman.

As a concerned citizen who has often exercised his right of free speech through this medium and complained about many things and many people, several months ago I decided to quit just complaining and do something about it. I had voluntered my time and efforts to what I believed was the Democratic party of which I lean towards.

Not too long after my offer, Mr. Mugalian called to accept my services and appointed me the Democratic precinct captain in the 53rd district. Shortly thereafter I attended a couple of meetings and was briefed on how the Mugalian organization wanted me to work my precinct. It was during these meetings that I began to realize that something was wrong, but with no experience to draw on, I wasn't sure. Not wanting to be out of line, I simply questioned their logic and approach to the forthcoming elections. Like why weren't we campaigning for all the Democrats by passing out their literature, and, more importantly, why weren't we going to try and get both Mr. Mugalian and Mr. Carey elected? In, fact, I had said to them that I felt the approach suggested of conceding victory to the two candidates the Republicans put up and asking the voters to cast all three of their votes were it counted for Mr. Mugalian the best Democrat was being negative. It was my belief that we could get both Democrats in, to which they countered with figures and logic that would show there was no chance of beating the Republicans. As to the other Democratic candidates, I was told that they preferred to run their own campaigns in their own way.

Come election day, Mr. Mugalian had won reelection while his Democratic counterpart had lost by the small margin of a couple of hundred votes. I could not help but wonder if he too might have gotten in with just a little support from his committeeman.

The day following the election, in answer to a question as to why Mr. Mugalian drew fewer votes than when he ran the first time, he claimed that it was attributed to his fellow Democrat running a negative campaign by asking voters to cast all three of their votes for himself.

Needless to say, my introduction to politics was typical of what most people think of when it comes to politics and politicians.

As I stated earlier, I made a mistake, one based on poor judgment and formed by inexperience. I went looking for a Democrat who was independent with a sincere interest in the community and one dedicated to restoring the two-party system in the suburbs. Instead, I found an independent who in my opinion is no more a Democrat than Charles Percy and is dedicated not in restoring the two party system but in creating a political machine for his own personal use.

Let me end by saying that to be independent in politics is not in itself wrong, but when one is independent to the point of hostility by ignoring fairness, courtesy and sincerity. When practicality is set aside and compromise is impossible, what good is being independent. This country's government was not designed to be run by any one politician and only the realization of this fact plus the willingness to accept the things they cannot change, to change the things they can and to ask God for the wisdom to know the difference. Then and only then can they ever hope to help themselves, their families and their community, by serving in public office.

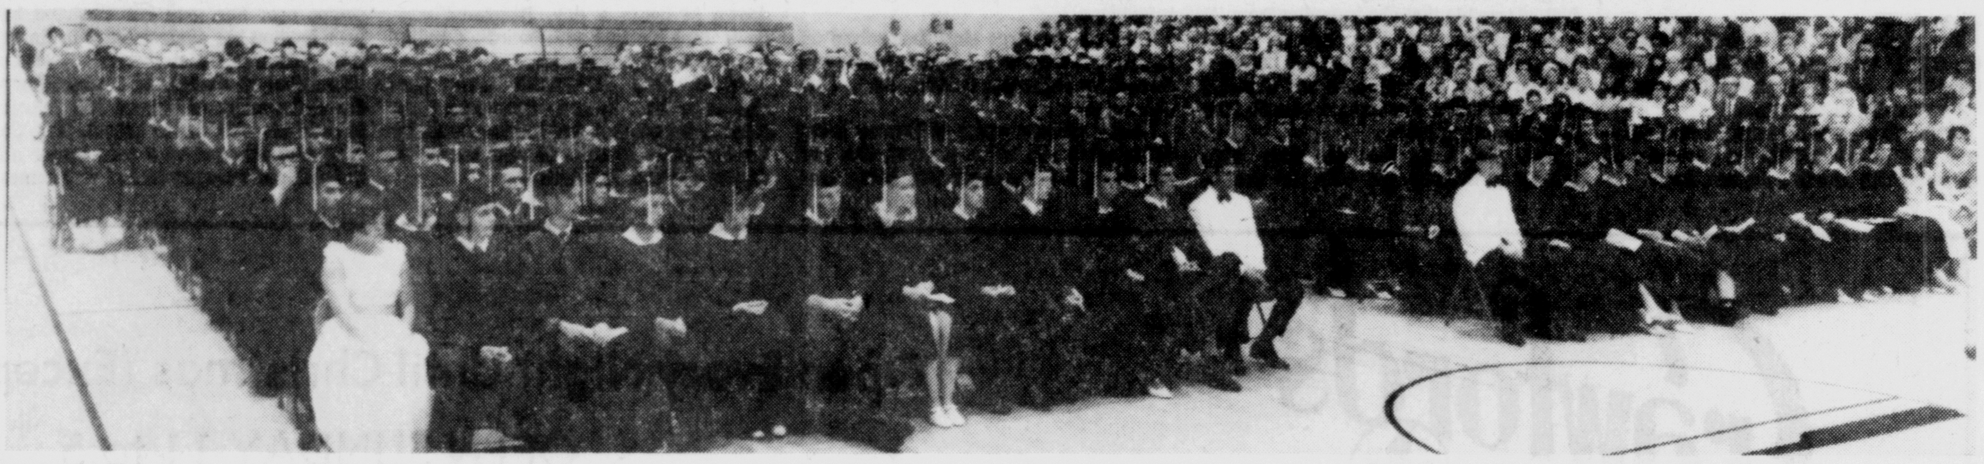
1975 graduates to face stiff competition for openings

College diploma no longer a ticket to a job

by LEA TONKIN



Time was, when a college diploma meant a good job and big money — one rung up on the career ladder.

The economy is a great leveler, as indicated in the annual Northwestern University report released Thursday on job prospects for new college gradutes. An uncertain outlook for grads bent on landing their first job is reported by Frank Endicott, retired director of placement and professor emeritus at the university. Mixed readings are echoed by placement counselors in the Northwest suburbs.

Uncertain job prospects for 1975 college graduates indicated by many companies mirrors economic concern, Endicott said. An improved business outlook for 1975 is reported by 28 per cent of the 160 firms, included in the survey. Thirty per cent of the companies said 1975 will not be as good as 1974 for business, while 42 per cent said the year will be approximately the same as 1974.

WHAT THIS MEANS to the college graduate with a bachelor's degree is an over-all 1 per cent increase in hiring planned for 1975. A 4 per cent decline in hiring of master's level graduates is anticipated by the firms surveyed. Engineering graduates can expect a better break in the competition for available jobs, with a 3 per cent boost in expected job openings for those with a bachelor's degree.

An 11 per cent drop in hiring of engineering graduates with master's degrees is expected for 1975. A .5 per cent decrease in openings for non-engineering graduates with a bachelor's degree and a 2 per cent drop in recruiting for those with a master's degree is predicted.

Several area placement offices contacted by The Herald seconded the mixed outlook for new college graduates seeking a job. Bennett Cooper, president of Bennett W. Cooper Personnel in Des Plaines, said the demand for engineers and accounting graduates is steady in the suburbs.

"I personally think college graduates with a liberal arts degree, or degrees in teaching and even business are going to find it more difficult to get a job," he added. "Those with degrees in nonspecifics, like history and psychology are finding it difficult because of business cutbacks."

Cooper said a number of recent college gradutes set unrealistically high salary expectations. "They don't realize what's going on out there," he said. "It's really a buyer's market today." Cooper is optimistic about 1975 job market prospects for applicants who will "look a little harder."

LINDA AVERY, assistant manager of Harris Services, Inc., employment agency in Arlington Heights, said, "Any skill will get you what you're looking for." A general decline in job openings marks the outlook for college graduates, she said, "but particularly in engineering and accounting there will not be any decrease in openings in the suburbs and in our national accounts."

Employers place a lower premium on college diplomas than in the past, Mrs. Avery said. Specific training in electronics, machine shop, drafting and other skills is increasingly sought by industry. When the economy takes an upturn, the outlook should improve for college graduates, she said.

A spokesman for the placement and financial aid office at Harper College, Palatine, said an increase in openings for paralegal workers is the exception to a general decline in available jobs. The office job bulletin has shrunk from 10 pages down to four in the past year, she said.

"It's very mixed right now," said Marilyn Mason, manager of the Mount Prospect office of Murphy Employment Service Inc. "Some companies say call after the first of the year — things are looking up. Others say, call after the first of the year — they have no idea what's going on." A seasonal slump in job openings generally occurs at the end of the year followed by an upturn in January, she said. The job market for college graduates is depressed, particularly for those with a master's degree. The number of applicants for jobs has increased, so "employers can be very choosy at this point," Mrs. Mason said.

OTHER MIXED readings reported by Endicott based on his survey include:

- Stepped-up recruiting efforts at colleges and universities is planned by 29 per cent of the firms surveyed, while 31 per cent plan fewer visits. The remaining 40 per cent plan the same level of recruiting effort in 1975 as in 1974.
- Approximately 50 per cent of the firms surveyed anticipate an increase in the number of men graduates with bachelor's degrees to be hired in 1975. The total number to be hired is nearly the same as in 1974, however.
- Demand for women college graduates is leveling off, with a 7 per cent increase in hiring expected for 1975. The figure represents a smaller increase than the previous reports. Employment of women graduates by the reporting companies for 1975 will equal 19 per cent of the men graduates to be hired, with figures of 2,139 and 11,186, respectively.
- Starting salaries are up approximately 5 per cent across the board for 1975 graduates, Endicott reported. Male engineers with a bachelor's degree will be offered an average starting salary of $1,062 a month, a 7 per cent increase from 1974 levels. Companies may prefer graduates with a bachelor's degree at a lower starting salary averaging $1,062 a month compared with $1,223 a month for those with a master's degree.

"It is clearly not a negative, one-sided report on the opportunities for college graduates," Endicott said of his report. Following the survey in November, he supplemented findings with a poll among 11 firms Wednesday. The second poll indicates similar results. Endicott said the outlook for college graduates was worse in 1970 and 1971, with greater cutbacks in job openings.

Fed up with neighbors? You could isolate yourself as this family did...

RACINE, WIS. (UPI) — Last Jan. 14 Wayne Solberg and his wife Amy made a pact.

Fed up with the pressures of neighborhood squabbles and the outside world, they decided to shut themselves off with their four daughters in a five-room bungalow home.

Mrs. Solberg, 34, told school authorities the family was moving to California and the girls — ages 8, 12, 13 and 14 — would not be coming in any more.

Then Solberg and his family began nearly a year of isolation in the basement of the suburban Mount Pleasant home.

THIS WEEK MRS. Solberg, describing herself as disenchanted with the pact she made with her husband, fled the home and ran to the house of a neighbor.

"She was saying terrible things. It would be terrible if they were true," the neighbor said. "If they were not, it is just as terrible that she is saying them."

The neighbor said Mrs. Solberg, who is seven months pregnant, seemed panicky, wanted to use the telephone and then did not know whom she wanted to call. The neighbor called police.

They pieced together this story from talking to Solberg, his wife, the daughters and neighbors:

BEFORE JANUARY the Solbergs often squabbled with their neighbors. One said that Mrs. Solberg and another woman got into a hair pulling brawl in the street. Neighbor children said they were forbidden by their parents to go the Solberg home.

Then the Solbergs shut themselves off in the basement of the home, which was owned by Solberg's mother, Mrs. Olga Jensen, 65.

Neighbors saw sacks of cement being delivered to the house at night. One said she thought the cement was being used to bury members of the family.

"You have no idea what we have gone through living here," she said. "I thought I was going to have a heart attack when I saw them walk out of that house alive."

Window shades in the home were drawn 24 hours a day. Basement windows were blocked with boards. Candles were used for illumination.

FOOD AND SUPPLIES were purchased by Mrs. Jensen with money from a small inheritance and income made by the daughters by sale, through magazine ads, of homemade trinkets.

The family went out of the house only at night, except for two weeks when it was feared authorities were going to check up on the house. During that time, they lived in a nearby motel.

Mrs. Solberg told the authorities she grew tired of the arrangement a few weeks ago. She said her husband had been holding her against her will. He and the children said that was not so. Solberg was jailed on charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors and refusing to send his children to school. Mrs. Solberg was released to a care center and the children were placed in foster homes.

WHAT COULD BE more original than kid-created gift paper? Here Pauline Natsookas, 8, designs her paper under the watchful eye of Connie Pavich, who teaches children how to change shelf paper into gift wrap.

At Countryside Art Center

Mini artists learn how to make own gifts, wrap and cards

by ELEANOR RIVES

"When a child creates a piece of art or a fine arts-type craft item, it should never be a frustrating experience," said Nancy McClure, who along with Connie Pavich, conducts art classes for 6 to 10-year-olds at Countryside Art Center in Arlington Heights.

The two art teachers are brimful of ideas and know-how for youngsters who want to make something that is entirely "their own." Each experience is designed to be satisfying and creative.

Making original gift wrapping paper from long sheets of plain shelf paper is easy and fun. Using pastel tempera paints and happy abandon, a child dribbles a color down the length of the paper, folds it in half lengthwise and blots. After that dries, he dribbles on a second color, always working from lighter to darker tones, and drying after each application. The results are delightful.

Another way for a child to make gift wrapping paper is to cut simple designs — a snowman, a star, a Christmas tree — from a plastic foam meat tray, press against an ink pad and print at random all over the paper. If he prefers his pictures in living color, he can color the foam with water base paint instead of ink.

Kids at the center learn to make their own greeting cards, too, using a plastic foam meat tray much the same as you would a linoleum block. Their original design is etched into (not through) the foam with that handy little gadget, a ballpoint pen. Ink is spread on the meat tray with an inked roller. How do you ink a roller? You roll it on an ink-spread tile, that's how.

THE CHILD CHOOSES his favorite color construction paper, presses it on the foam and presto! the design is transferred, the outlines are not.

For a different effect, in place of ink, one can substitute powdered tempera paint mixed with enough liquid starch to give it a creamy consistency.

If he is not greeting card inclined, the young artist may make prints of his plastic foam design, mat them or mount them on construction paper, even frame them. Signed and dated, these personalized creations will be treasured through the years.

Countryside Art Center's young students revel in a world of papier mache, creating any number of unusual craft items, even bracelets and other jewelry.

For a pleasing experience with this medium, Nancy McClure describes one procedure her mini-artists use to transform a small plain, inexpensive mirror into a glamorous holiday gift.

First step is to outline the mirror on heavy brown cardboard; then add a border of whatever width desired to serve as a frame for the mirror. Cut along border outlines. Next, small strips of newspaper are laid on the cardboard, one by one, each covered with wheat paste or Elmer's glue before the next is applied.

One side is completely covered, then covered again with a second layer of papier mache. For an interesting textured effect, children can let their imaginations run wild concocting designs on the surface with curlicues of string.

WHEN ALL HAS dried, the kids color their creations with tempera paint. A final coat or spray of varnish or shellac imparts a gloss finish. The design can be antiqued by rubbing lightly with shoe polish and wiping gently. The color catches on the rough portions.

Finally, the cardboard is glued to the back of the mirror, its border becoming a handsome frame. Voila! a bit of antique charm for bathroom or bedroom, or an attractive addition to any wall grouping.

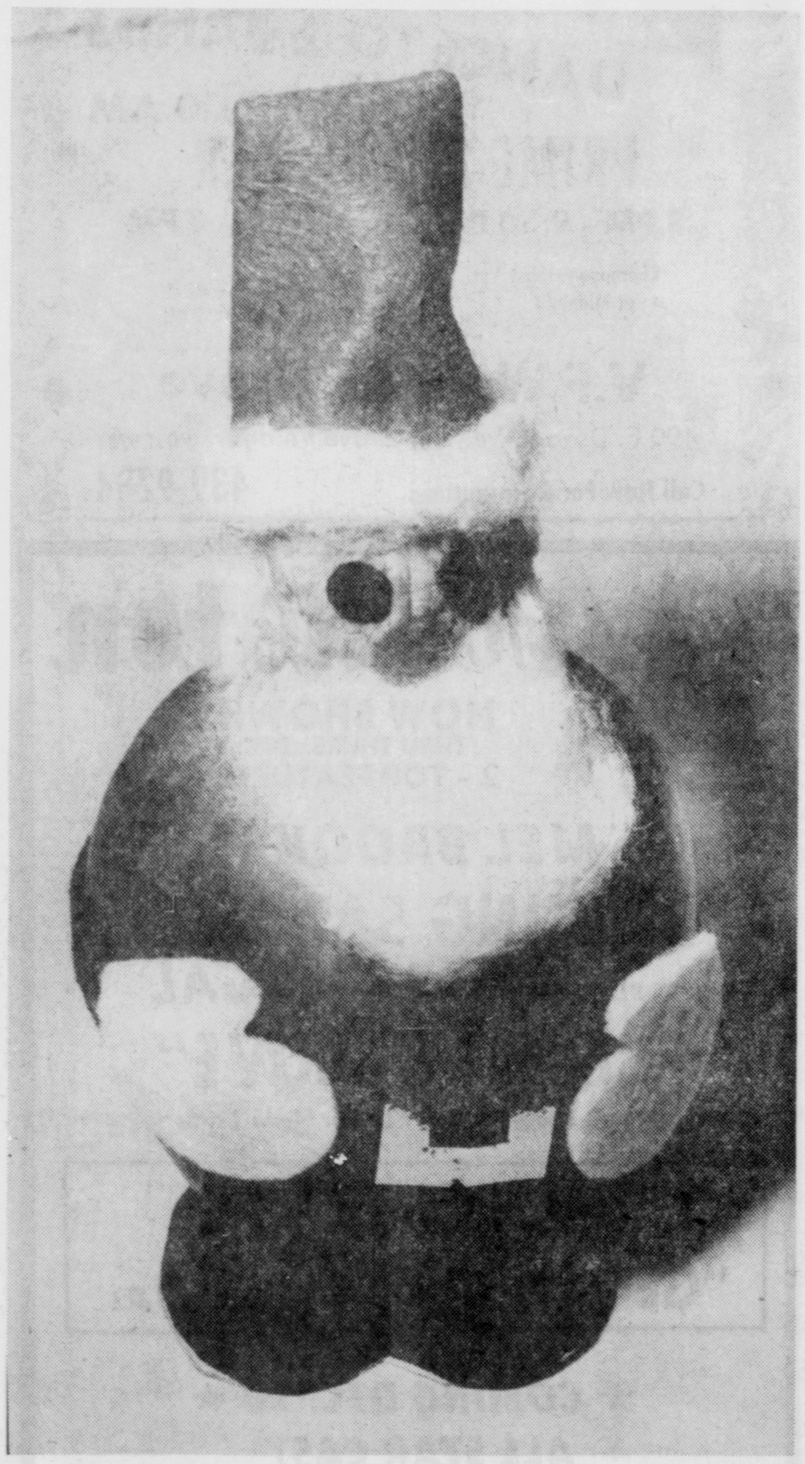
An interesting variation is to use a hand mirror with handle as the base and, with cardboard, papier mache and imagination, transform it into a stunning accessory for milady's dressing table.

From Connie Pavich comes this idea of a nice little gift to take to Grandma. Get the largest red apple you can find, encircle it with a felt or paper belt about a half inch wide, add a silver foil buckle. This is Santa's body.

Find a fairly soft spot in a large walnut and drive a toothpick into it. Use the toothpick to attach it to the top of the apple for the head. Cotton balls add a beard to the walnut head, a tassel to a cone-shaped hat of red construction paper. Cardboard feet are attached to the bottom of the apple with pins. Mittens cut from white felt are glued at each side of the belt to complete this whimsical apple-bellied elf.

For craft-happy children, there is no limit to the variety of media waiting to be explored, to the wealth of originality waiting to be released by a wave — or a working — of young hands.

Who knows? From stimulating, satisfying craft adventures such as these, future artists may be molded.



THIS SANTA IS both fruity and nutty. Junior craftsmen can easily put one together with apple body and walnut head. Cardboard, cotton and felt complete outfit, touched off by a belt buckle of silver foil.

PAPIER MACHE is a great craft medium for mini-artists at Countryside Center, Arlington Heights. They experiment with form and texture to create gifts of jewelry, decorated mirrors and angels like this one made by teacher Nancy McClure.

Christmas customs from many lands

The traditions of Christmas are among the most colorful and enduring of those of any season of the year, evolving over hundreds of years and throughout many countries and cultures.

The earliest traditions are obscured in the mists of time. The actual day of the birth of Jesus Christ is uncertain, and even the year remains doubtful. We cannot even trace when the custom of celebrating Christmas first started, and it does not seem to have been general until late in the 4th century.

In a new book, "The Christian Calendar," written by L. W. Cowie and John Cummer (G. & C. Merriam), the authors note that the earliest mention of Christmas as being on Dec. 25 is in a list of Roman bishops compiled in 354, which describes this date as "the day Christ was born in Bethlehem of Judea."

"THE STRONGEST reason for the choice of this date in the Western church was doubtless the desire to persuade people to replace pagan celebrations with Christian observances," the authors state. "In Rome the 25th of December was the feast of the Birth of the Unconquered Sun. The church replaced this with the celebration of the 'Sun of Righteousness' and the 'Light of the World.' "

The festivities accompanying Christmas probably originated with the Roman festival of Saturnalia, Dec. 17-19, honoring Saturn, god of the seed corn. It was the occasion for merriment, feasting and the exchange of presents.

As Christianity spread to northern Europe it met with other observances, such as the yule feast of the Norsemen, which lasted for 12 days. During this time log fires were burnt to assist the revival of the sun. Shrines and other sacred places were decorated with such greenery as holly, ivy and bay, and it was an occasion for feasting and drinking.

ACCORDING TO "The Christian Calendar," mistletoe was first used by the Druids to decorate their temples some 2,000 years before the birth of Christ. The Druids were a caste of priests among the Celts of ancient France, Britain and Ireland, and they thought of mistletoe as the fruit of the oak tree. It is actually a shrub that entwines itself around larger shrubs and trees.

Martin Luther is said to have originated the lighting of the Christmas tree with candles and Prince Albert, Queen Victoria's consort, popularized this in England as part of the Christmas celebrations. German immigrants brought the custom to the United States.

Among other Christmas traditions, the singing of Christmas carols from house to house dates back to the Middle Ages. Among old Christmas carols are "I Saw Three Ships Come Sailing By" and "The Holly and the Ivy." Perhaps the most popular carol ever written, "Silent Night, Holy Night," was composed by Franz Gruber and Joseph Mohr in Germany in 1818.

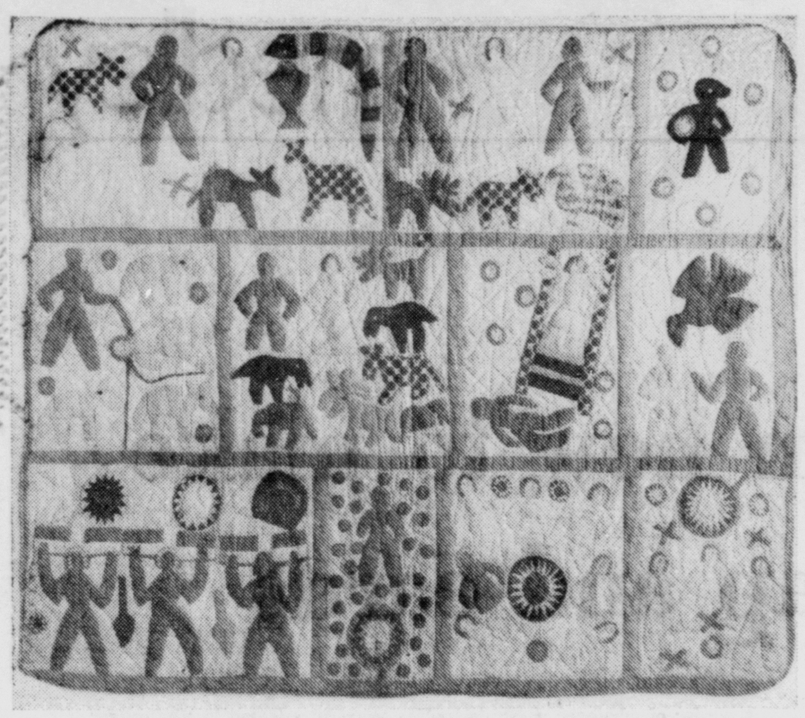
ALMOST EVERY country with a Christmas tradition has had some kind of beloved figure to mark the season. In England it's Father Christmas and in this country, of course, Santa Claus. Santa Claus evolved from the tradition of St. Nicholas brought to this country by the Dutch colonists. "The Christian Calendar" points out that there was a real Nicholas who was Bishop of Myra in Asia Minor in the 4th century and who became the patron saint of children.

The Christmas card, another tradition, began with the introduction of penny postage in England in 1840. For the first time Christmas greetings could be sent cheaply to distant friends and relatives. The first Christmas card is said to have been sent in 1843, and they rapidly became popular throughout the world.

There was a time when attempts were made to do away with Christmas traditions. During the 16th century the Protestant dislike of keeping feast days extended even to Christmas. The Puritans in England objected to the "drinking, roaring, healthing, dicing and carding" which accompanied the Christmas celebrations. Under their influence, Parliament in 1644 ordered Dec. 25 kept purely as a fast day and even ordered troops to check houses to make sure no Christmas dinners were being cooked.

THE REVIVAL of the celebration of Christmas and its development into a family festival owe much to the pen of Charles Dickens. For Dickens the joy of Christmas was connected with the memory of childhood.

"It is good to be children sometimes and never better than at Christmas when the mighty founder of Christianity was a child himself," he wrote. He felt that Christmas in the home and among the family was the supreme example of human good will.



Quilt-making nostalgic but it's practical too

with Grace Carolyn

Quilts and patchwork are the biggies in handiwork just now. You can't attend a church bazaar (the last one I visited was advertised in the newspaper — not this one — as a "bizarre") without seeing everything from potholders to bedspreads made of patchwork and quilted. This old-fashioned necessity-turned-craft is sweeping the country, taking the place of macrame, paper toile and that super-long lived fad of decoupage.

For a time it seemed the password was "If it stands still, decoupage it!" Then came corn husk dolls, ecology boxes, memorabilia shadow boxes and all sorts of little doodads made of a sort of basic flour and water dough, baked in the oven. What all these crafts have in common is the aura of old-time, an attempt to recapture a bit of a simple and gentler era.

At any rate, all these hobbies give the ladies something to work on during the months from one year's Holly Walk to the next year's Candy Cane Caper, and take up much of the time that otherwise might be spent at bridge or golf.

OF ALL THE do-it-yourself projects which have been popular, the quilting fad seems to be most practical. After one gets pretty good at mitering corners and stitching even straight rows on potholders, she can advance to a full-sized quilt to use as a coverlet or bedspread. Making a quilt will interest the whole family, for children like quilts. They like to see pieces and scraps of their own clothing made into the design, and they like to use them for covers, since they are soft and non-itchy. My kinds have always used our quilts until they became tattered shreds, both for warmth and security, while I appreciate their washing ease.

The "Cathedral Window" quilt which has been made by dozens of local ladies took prizes at several state fairs this past summer. This is an easy quilt to make, for it is stitched and folded and quilted into squares, then a brightly colored piece is applied to the top of the square, giving an effect of intricately interlocked pieces, but actually very simple to do. The instructions for this quilt have been made up into a detailed drawing and step-by-step "how to" by Irene Taylor, that good friend of antiquers and quilters. You may receive a copy of this by writing me, enclosing a stamped self addressed, large envelope.

THE "CATHEDRAL WINDOW" will be taken on my trip to Scandinavia next year, for I have promised a cousin in Sweden that I will show the ladies in the retirement home at which she is employed how to make the quilt, as they are always looking for something new in handiwork.

Shown in the picture is the famous "Bible Quilt" which is on display at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. It is appliqued with pictures from favorite Bible stories and is a fine early example of primitive American needlecraft. Quilts such as these are "unconscious art" at its best, indicative of an era when pastime was only legitimate if it served a useful function.

Up here in the boonies, the ladies have organized an evening quilting "bee," study and workshop. They intend to work on a favorite old pattern, all contributing to the piecing, then stretching it on a frame and quilting, finally donating the finished product to some local charity. The nostalgia craze has finally returned to the country, and now I have to get back to my quince preserves.

History atlas a great gift for those who can afford it

"ATLAS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION"
EDITED BY KENNETH NEBENZAHL
TEXT BY DON HIGGINBOTHAM
Rand McNally & Co. ($35.00)

If you have a history buff on your Christmas list, and money is no factor, this book could be the gift you are looking for.

For $35 ($50 for a deluxe edition and $100 for a genuine leather binding) you can give that very special friend a book on the American Revolution that should provide hours of fascinating reading.

You first should make sure your friend has a place to put a book that measures 11 inches by 14¾ inches.

The "Rand McNally Atlas of the American Revolution" is a beautifully prepared book that should appeal to both scholarly and lay audiences — with emphasis on the scholars.

THIS ATLAS IS an inspiring effort, telling the story of the American battle for independence with the help of priceless maps, many of which have not been reproduced since their original appearance nearly 200 years ago.

It's the collection of maps that really sets this book apart from others and makes it a valuable history source.

Every one of the 54 battle maps and "theater of war" maps in the book is an authentic reproduction of maps published in the 18th century by and for those fighting and watching the war. They are quite unlike modern maps in that in addition to geographic detail, colorful pictorial illustrations and labels were added to give the map a "story telling" quality.

Why did the editors put so much emphasis on the maps in this collection?

Maps were to the Revolutionary War what television was to the Vietnam War.

FIVE WEEKS after the date of a battle, you could buy a broadside map on the London streets. The speed was remarkable.

These maps usually were done by eyewitnesses and were highly pictorial with a great deal of detail on the position and movement of troops in battle.

People bought maps, and followed them closely, because they wanted to follow the progress of a friend or brother — he might be fighting on either side — or simply because they were interested in the war news.

The maps are the heart of this atlas, but the text — richly illustrated by full color and monochrome reproductions of contemporary-style paintings and drawings — could stand as a worthy book on its own.

Putting this atlas togethr was an ambitious project. If you are interested in this period of history, and you should be, I can recommend this book as a valuable addition to any library.

"WASHINGTON THE INDISPENSABLE MAN"
BY JAMES THOMAS FLEXNER
Little, Brown & Co., $12.50

"The Father of Our Country" lives in this fascinating book.

The fact that George Washington is revealed as a very fallible human being by this immensely talented writer makes this book a valuable addition to any collection.

You don't have to be a student of history to appreciate the way award-winning author James Thomas Flexner disentangles fact from fiction surrounding Washington.

Flexner actually has distilled his widely-acclaimed four volume biography "George Washington" (1973 National Book Award in Biography) into this concise volume of 423 pages, and he still is able to convey all facets of the man's character and career.

The book is rich with photographs and maps, and although you may get bogged

Innovative rock in Wizzard album

About 1972, the innovative British rock group The Move began to splinter with first the Electric Light Orchestra and then Wizzard being formed.

Both the new groups have continued to be as innovative as the old Move and each's most recent album is its best.

Roy Wood, creator and guiding light of Wizzard, has been acknowledged here before for his brilliance, although much of the rest of the world has ignored him. The xuw album, "Introducing Eddy and the Falcons" (United Artists records), demands the attention Wood has not been getting.

In the album Wood has absorbed almost every rock style from 1950 to 1964 and adopted those styles to his own new songs. While much of the album is parody, it is not a mocking parody but more a re-creation.

THREE SONGS have special appeal for me. They are "You Got Me Runnin'," which apes Bobby Vee down to the chirping female chorus; "Everyday I Wonder," which is a clever match for Del Shannon's "Runaway" even with the vibrato organ; and "Come Back Karen," in which Wood zeroes in on Paul Anka's "Diana" and gets Anka's vocal style down pat.

Elsewhere on the album, there are songs that sound like Phil Spector, Gene Vincent, Duane Eddy, Jerry Lee Lewis and Carl Perkins. Wood even apes the '70s rock bands trying to ape the '50s bands in "We're Gonna Rock 'N Roll Tonight."

Lovers of '50s rock owe it to themselves to hear this Wizzard album.

THE ELECTRIC Light Orchestra, meanwhile, has taken its fusion of rock and classical music ideas to the logical conclusion of a rock symphony. That symphony, "Eldorado" (also United Artists records), is one of the best fusions of rock and classical music that I have heard.

The music both soars and rocks. It relies heavily on the rock of the '60s with influences of the Beatles, Dylan and Chuck Berry evident. Writer and groupleader Jeff Lynne has a very adaptive voice, especially when he sings Dylan style.

The best songs are the "Eldorado" theme and the ballad "Can't Get It Out of My Head." The only song that doesn't really come off well is the Berryish rock-

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

er "Illusions In G Major." Most of the songs blend into each other, which aids the symphony idea.

THE FIFTH Dimension have come up with their most powerful album in several years in "Soul & Inspiration" (Bell records).

In addition to their famous soft harmonies (best here in the title song and "Hard Core Poetry"), the group has turned also to a grittier, more funk sound. Bill Withers' "Harlem," their new single, is the best example of this gutsier style.

The Fifth Dimension also have turned to three other producers in addition to their regular producer Bones Howe in a successful effort to develop somewhat of a new style. Both the production changes and choice of funkier material work well and the group should be on the verge of a new popularity.

ANOTHER popular soul group, Gladys Knight and the Pips, have taken the opposite step in its "I Feel a Song" album (Buddah records). Miss Knight remains one of music's best singers and stylists, but the overall album sound is very undistinguished this time because it is almost all soft ballads. No "Midnight Train To Georgia" wakes this album as it did their last.

Even so, three of the ballads are done exceptionally well. They are the title song (the single), "Love Finds Its Own Way" and the Neil Simon-Burt Bacharach song, "Seconds." Bacharach arranges and produces "Seconds." The live version of "The Way We Were" has its nice spots too.

DON McLEAN'S "Homeless Brother" (United Artists records) is one of the biggest disappointments of this season. Despite nine new songs and two well-known borrowed songs, McLean only makes the sparks fly occasionally.

As usual, many of the songs are done simply, even starkly. But it is more than that that makes the album seem unassuming to the point you say, "Okay who cares then?"

What is good about the album is his simple version of George Harrison's "Sunshine Life Fore Me"; the ballad "You Have Loved," which Helen Reddy recently recorded; parts of the lilting "La La Love You"; and his long narrative song "The Legend of Andrew McCrew," about the man who traveled for 50 years with a carnival after he died.

NOTES: Led Zeppelin is set to tour the U.S. mid-January through March wth a new album, "Physical Graffiti," to be released during the tour. Chicago dates are Jan. 21-23 at the stadium.

Contemporary Museum a holiday world for kids

Entr'acte

The Museum of Contemporary Art will turn into a playground for children over the holidays beginning Sunday. An exhibition of contemporary toys, a modular environment, family films and special performances will be presented daily through Jan. 4 as "Holiday Happenings."

A comprehensive selection of toys ranging from technological inventions to trendsetters, toys that are current fads or traditional favorites, will fill the museum's upper gallery. Featured in the exhibit will be the original "Monopoly" set and hundreds of other game boards it inspired.

An original collection of match box cars, train sets, patents of dolls and a giant erector set will also be on display. Stations in the exhibit area will provide space for children to play with many of the toys.

THE WALLS IN the museum will be lined with bright carnival banners painted by Snap Wyatt for Riverview Park. These large circus paintings are designed to depict the colorful and bizarre scenes of carnival life.

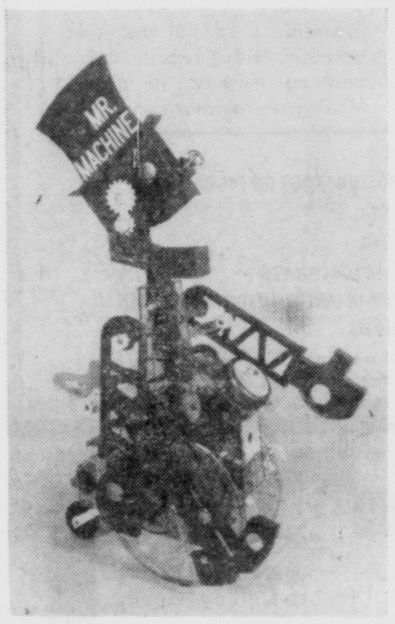
Giant cubes of plastic foam, ceiling and wall panels, flashing colors and different sounds will comprise the environment in the lower gallery.

Designed by CEMREL, a research institute in aesthetic education, "Space Place" provides children with materials and space to creatively construct an environment on their own.

Theater, dance, puppetry, mime and magic performers are scheduled daily through the festival. The Chicago Children's Choir and Barat Repertory Ballet will present the opening performances Sunday. Choruses from the Chicago School System will perform each noon during the first week. Seasonal music by Roosevelt University, Sinai City-Wide Youth Choir and the Tudor Singers add to the first week's festivities.

THE FESTIVAL is supported in part by a grant from the Illinois Arts Council, an agency of the state.

For more specific information on daily scheduled events, readers may call reader service, 394-2300, Ext. 252.



TOYS LIKE Mr. Machine will be available for children to play with at the Museum of Contemporary Art, 237 E. Ontario St., Chicago. Exhibit opens Sunday.

Night out

Where to celebrate New Year's Eve

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Has Christmas holiday spending put your budget into hock or do you have a big wad left to blow New Year's Eve? Either way, there are plenty of ways to celebrate for both big and small spenders and lots more in-between.

In fact many hotels and restaurants are taking inflation into consideration and offering more than one main top-flight package. Most people are willing to spend something . . . it just depends how much.

For those who can't afford an entire evening out, there's a way to mark the occasion with just a quiet dinner and a bottle of wine.

At midnight you can return home and watch everyone else welcome in 1975 down on State Street via television. Or you can drive down and join them yourselves. It won't cost you a thing except possibly a cold nose.

Of course, the cheapest way to welcome in the New Year is to buy your own champagne and steaks and leave the car in the garage altogether.

But some people are used to going out and look forward to an annual night on the town. Here's what's in store if that happens to be you.

The arrival of 1975 at the HYATT REGENCY O'HARE will be celebrated in three different places, the ROSEMONT BALLROOM, the BLUE MAX NIGHTCLUB and HUGO'S.

The most expensive route to travel is the Rosemont Ballroom where a champagne filet mignon dinner will be served and continuous dancing available to the WARREN COVINGTON ORCHESTRA and the PIED PIPERS. A real old-fashioned New Year's Eve celebration will follow complete with hats, noisemakers, balloons and streamers.

But the price is not old-fashioned. It's $45 per person. If it's any consolation, that does include all the drinks.

Singer KELLY GARRETT and DAPHNE DAVIS will bring in the New Year in the Blue Max with a special 11 p.m. show. The $17.50 per person includes three drinks or a bottle of champagne. There will also be a 1:30 a.m. show at the usual $5 cover charge.

Regular dining will be available at Hugo's with dancing available to the CHICO-RELLI TRIO until 2 a.m.

A choice of four champagne dinners priced between $11 for the filet mignon and $15 for lobster is being offered at THE GREENHOUSE in Palatine. There will be four dinner seatings: 5:30, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 p.m. In the lounge area the OSCAR LINDSAY TRIO will be featured.

The PICKWICK HOUSE RESTAURANT and SHOW LOUNGE, also in Palatine, is offering two means for welcoming in 1975.

One at $60 per couple includes unlimited cocktails, dinner, favors with music and comedy provided by the SOUNDS OF MUSIC.

Otherwise you can order off the regular menu and move to the show lounge where the TAMI NOVAK AFFAIR is being featured.

THE FOUR LADS will be in town New Year's Eve to entertain patrons at the TOP OF THE TOWERS as a part of a dinner-show package priced at $54.95 per couple.

As I already mentioned, DON KNOTTS is coming to ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE to open in "NORMAN IS THAT YOU?" with two opening night performances, 6 and 9:30, on New Year's Eve. The prices are $12.50 and $15 respectively.

The comedy "LAST OF THE RED HOT LOVERS" plus a champagne steak dinner is included in the special New Year's Eve package offered by the PUB DINNER PLAYHOUSE at the Elk Grove Village Holiday Inn. The price is $30 per couple.

The CHICAGO MARRIOTT HOTEL is offering its annual New Year's Eve package at last year's price. Festivities begin at 8 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom for a cost of $35 per person including unlimited cocktails, gourmet dinner and continuous entertainment by the combo COMMONWEALTH.

SCOTCH AND SIRLOIN in Schaumburg opened just in time to celebrate New Year's Eve. One can dine from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. off the regular menu or opt for a package plan that includes a champagne toast at midnight, favors and live entertainment later on.

The same holds true at the SEVEN EAGLES RESTAURANT in Des Plaines. Only in addition, there's the added choice of a deluxe seven-course dinner being offered at $25 per person.

The FORUM THEATER has scheduled special holiday performances with a dinner-theater package available on New Year's Eve for $20 per person. "THE GOOD DOCTOR" premieres in Chicago Dec. 19.

Right next door at the CANDLELIGHT DINNER PLAYHOUSE, there will be two performances on Dec. 31, an early curtain at 6 p.m. with dinner beginning at 4 p.m. priced at $25 per couple; and another at 9:30 p.m., dinner at 11:30 p.m., for $40 per couple.

EARL WRIGHTSON and LOIS HUNT will headline the New Year's Eve show at PHEASANT RUN PLAYHOUSE. The theater makes a departure from plays to supper club shows every holiday season. A team of magicians will appear on the bill with Wrightson and Miss Hunt. Two shows are being offered at $15 and $17.50 per person.

Also, a buffet dinner will take place in the New Orleans Ballroom in the St. Charles resort hotel that evening at $17.50 per person.

HENRICI'S STEAK 'N LOBSTER in Arlington Heights will offer its regular menu with no increase in prices. Live entertainment will also be featured in the lounge. It is the only restaurant I know where reservations are not necessary.

Forty-seven dollars per couple will buy you a complete dinner and New Year's Eve celebration at INDIAN LAKES COUNTRY CLUB with two bands featured, DENNIS ROSY AND THE UPPERCLASS and the MISTY DAWN III. Also, unlimited cocktails.

The CUTUPS will be featured at CARSON INN NORDIC HILLS where the price is $55 per couple. That also includes a champagne dinner, open bar and all the noisemakers you need for midnight fun-seekers.

For many of the packages this year, deposits are being required. You may call hotels and restaurants for additional information.

Art Institute shows work by Chicago area artists

An exhibit of work in all media by Chicago area artists will be on view in the Morton Wing of the Art Institute of Chicago beginning Saturday and continuing through Jan. 19.

This is the 75th annual such exhibition and includes the work of 93 artists selected from that submitted by some 1,400 entrants. That to be shown was picked last month.

Serving as jurors were Richard Artschwager, New York City artist; Suzanne Delehanty, director of the Institute of Contemporary Art at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; and Anne Rorimer, the Chicago Art Institute's associate curator of 20th Century painting and sculpture.

Of the exhibition, A. James Speyer, who organized it, says: "Although in no way an ultimate judgment, the exhibition offers a provocative collection of original and accomplished work to illustrate the high level of art-making activity in this community."

down a little at times by military strategy, this is more than offset by insight into a very influential man.

YOU SEE WASHINGTON as a man who made mistakes, whose passions sometimes got the better of his self-control, whose achievements in war and in peace were hard-won and not always successfully sustained.

Washington was for 24 years (from his election as commander in chief to his death) the most conspicuous man in the United States. For 17 of those years, comprising the war, the Constitutional Convention and the Presidency, he was from day to day actively engaged in great events. Before all that, his role in the French and Indian War made him internationally known when he was hardly 20 years of age.

Through all this, you see Washington as a very warm human being, a man who deeply regretted the fact he never had any children of his own. He was a man who was very popular with women, and a man who had a deep love for his home. You feel his yearning to return to Mount Vernon to lead an ordinary life but understand his sense of obligation and devotion to the new country.

THE AMERICAN nation was born in revolution and war, and never was a story of that period, or the people involved, more timely than it is today on the eve of the bicentennial of independence.

Our 200th birthday is a time to take stock of where we have been and where we are going.

—Bob Frisk

"CHAPLIN"
BY ROGER MANVELL
Little, Brown & Company, $6.95

At least a dozen books have been written on the life and work of Charlie Chaplin. "Chaplin" by Roger Manvell is simply another one.

Most people think of Chaplin as that funny "little fella" with the baggy pants, size 13 shoes and short, fuzzy moustache. They think of him as a master of slapstick, as a performer who with one twitch of the face could make an audience roar. They remember him in "The Great Dictator," where nothing about his speech lambasting the Nazis can be taken as funny.

They know little, however, about Charlie the man. Unfortunately, Manvell's book won't help them find out.

"Charlie Chaplin is a Cinderella of the twentieth century" is the way Manvell opens his 225-page biography. He tells the story of how a boy born impoverished in London in 1889 climbs the ladder to become one of the most successful pioneers of the silent cinema. He finishes by comparing Chaplin to Charles Dickens.

CHAPLIN'S LIFE is as full of sorrow as it is full of success. He found fame and money as he moved from one film company to another, trying to perfect his art. But he also found tragedy in the failures of three of his four marriages and in 1952 when an ungrateful United States refused to let him come back into the country after a trip abroad.

Manvell chronicles these incidents in Chaplin's life, but he does so as if writing a history book. The anecdotes so appreciated in a biography are missing. The author takes much of his information on Chaplin from other biographers and from Chaplin's autobiography and presents the story in dull, textbook-like form, including footnotes. There are no comments from Chaplin himself, still living a quiet life in Corsair, Switzerland.

Some good things can be said about the book. For the film buff, especially the Keystone variety, Manvell's detailed description of Chaplin's work should be enlightening. It is not surprising the author went into such great detail on both minor and major films; he is a film critic and former director of the British Film Academy. And the book does bring Chaplin's life story up to date, at least to 1972.

BUT TO THE average reader, the book is dry, at some points even boring. Those greedy for some human insights into the personality of the little tramp will not find them here.

From stock market to art market

Duck stamp prints are collectibles

by FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

One of the most collectible items on the art market is the enlarged color print of the annual federal duck hunting stamp, and the rarity of the 1975-76 print will be the decision of one man.

He is Alfred F. King III, who hunts ducks along the Eastern seaboard when he is not running Sportsman's Edge, Ltd., the only art gallery in the United States devoted solely to contemporary wildlife originals and sporting prints. King gave up a seat on the New York Stock Exchange after he opened his gallery three years ago and has no regrets.

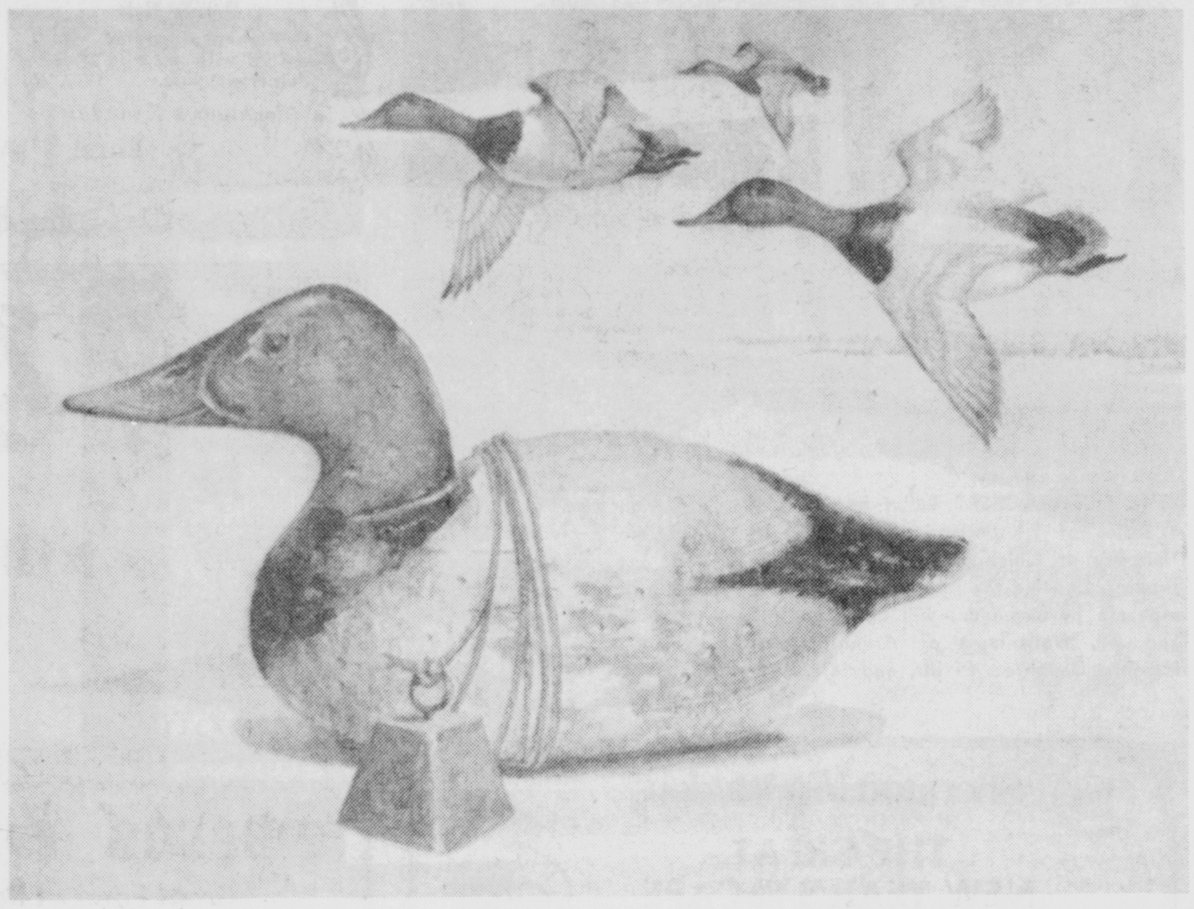
"I kept the seat until last July just in case I wanted to go back, but I didn't want to go — not the way the market is now," the youthful dealer said as he sorted prints in his East Side Manhattan showrooms. "The art market is good. My sales are up and I'm doing well."

KING IS THE exclusive representative of artist James P. Fisher of Oxford, Pa., who won the 40th annual contest for the $5 migratory wildfowl stamp design in November. The contest is considered the superbowl of art competitions, even though it carries no monetary prize, because the champion stands to make a profit of about $100,000 from the sale of limited edition signed and numbered prints.

"We frame the prints along with an actual duck stamp and sell to collectors for about $100 each," King said. "The print of the 1971 duck stamp already is worth $1,500 on the market. It would cost about $51,000 to buy the whole series of prints issued since the government began in 1934 to bring out a different duck stamp each year. It's the only federal revenue stamp that changes annually."

King will decide just how many copies of Fisher's picture of a canvas back duck decoy with three live ducks flying in the background will be printed. There must be more than enough to satisfy all collectors of duck prints, estimated at more than 600, but not so many that the rarity of the print would be diminished. Some collectors consider any edition of more than 600 prints as not limited.

FISHER, 62, did not develop his talents as "the decoy painter" until he retired from business a few years ago. It was King who urged him to enter the stamp competition even though a picture of a decoy had never before been selected. There were 268 entries and Fisher's design was the choice of all but one of five judges. The stamp produces more than $10 million in revenue annually.



THIS DUCK DECOY with live ducks flying in background is the design by artist James P. Fisher that won the 40th annual $5 migratory wildfowl stamp design competition in November. Enlarged prints of it now will become a collector's item as there's a new stamp each year. Fisher is a businessman turned painter.

Sportsman's Edge displays a wide range of wildlife and sporting art including portrayals of African big game, race horses, deep sea fish, hunting dogs, wildfowl in habitat, sailing ships and scenes of fishing and hunting. Sculpture in bronze and wood depict wildlife and thoroughbreds. A new category is views of famous golf courses by specialist Arthur Weaver.

"They're appealing to golfers and I've seen a whole wall of them in some country club clubhouses," King said. "It's not the greatest art in the world, but it has its public. I may get into skiing and tennis art next."

PRINTS RUN FROM about $50 each unframed. Paintings range from $675 for atmospheric field and stream watercolors by Chet Reneson to $20,000 for a magnificent oil of a charging elephant by David Shepherd and $30,000 for one of Montague Dawson's masterpiece clipper ship paintings. Bronze sculptures begin at $700 and run into the thousands.

King has 800 buying customers including actor Henry Fonda, a clutch of DuPonts, Roosevelts, and Mellons, and others of an ilk who can pay $4,000 for a portrait of their favorite dog. The catalogue of Sportsman's Edge's inventory is a collector's item in itself and no giveaway. It is a lavishly illustrated book of high fidelity color reproductions that sells for $4.75.

"I believe in being first class all the way," King said. "I won't let a print go through with even the most minor imperfections. I use museum standards of framing. And I go to the best printers, American printers. European printers aren't setting the standards any more, even though their reputation lingers on."

Frank Loesser's dream comes true

by JACK GAVER

In the world of make believe, in the theater, dreams do come true. Where else?

And the dream that Jo Sullivan Loesser Osborn shared with her first husband, the late Frank Loesser, songwriter extraordinaire, will be realized in London next Tuesday with the premiere of a stage musical titled "Hans Christian Andersen."

Moviegoers of the 1950s will remember a film of that title that starred Danny Kaye and had an eight-song Loesser score with such memorable numbers as "Anywhere I Wander," "Thumbellina," and "Wonderful Copenhagen" to help tell the story of the famous 19th Century Danish writer of fairy tales.

"Frank tried for years to get the stage rights to his material from Samuel Goldwyn, who produced the motion picture," Mrs. Osborn said. "He wanted to use the songs in a stage musical about Andersen. Frank died in 1969 without getting these rights.

"ABOUT A YEAR ago, Goldwyn, in one of the last decisions before his death, gave us the rights."

"Us" is Frank Music Corp., and Frank Music is Jo Sullivan Loesser Osborn, president, a genuine power in a major firm that embraces every type of music, including the performance rights to some of the most prestigious theater musicals and a wide variety of rock and other modern types.

"Frank started the firm in 1949 primarily for the purpose of developing new creative talents," Mrs. Osborn said, "and we are still following that policy."

Goldwyn's release of the Loesser songs for the movie almost coincided with an inquiry from London about the possibility of doing a stage musical built around Loesser's score.

"Meanwhile, I had been digging into Frank's voluminous files and found three numbers he had written for the movie that were not used," Mrs. Osborn said. "We also decided to include in the stage score three of his songs from other sources that fitted the mood of a stage musical about Andersen."

WHATEVER ITS FATE, London's "Hans Christian Andersen" is first class all the way. The producer is Harold Fielding, Britain's premier producer of musicals. The star is Tommy Steele as Andersen, probably the most popular variety musical singer in his field. The book is by Beverly Cross, who wrote Steele's tremendously successful show of a few years ago, "Half a Sixpence," which also was a Broadway hit.

"The last I heard," Mrs. Osborn said, "was that the advance sale was well over the 200,000-pound $480,000 mark. We play London's famous Palladium, a large variety house that has never before been used for musical comedy.

"THE STORY in the musical, by the way, is not at all like that in the film. It covers a number of years in Andersen's life in which he attains fame and fortune, and an influence in his success is the Swedish singing star, Jenny Lind."

Mrs. Osborn knows about singing stars. She was one. She came out of Mound City, Ill., and had little trouble in making her way in the New York musical world.

She achieved her peak as the leading lady of one of the great musicals, the almost operatic "The Most Happy Fella" by Loesser in 1956. Three years later she married Loesser and retired from the stage to become the mother of Hannah and Emily, now 11 and 9 years old, respectively.

Loesser's untimely death turned her into a businesswoman, and in 1973 she married Jack Osborn, head of an industrial design firm who likes the theater but has nothing whatever to do with Frank Music.

Mrs. Osborn's life would seem to be serene at the moment, but she does have a problem. She must be in London Dec. 17 for the "Hans Christian Andersen" opening. She doesn't think she can be back here for the Dec. 19 premiere of the revival of a great Loesser hit, "Where's Charley?" at the Circle in the Square Uptown. In any event, Frank Music will collect.

Acting fever

After all those decades as a distinguished director for stage, screen and television, septuagenarian John Houseman seems to have contracted quite a case of acting fever. Last year he won Hollywood's Oscar as best supporting actor for his role in "The Paper Chase." It was only his second movie role, the first having been 10 years earlier. No such hiatus this time. He has an important role in "Three Days of the Condor," a suspense movie about the C.I.A. starring Robert Redford. (UPI

Homemade decoration on White House tree

Scraps and paper adorn this year's White House Christmas tree.

"We tried to use an old-fashioned theme," First Lady Betty Ford said Tuesday. "There is a sort of tradition in our family of having an old-fashioned family Christmas and we brought it into the White House."

Tradition wasn't the only consideration in decorating the 19½ foot fir tree in the Blue Room. "Anyone reading the papers" knows the economy is not in the best shape, she said, adding, "Increasing prices have certainly affected my budget."

The tree is decorated completely with homemade ornaments such as quilt balls and other decorations made from sewing basket scraps, paper and string.

There were only a few commercial decorations. The ceiling-high tree was designed to use less than 100 watts of electricity. (UPI)

Waycinden Park women disburse club proceeds

Christmas spirit is running high for Waycinden Park Woman's Club, which has been playing Santa Claus to numerous local organizations. The Des Plaines women again realized almost $3,000 from their annual fall luncheon-fashion show, and these proceeds are now being distributed.

Clearbrook House, in Arlington Heights, a full-time community living facility for the adult handicapped, is a major recipient. Waycinden women provided funds for the dining tables and chairs there.

Money to purchase a hospital bed, night stand and dresser was donated to Graceland Home in Des Plaines, a favorite philanthropy of the clubwomen. Again District 59 schools, Forest View Booster Club, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Little League teams and many other local groups benefited from proceeds of the club's one fund-raising activity of the year.

WAYCINDEN PARK Woman's Club includes many other activities. Recently the women were joined by their husbands for an evening of dining and theater at Old Orchard Country Club. Previous to that, the women visited the Nationwide Art Center for a discussion of art and instruction on how to effectively place art work in the home. Nationwide Art awarded an original oil painting to member Sue Spire.

The club will hold its traditional Christmas party this week with holiday goodies, Christmas carols and a gift exchange.

Merry Christmas

"Merry Christmas!" the most popular yule message for centuries, has quietly been given the ax by American business.

On both Christmas cards and postage meter stamp imprints business firms have abandoned "Merry Christmas" for the more generalized "Seasons Greetings."

This information comes from Pitney Bowes Co., of Stamford, Conn., which dominates the postage meter business, and from Fifth Avenue Card Shops of New York, which sell bulk orders of Christmas cards to many business firms.

However, "Merry Christmas" still retains its overwhelming popularity with the public, said a spokesman for Hallmark, one of the largest producers of greeting cards.

Pitney Bowes executives discovered, somewhat to their surprise, that only 2 per cent of its 600,000 firms who ordered holiday imprints for their postage measures used "Merry Christmas" as the message to put on their holiday mail. More than 60 per cent used "Season's Greetings," said Pitney Bowes vice president Robert J. Pascal.

"Happy Holidays" was the next most popular message, followed by "Holiday Greetings" or just plain "Greetings."

The fact that "Season's Greetings" is suitable for both Christmas and the Jewish Chanukah festival undoubtedly is one cause of the trend. A major manufacturer said, "We use 'Season's Greetings' because it doesn't apply to any special religious festival or group."

Fern Christmas Tree

To make this plaque, you'll need a rectangular cardboard or foam tray (like the kind from the meat department), baby rick rack (red), white and red felt, a small fern (pressed), large sequins, a 12-inch piece of yarn and glue.

Cut a piece of white felt to cover the bottom (inside of the tray. Glue in place. Carefully spread glue on the fern and stick to the felt. One easy way is to drop small blobs of white glue on the fern and spread it gently with a toothpick.

Cut out and glue on a red felt tree base. Glue the rick rack around the edge of the tray. Glue sequin "ornaments" to the fern tree. Poke two holes near the top of the plate. Tie on a yarn hanger.

Betty Friedan says women won't give up jobs to men

Feminist Betty Friedan warned this week that working women will refuse to go along with any suggestion that they should give up their jobs to men during the recession.

Mrs. Friedan, whose "Feminine Mystique" of 1963 is generally credited with triggering the modern women's movement and the battle against sex discrimination in jobs, predicted in a speech at the Washington, D.C., Journalism Center that in the present economic crisis some people will just "assume that women and blacks would be the first to lose their jobs."

"With unemployment growing, layoffs beginning, inflation, recession . . . you could say forget it," she said. But, she asked "Can 35 million American women go back home again? No. They can't."

She said women will refuse to quit their jobs as they did in the Depression of the '30s because their income now has become essential to their families and she predicted this trend will continue.

"THE SHARING OF the economic responsibility . . . of the home is going to become more and more something that is adhered to by women and men both in time of economic trouble," she said. "Not only by the young who are beginning their life that way but also by the middle-aged and the old."

Mrs. Friedan added that the only place she had noticed any "backlash" to force women out of jobs was in the academic community. "And as a matter of fact," she added, "the backlash that you might expect, it seems to me, isn't going to happen . . ."

She said the change in the economic structure of the home and the office was part of "stage two" of the women's movement — "a restructuring of institutions."

Stage one, she said, was "a very profound revolution in sexual roles — not sex class warfare."

She also predicted that the Communist countries of the world soon will be confronted by the women's movement and that the Roman Catholic church will bow to the "militancy" of nuns and former nuns to open the priesthood to women.

Fenugreek edible; it's used in curry

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I have a couple of pounds of fenugreek seeds for making herb tea. After brewing the tea, I tasted the seed as it was soft and had a fine flavor. Can't find out if the seeds are safe to eat. Understand the plant is from the clover family and has nutritive value, but I don't know whether for animals or humans. Can you help? — Clara Bell

The books I have on edible plants and seeds make no mention of it, but Webster's Unabridged Dictionary says it's a leguminous annual herb with an aromatic seed which is used in making curry and so on. The contents of two of our boxes of curry (different brands) include fenugreek. All I can say is that, with curry used so much around here, I must have a lot of fenugreek in me.

Dear Dorothy: Do you know what to do about a slipping mattress? At least twice a week I have to adjust the mattress that has slipped across the box spring. Many tell me they have this problem but have never found a solution. — Erva B. Surbeck

While furniture people use special techniques, the old home remedies do a fine job. You can either put a thin piece of rubber, cut to size, between mattress and spring or try a muslin sheet. One simple way with no expense involved is to put three plastic garment bags crossways on the spring and the mattress over it. I'm inclined to believe you'll have no slipping with any of these home remedies.

Dear Dorothy: You wrote that you always bake an extra meat loaf for the freezer. Might it not be better to freeze it unbaked? — Jane Reich

No. Bake, then freeze. It's a cinch to warm up, and the experts say the quality is better if done this way.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Round two tonight in Mid-Suburban chase

A Herald staff report

A lot of basketball coaches insist that the second week of the conference schedule is the critical one. Even though the season stretches well into February, the results of the second week often set the tone for the team's success or lack of it.

The reasoning goes like this: if a team lost the first week, another defeat might seal their fate. But a victory will knot the record at 1-1 and perhaps send them on their way. On the other hand, if a team comes into the second week at 1-0, they have the chance to prove to themselves and others that they're for real. And 2-0 is a nice springboard.

The crucial second week is here in the Mid-Suburban League. Tonight at 8:00 six MSL squads will take 1-0 records into battle. There could be just two teams that come away from tonight's action at 2-0. Or maybe as many as five.

Headlining the league play will be area-ranked Prospect (1-0) hosting promising Buffalo Grove (0-1), and Wheeling (0-1) at defending champion Conant (0-1). Other games will feature Palatine (1-0) at Schaumburg (0-1), Arlington (1-0) at Rolling Meadows (0-1), Hersey (1-0) at Forest View (1-0), and Fremd (1-0) at Elk Grove (0-1).

Three MSL teams will be in nonconference action on Saturday. Palatine will entertain Maine North, Fremd will host Crystal Lake, and Forest View will welcome Elgin-Larkin.

Here are capsule previews of the weekend's games:

BUFFALO GROVE AT PROSPECT

Time to dust off last year's scoreboard, erase a few numbers and prepare for chapter three of the Prospect-Buffalo Grove rivalry scheduled for the Prospect fieldhouse tonight.

The characters are all pretty much the same as last year. In their initial meeting a season ago the Knights romped to an 82-30 decision and it was 66-47 in favor of Prospect the second time around.

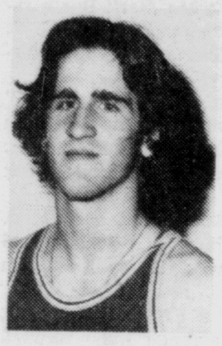
So is there really that much sense in doing it all over again?

This is the question that Prospect coach Bill Slayton wants to eliminate from the minds of his charges, while Bison mentor Paul Grady is hoping to drum it into his corps. The answer is "yes" for both sides but for differing reasons.

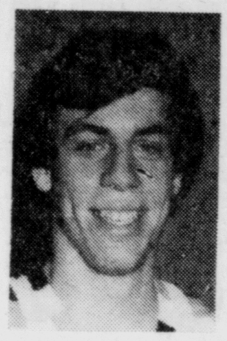
"When you beat a team pretty soundly a couple of times, the tendency is to write them off if you meet again, especially when most of the same personnel are involved on both sides," Slayton pointed out. "And this is exactly the substance that upsets are made from."

Countered Grady: "If we're ever going to start really believing in ourselves, it will be by becoming competitive against teams of proven excellence. Prospect is of this caliber so we have the opportunity to achieve something Friday night."

The Buffalo Grove coach isn't disillusioned by the prospect of playing Prospect. "Defensively, I just don't know how we can match up against them . . . they are strong at every spot. We're going to have to trim our turnovers to the bone, too, an extremely tough task in light of our lack of maturity and their pressure tactics."



John Hogan



Tony Donile

At the same time Grady has been pleased with some aspects of the Bison game, not the least of which is an improvement already over last year's total number of wins for the season.

A big key to the direction this game takes lies in two tall players, Grove's 6-foot-7 sophomore whiz Brian Allsmiller and Prospect's 6-9 veteran pivotman Paul Withey.

Allsmiller has been an awesome offensive weapon in the Bison attack, averaging nearly 30 points a game, and striking from outside as effectively as underneath. "You have to be impressed with him," observed Slayton. "We know he's the key to their offense but knowing it and doing something about it are two separate things."

In the last Knight-Bison clash Allsmiller was limited to nine points, but keying on him defensively allowed others a better look at the basket. "We can't forget about everyone else at the expense of stopping him," added Slayton. "That's never a good tactic."

The guests, meanwhile, could have their hands full anyway trying to defense Whithey, now on the rebound from an earlier ankle injury. "He's supposed to be healthy now," sighed Grady, "and that's what worries me."

Withey started to come back into his own last Friday, collecting 10 points and 11 boards as the Knights turned back a solid Wheeling team, 86-70. His teammates eased the return by providing plenty of support, specifically Al Black with a 33-point outburst.

In addition to Withey and Black, Mike Quade, Doug Bonthron and Dave Mann will round out the Prospect starting five. For the visitors, in addition to Allsmiller, the starters are expected to be Tim Stonerook, George Bastable, Jeff Schuster and Mike Ledna.

The Knights carry a 2-2 overall record into the contest while the Bison are 4-3.

WHEELING AT CONANT

It's a good thing varsity experience isn't a prerequisite for playing time in the Wheeling-Conant showdown slated for the Cougar hardwood tonight.

Otherwise, the action a spectator could expect to see might be a one-on-one contest or a game of H-O-R-S-E.

Both these clubs are coming off great seasons (Conant won the conference title last year and Wheeling was a sectional contender) but any resemblance to their current lineups and those of 1973-74 is almost incidental.

Graduation cleared both rosters pretty thoroughly and forced Cougar head man Dick Redlinger and Wildcat helmsman Ted Ecker into what is commonly known as "a rebuilding year." An idea of how the construction is proceeding will be illustrated tonight.

The hosts do have one youngster back with varsity experience. And Ecker is concerned about him, too. "From our reports (Ron) Sulaski is a pretty complete player and if we hope to stop Conant we'll have to begin by stopping him.

"Our main concern will be stopping him on the offensive boards," Ecker continued. "He's looked extremely effective there and to make matters more diffi-

SHOOTING STAR. Al Black of Prospect opened in league play last Friday with a 33-point explosion at Wheeling. The Knight senior hit 15 baskets in an 86-70 victory over the host Wildcats. Touted Prospect entertains Buffalo Grove tonight with a preliminary game at 6:30.

Sports reading . . . and blushing

THOUGHTS WITH the morning coffee:

Sports books, once a joke in the publishing field, have improved tremendously in recent years.

There was a time when the only writing you could find on sports was some amateurish attempt by Joe Superstar to tell his story to all his adoring fans.

The story may have been interesting to a degree, but the execution was pathetically weak. Today, some excellent writers have plunged into the business and the public is rewarded with some fine books on a variety of sports subjects.

It's only natural that the market is flooded by sports books at Christmas time. This year is no exception.

What lies between the covers of these books? Here are excerpts from some interesting recent publications:

"Once there was a man who went to Heaven, where he was met by Saint Peter and taken to a gigantic football stadium for a game. Down on the field along the sidelines was a fat old man in a baseball cap, running back and forth, jumping up and down and gesturing hysterically.

" 'Who is that madman?' the new arrival asked Saint Peter.

" 'That's God,' Saint Peter replied. 'But he thinks he's Woody Hayes.' " — An Ohio fable —From "Buckeye, A Study of Coach Woody Hayes and the Ohio State Football Machine," by Robert Vare (Harper's Magazine Press).

"A nut calling himself The Clawman not only has his wife in a mask, too, but also has Clawchildren and Clawdog."

—From "Whatever Happened to Gorgeous George?" by Joe Jares (Prentice-Hall).

"So now I'm 31 years old and I'm living with my mother in her place, and I ain't got no hopes at all for the future . . . Sure, I'd like to get a fresh start, but what can I do? I'm gonna walk in someplace and say, 'Hey, I'm Pete Fennicks, and I played right field on the world championship Little League team of 1954, and now I want a good job . . . They'll call some white dude with a butterfly net and they'll say, "Hey, get this cat outta here, he's crazy.' " —From "Destiny's Darlings," by Marty Ralbovsky (Hawthorn).

"Larry Stakenas, a 41-year-old cost estimator from Chicago. Stakenas, a Chicago Bear fan, has a seat in the end zone. 'One of my dreams is to get a ball, any kind of ball,' he says. Once, after a point-after-touchdown, the football came nearby and Stakenas dove over the wall — and right into a tuba."

—From "God Save the Players — The Funny, Crazy, Sometimes Violent World of Sports Fans," by Neil Offen (Playboy Press).

' "A country without idols is nothing," Roberto would say. 'I send out twenty-thousand autographed pictures a year to the kids. I feel proud when a kid asks me for my autograph. I do it because baseball has given me a good life. We do not have to stand in the street with a heavy drill going rat-tat-tat-tat. We come to a park in a clean shirt. We smell from perfume."

—From "Who Was Roberto? A Biography of Roberto Clemente," by Phil Musick (Doubleday).

"I've covered everything there is to cover on a newspaper, but I like sports best. To begin with, it's a better life. It's an easier life. In sports everything happens in front of you. The thing about politicians is that it's happening in rooms. People don't see murders. They go to murder trials and hear people talk about it. But I write best about action.

"When I was a young guy they sent me to Washington to cover the White House. I did it for a while, but the town bored me and I left. I can't stand politicians. They lie more than football coaches. I had to be transferred out of there. I did a radio column too but I didn't like it. It was the loneliest kind of life. Sportswriting is best and that's what I am — a sportswriter. I can't think of myself as being anything else."

—Jimmy Cannon, from "No Cheering in the Press Box," recorded and edited by Jerome Holtzman (Holt, Rinehart and Winston).

RED FACES: College basketball players were asked to single out their most embarrassing moments in a recent survey.

Some of the responses are worthy of a blush or two.

"I once scored two baskets in the wrong goal in the same game," said Glenn Hansen of Louisiana State.

Ken Jurcisin of Newark Engineering recalled:

"With 17 seconds left in a game I yelled out several times not to foul anyone. One second later I fouled out."

Tom Mosley of Columbus remembered an incident involving his father:

"While playing basketball my dad, who was the coach, started to send me into the game. As I was walking past him to report in, he wanted to tell me something. He reached out to grab me and instead grabbed my trunks and pulled them down."

"In high school I raced downcourt once for a layup and made the basket," said Morris Rivers of North Carolina State. "I heard a ripping sound at the time but didn't think anything of it. A few seconds later, one of my teammates made me aware of the split in my shorts. I ran off the court to the locker room without waiting for a sub to come in."

Jim Bocinsky of DePaul remembered the time he was driving in for a short shot. "The guy defending me put out his hand to stop me," he recalled. "I turned in a different direction, and all of a sudden, I didn't have any trunks. He pulled them right off me."

Keith Morris of George Washington University picked the wrong player to tangle with in a high school game.

"I accidentally hurt this player," Morris said, "and his girl friend came after me with an umbrella."

Players also were asked what they would do if they were a coach.

"Always keep my bags packed," said Pete Haas of Florida Tech.

"Get a lot of technicals," said Alvan Adams of Oklahoma.

"I would win the NCAA title eight out of 10 years," theorized Minnesota's Pete Gilcud.

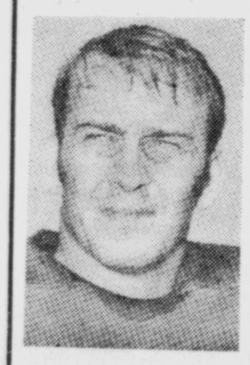
"Then I'd quit and become an official."

Finally, the players were asked for the living American who most influenced their lives, and why.

Brian Vriesman of Hope College didn't hesitate.

"My six-foot-tall mother," he said. "Without her, I'd never have been able to make any basketball team."

Winners meet for big prize



Jim Grabowski

Fourteen names . . . and one big winner.

The weekly winners in Paddock Publications' "Pick The Winners" football contest will gather at the Brass Rail Restaurant in Arlington Heights Saturday to determine the grand prize winner.

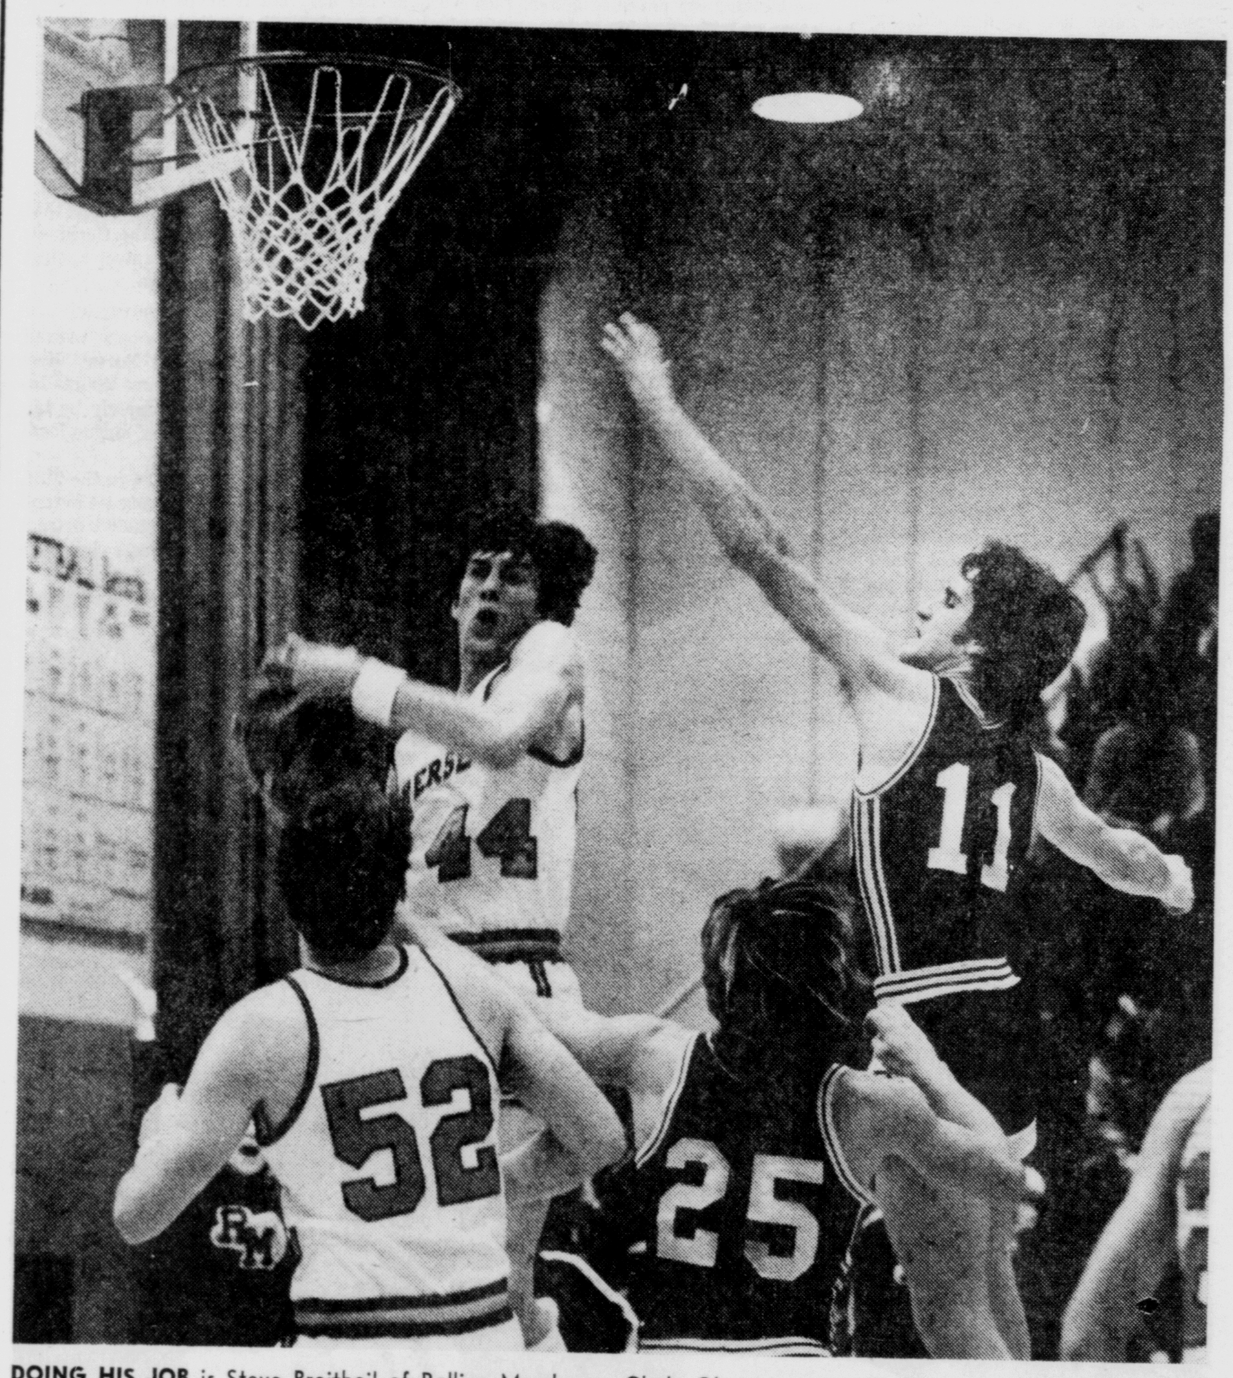
A Rose Bowl trip for two will be the prize for one of the winners in the Herald football contest that featured 20 high school, college and professional games each week.

The luncheon will begin at 1 p.m. at the Brass Rail with Jim Grabowski, who starred in the Rose Bowl for the University of Illinois and later played professionally in Green Bay and Chicago, serving as the guest speaker.

Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will be the master of ceremonies for the luncheon.

The weekly winners who are eligible for the Rose Bowl trip are:

John Dunn (Mount Prospect), Maeve Koleno (Arlington Heights), Anne Doone (Hoffman Estates), Paul Lopata (Des Plaines), Marie Guska (Arlington Heights), Al Otto (Elk Grove Village), Mike Guilford (Arlington Heights), Jack Cutlip (Arlington Heights), Joe Vitton (Arlington Heights), Rick Holan (Mount Prospect), Paul McQuillen (Mount Prospect), Don Skinner (Arlington Heights), C. Wilkes (Mount Prospect), and Robert Anderson (Mount Prospect).



DOING HIS JOB is Steve Breitbeil of Rolling Meadows (25), who keeps Hersey's 6-5 center Rich Madison away from the rebound. But meanwhile, another 6-5 Huskie is ferociously pulling down the basketball. That's Clyde Glass, a junior who had 14 rebounds to go with Madison's 15 boards, and who also notched 31 points in Hersey's 59-58 win Friday. Trying to do something about Glass is Mustang John Hogan (11).

St. Viator plays two; Notre Dame visits tonight for league battle

by MIKE KLEIN

Some quick thoughts on three teams who nearly chewed more than they could swallow:

St. Patrick nipped Holy Cross by one point. St. Joseph nipped Notre Dame by two. St. Francis deSales nipped Carmel by three.

And then there was Marist which swarmed upon St. Viator to escape Arlington Heights as 21-point winner.

Those are your leftovers from last weekend's first action in East Suburban Catholic basketball. Those first two results turned up some eyebrows. There's no verdict yet for deSales or Carmel, although each has a losing overall record.

As for Marist's little escapade at Oakton and Dryden, well . . . it hurt.

But what's the overall periscope reading?

"I think it means that Holy Cross, Notre Dame and we are right in there," said Viator coach Steve Antrim, admitting that St. Patrick and Marist are a few hoops better than everyone else.

But catching the defending champions isn't impossible, as upstart Holy Cross clearly demonstrated. "Pat's is huge but they've got a weakness they didn't have last year," said Antrim. "They don't handle the ball well.

"They've got 6-4 and 6-5 guards but last year they had that Pete Willert who was the whole show every night." All-Stater Emmett McGovern, who's still around, showed some class, too.

The Lions return to their ESCC schedule at eight o'clock tonight, a home game with Notre Dame that will be broadcast on WWMM-FM. Then it's off to Loyola Academy on Saturday evening for a non-conference game and the Lions' first road appearance.

Notre Dame's Dons, almost forever under coach Ralph Hinger, are victors over Deerfield and Loyola. They've lost three, most notably by just 11 points to strong rebounding Evanston.

No tears were shed this week at Viator, despite that huge loss to Marist. That's because the Lions rebounded the next evening with sound baksetball and a seven point non-conference victory over Rolling Meadows.

"We'd lost two in a row and stunk the place up," Antrim said, referring to the 20-point lead they squandered into defeat against Palatine and then the ESCC opener.

"But we came back to play well against Meadows. That was a big one,

Lions, Dons on WM radio

One of the suburban area's top sports rivalries will be featured tonight on WWMM-FM.

When St. Viator and Notre Dame collide in any sport, it attracts attention. Tonight, the Lions and Dons meet in basketball in the St. Viator gym.

WM Sports Director Howard Balson will call the play-by-play and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will give the color commentary with air time 8 p.m. at 92.7 FM.

Mid-Suburban cage race continues cult, he can shoot inside with either hand."

Another matter for the 'Cat mentor to ponder is the placement of a 6-1 guard in the scheme of things. A senior, and one of only two on the Wheeling squad with any varsity exposure at all last year, Mike Hallstrom was earlier relegated to a bench position when Steve Rymer earned the point role in Ecker's one-guard starting lineup.

Against a strong Lockport team last Saturday, however, Hallstrom had a one-time opportunity to start, and proceeded to flick in nine of 16 shots, mostly outsiders, and collect nine assists while helping the 'Cats to an impressive 65-50 triumph.

"He did a great job out there," said Ecker. "When he wasn't scoring, he was getting the ball into someone else to score and the team, especially the defense, looked much more fluid than it has in the past. He has earned a starting position on the team without a doubt."

So Hallstrom will join 5-9 Rymer, 6-10 Steve Criss, 6-5 Keith Schildt and 6-4½ Ed Kruk — newcomers all — as Wheeling tackles the Cougars.

Conant faced the very real possibility of kissing their season good-bye at halftime of the East Leyden game. Trailing 46-12, it is hard to look forward to playing basketball, ever again.

"We learned a lot from the East Leyden game," Redlinger said. "They beat us by 34 points in the first half but only by three in the second. We outscored them 18-14 in the third quarter. And their coach never does any substituting.

"The kids needed to see that they could slow down the game and make it work for them. I told them after the game that they had proven to themselves they could play basketball. Now, instead of being down on themselves, they're looking forward to playing Wheeling."

Wheeling can look forward to some pressure on their guards tonight. The Conant scouting report on the Wheeling-Prospect game lists an item that says, "Wheeling folded under fullcourt pressure."

"We don't have the speed to press full court," Redlinger said, "but we plan to do something along those lines.

"We have to do something about their size. We know Criss isn't an outside shooter so that means we'll have to keep him away from the basket. He'll kill us on the offensive boards if we let him.

"If we play ball, relax and think a little bit out there, we'll be okay."

PALATINE AT SCHAUMBURG

The Palatine Pirates and the Schaumburg Saxons look very much alike. They both wear a ferocious, gritty expression and they both brandish a death-dealing saber. Tonight the Pirates will tie up at the Saxons' shore and try to do mortal basketball damage to their foe. The Saxons will attempt to do likewise.

The similarities don't end at the tip of the swords. Both Palatine and Schaumburg are off to good starts in the young season. The Pirates are 4-1 following their opening win in MSL play last week against Elk Grove. The Saxons are 4-2 despite a loss to Fremd.

And both squads have so far relied on two top scorers to carry the load for them. Palatine's 6-5 senior Mark Mara comes into the game with a 26-point average and 6-5 sophomore teammate Kevin McKenna owns a 20-point average after his first five varsity games.

Schaumburg's top man is junior Jon McIlraith, a 6-3 forward who is producing points at a rate of 17.5 per game. Saxon junior forward Ed Chmiel has contributed offensively, too, with a 12.5 average.

Palatine coach Ron Finfrock is happy with the development of Mara and McKenna, but he wants to see some scoring improvement from the rest of his Pirates.

"We've been trying to get the ball to our post men," said the coach. "They must be fed. (Jim) Maycan and (Bill) Stevenson are good, strong people inside."

Stevenson, a 6-5 senior and Maycan, another senior who stands 6-3, are both good jumpers and they get their share of the rebounds. But Finfrock is striving for balanced scoring.

Palatine's guard situation — already tenuous — received a shock Saturday when point man Tom Iuorio injured his ankle against Warren. But the injury wasn't serious, and happily, substitute Chris Burrus performed admirably in Iuorio's place.

Schaumburg coach Joe Breault was heatened by his team's victory over West Leyden Saturday, coming after the 13-point loss to Fremd.

"We just had a terrible first quarter against Fremd," said the Saxon coach. "Other than that, we played them even."

But the next night the Saxons got back on the track with a 51-47 win as 6-3 center Marty Golub tallied 14 points and McIlraith had 20.

"We did a nice job of moving the ball," said Breault. "We took better shots and we handled the pressure better. Plus we came up with some big plays — we made some key rebounds and we made the big defensive plays."

But against Palatine, the Saxons will face their toughest test of the year. "They're a big team," said Breault. "If we can't challenge under the boards, we'll be in trouble. That's where it counts."

Joining Golub, Chmiel, and McIlraith will be senior guards Ron Geels and Bob Viviano, who Breault called his "stabilizing force."

"The guards have held their own," said the coach. "We're strong at the guard spots."

ARLINGTON AT ROLLING MEADOWS

Prior to the MSL season, a matchup of Rolling Meadows' Bill Kiley and Jerry DeSimone of Arlington could have been termed a battle of franchises.

But neither the highly-touted 6-foot-8 Kiley (knee sprain) nor catalyst DeSimone (mononucleosis) will be on the floor when the two clubs collide tonight.

Both teams have accepted the fact that these two sparkplugs might not be ready until the Christmas tournaments and have done quite well in their absence.

"We'd be a very nice-sized ball club if we had him," Rolling Meadows head man Ken Arnesonsaid of Kiley. "He was just getting over an ankle sprain when his knee went, even though he was wearing a leg brace."

"We miss his leadership," head coach George Zigman said of DeSimone, his flashy senior guard. "We've still remained pretty balanced in both scoring and rebounding. Some of our other kids have really come through."

Arlington will carry a 4-1 overall record into the Mustang gym against 3-3 Meadows. Without their stars' heavy artillery, the teams have relied on scattergun scoring, rebounding and impressive team play.

At Meadows, Arneson can't help but be enthused about the play of forward John Hogan and guard Steve Breitbeil. Hogan has poured through 24 points in each of his last two games while Breitbeil has clicked on a remarkable 52 per cent average from the floor for the season.

"They're doing everything," Arneson said. "Comparing them over the same period last year, they're not only shooting better, but they're rebounding more, fouling less and cutting their turnovers in half."

The one-two punch paces the club in scoring. Hogan owns a lofty 17.1 average and Breitbeil hovers over 14. Center Scott Green (9.8) and forward Tom Holl (8.8) complement the balanced Mustang attack.

Arlington's scoring burder has also been shared eqully among starters John Yeazel, Terry Donahue, Denny Gaare, Jim Grandt and Mike Fogel.

But the Cardinals' most successful weapon has been its tenacious full-court press which has forced the opposition into a running game.

"It's worked very well for us," Zigman noted. "Not only does it keep pressure on the ball, but it keeps our kids sharp and moving all the time. You can't afford to relax when you're pressing."

Zigman reports that Yeazel is still hobbled by a bruised ankle suffered against Conant last week, but should be ready to go tonight.

While Hogan's hot streak and Breitbeil's all-round play give Arlington something to worry about, Arneson warns that his team must board with the Cardinals and retreat on defense to protect against the Cards' fast-break offense.

HERSEY AT FOREST VIEW

They won't be talking about overall records when Hersey and Forest View clash tonight on the Falcons' court. Instead, the game can legitimately be billed as an early showdown of league leaders.

Although both clubs are 1-0 in the MSL standings, Forest View stands 1-4 overall and Hersey 2-4. Still, it shouldn't detract from the vast improvements by each team since the season was launched.

"I feel we played our best two games last weekend," Forest View head coach Ted Wissen said. "We had enough poise to come back against Buffalo Grove (a 57-55 triumph) and we had a generally good effort against Elgin (an 83-74 defeat)."

Wissen is planning a shift in starting personnel tonight when Mark Russo returns to last year's familiar position at guard and Dave Ennes moves in at forward.

"Mark is more at home at guard," Wissen admitted after penciling Russo in the front line during the first five games. "He can handle the position and I think it may help settle him down a bit.

"With Dave (6-foot-1) at a forward, we'll have a little more quickness and that also gives us depth on the bench with Neil (Schmidt) ready to help out."

Russo leads the Falcons in scoring with a 15-point average while forward Tony Donile has contributed 12.2, center Len Beyers 11.2 and guard Van McLeod, 7.8.

Donile, who enjoyed his best all-round game against Elgin, paces the club in rebounding with 40 while Beyers has hauled down 35.

Hersey coach Roger Steingraber will be forced to juggle his lineup tonight if 6-5 center Rich Madison isn't over a minor illness. If the big senior is out of action, it leaves either 6-5 junior Clyde Glass or 6-4 junior Tom Burzak in the pivot.

Glass is Hersey's top scorer (19.5) average) going into the game and Steingraber figures Clyde will face some kind of special defense.

"I think they use a matchup-type of zone," said the Huskies' coach. "There will be some kind of special coverage on Clyde since he's our only outside threat."

Hersey's head man is impressed by the Falcons' credentials. "They've had a lot of success coming up the ranks. I believe this particular group of seniors was undefeated as freshmen and they've lost maybe four or five games all through school."

Forest View's quickness concerns Steingraber — "They're quicker than we are" — and the Huskie coach is worried about the Falcons' zone defense.

"They use a 2-2-1 full court press," said the coach. "We'll have to struggle to get the ball out. We've been working on it in practice."

If Madison isn't ready to play, Steve Spaccarelli will be at one forward and Tom Fry and Mark Knuttel will be at the guards for Hersey.

FREMD AT ELK GROVE

Elk Grove moves back into the big, bad world of Mid-Suburban League basketball tonight against visiting Fremd and Bill Parmentier, the Elk Grove coach, if he had his druthers, would probably choose to stay out of the circuit for as long as possible.

"Our non-conference record has been unreal," Parmentier said. "I'm not sure but I don't think there were too many teams out of the league that beat us last year." (The Grens were actually 8-5 against a very stiff non-league card.)

"But we sure have a helluva time in the league."

Elk Grove's latest foray outside the MSL earned them a 71-66 win over visiting North Chicago, a victory that came on the heels of a 62-57 loss to MSL rival Palatine the previous evening.

"It's hard to compare North Chicago to like to say they are better than anybody around here but I don't really know that.

"I'd just like to get into the win column in the league," Parmentier continued. "You always want to take that first league game, and missing like we did at Palatine really hurt."

Something Elk Grove missed at Palatine that they didn't against North Chicago was free throws. While the Pirates were making 12 of 13 freebies in the second half, Elk Grove could manage only 11 the entire game. They reversed the trend against North Chicago and hit 14 of 17 in the fourth quarter alone.

"The most satisfying thing about beating North Chicago was the team effort. We had two kids, (George) Jarosch and (Mark) Staddler, who hadn't played before and went in and did a really nice job.

"We played 10 kids and got a lot out of every one of them. That's what we're looking for against Fremd.

"They have a nice, little press that I'm hoping won't bother our guards. They're aggressive everywhere, play good defense and have better overall team quickness.

"This is one team, though," Parmentier said, "that won't have a lot more size than we do. We oughta be able to hold our own on the boards.

"But, look, they're 4-1 so they're going to be tough."

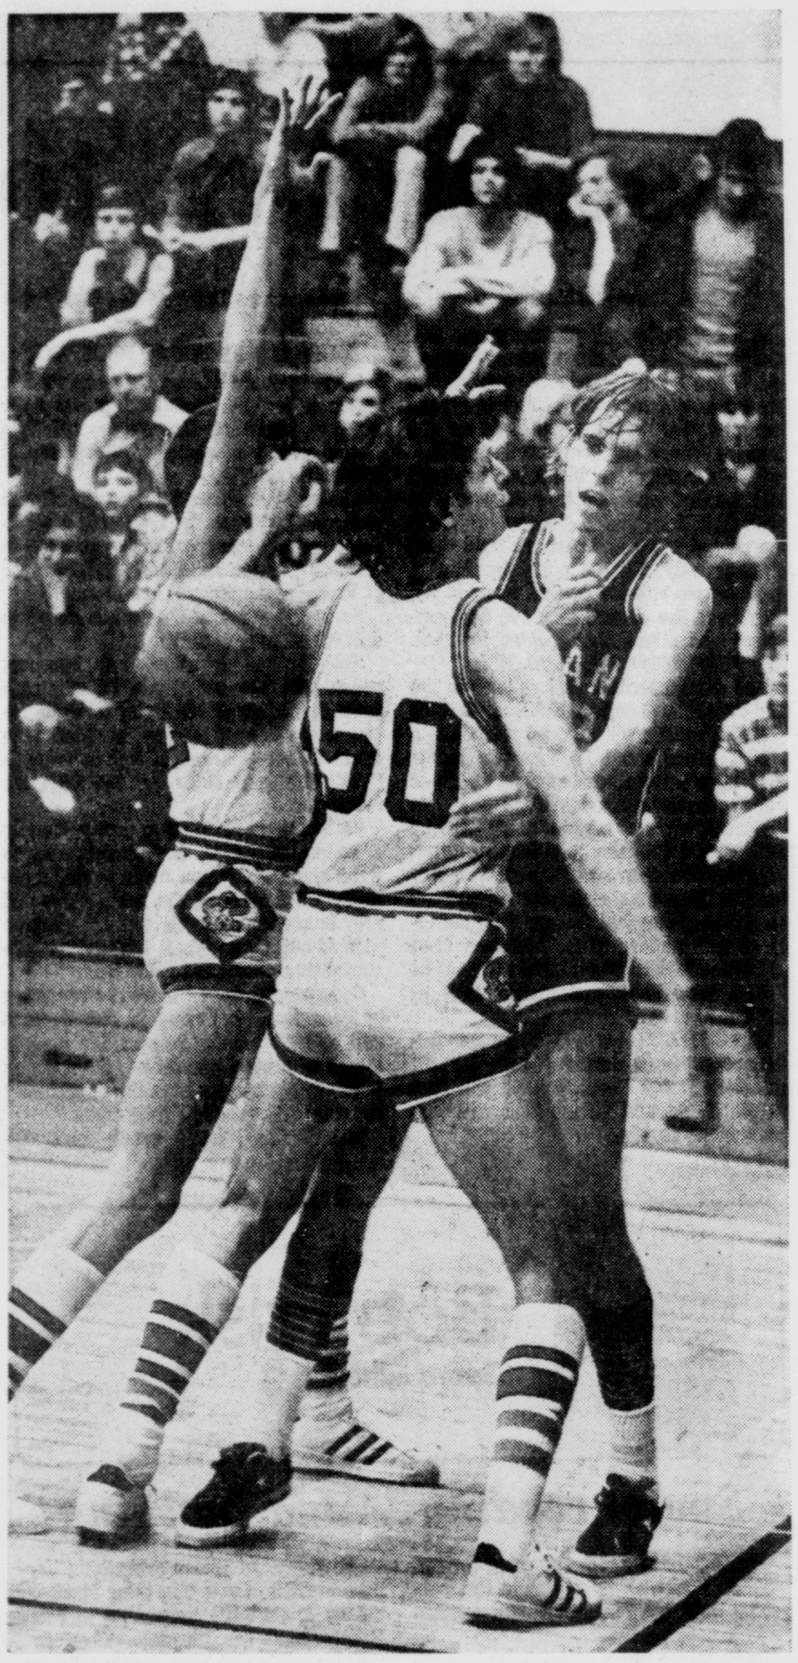
Fremd's only loss was to Willowbrook, a team that had a talented backcourt. "It will be a good test for our guards," Said Leon Kasuboski, Fremd's head coach. He was referring to Elk Grove's potent 1-2 punch of outside shooters, Greg Kelley and Joe Parmentier.

The Vikings don't depend on anyone in particular as all the starters have been in double figures at one time or another. Enjoying themselves last weekend were Jim Recher and Tim Gross, Fremd's starting forwards. Recher poured in 37 and Gross 32 in the two-game sweep.

This is the second double weekend for Fremd. The Vikings will have Crystal Lake at home Saturday. "If we play well, we can win two," Said Kasuboske. "If we play average, we might win one and if we play very poorly, we won't win any."

Starting in the backcourt will be Ken Hanks and Kevin Lavin. Paul Gillette will be at center.

After this weekend, the Vikings will know just how good they can be.



FENCED IN. Rigid defensive tactics by Arlington's Denny Gaare and Terry Donahue (50) foil a pass intended for Conant's Ron Sulaski. The Cougar forward went scoreless in the first half but hit 14 in the final two periods although Arlington prevailed 69-44. (Photo by Jay Needleman)

Frosh basketball tourney begins Monday at Hersey

Hersey will host its seventh annual freshman basketball tournament beginning Monday and you can be certain that Maine South will attend.

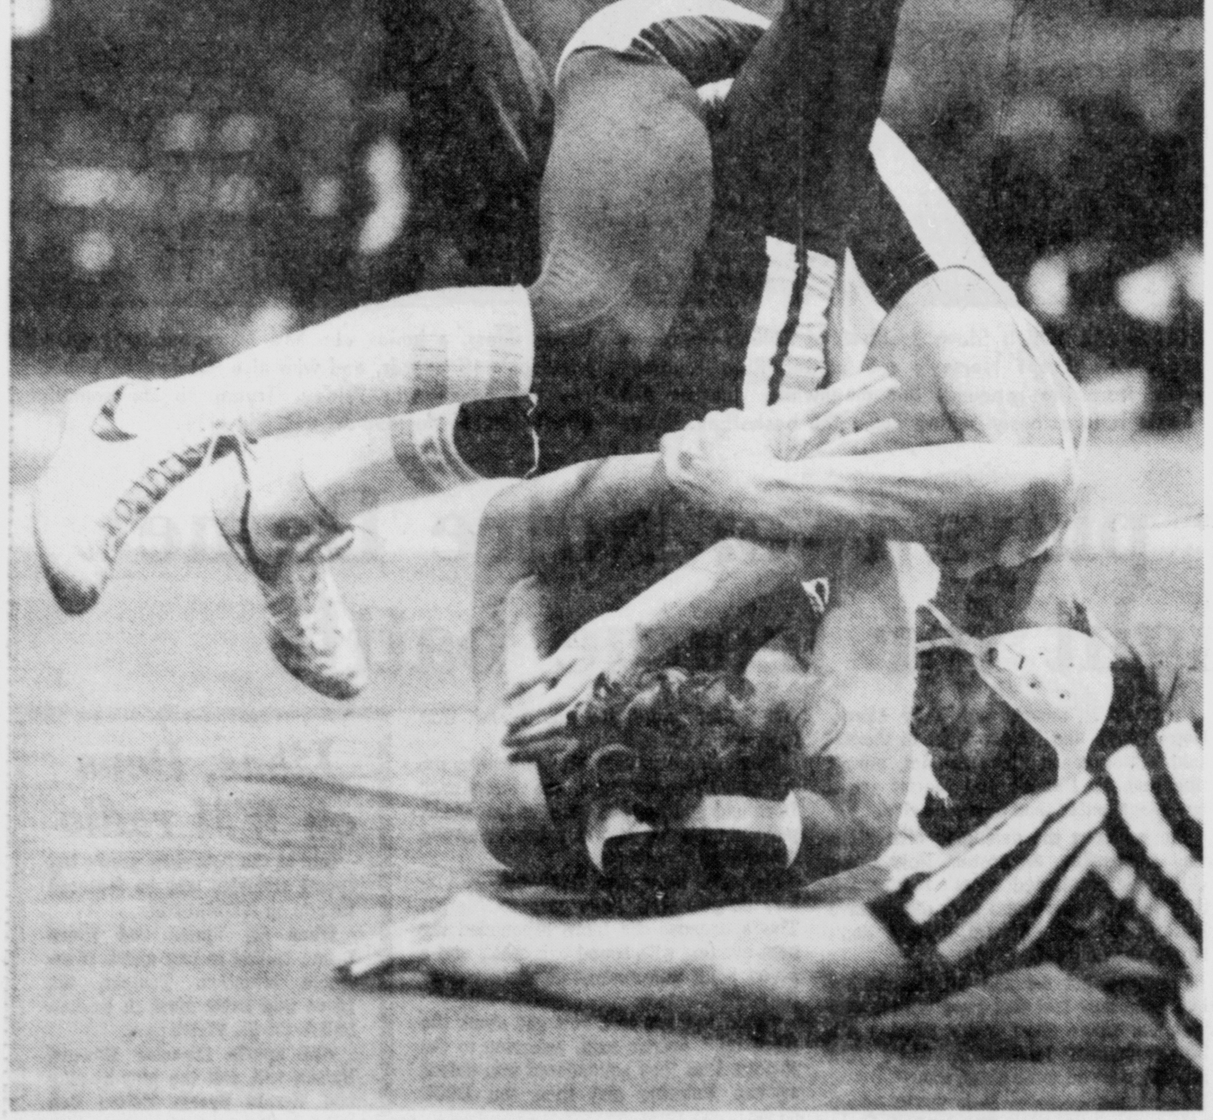
The Maine South frosh are the defending champions of the Hersey invite. In fact the Hawks have won the tourney three years in a row and five of the last six. This year they will be facing the challenge of seven other teams — Maine West, Deerfield, Barrington, Mundelein, Schaumburg, Elk Grove, and Hersey.

Monday's action will get under way at 7 p.m. in the Hersey gym when Deerfield and Elk Grove battle. Hersey and Mundelein will square off at approximately 8:30 in the nightcap.

On Tuesday evening, at the same times, Maine South will meet Schaumburg and Maine West will face Barrington. On Wednesday night, the winners of the upper bracket will play at 7 p.m. and the winners of the lower bracket will collide at 8:30.

The third-place game and the championship contest will be held Monday, Dec. 23 at 7 p.m. and at 8:30, respectively.

Tickets for each night's action will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.



PIN UP. Schaumburg's Terry Ruddy comes close to earning a fall over Cole Simeon of Fremd while turning him over in their 112-pound fray. Simeon fended off the veteran state contender well enough to avoid a pin and Ruddy had to settle for a 11-0 decision while his team was losing to the Vikings, 23-22. (Photo by Jim Frost)

BUFFALO GROVE SPIKER Carol Perley punches a shot against Conant Wednesday night. The Bison, behind the steady play of Perley and Michelle Smithern, won the match in three games on their home court, 15-6, 8-15, 15-5. Since the meet was between different divisional teams, it won't count in the final standings.

MAKING A FINE RETURN is Buffalo Grove's Michelle Smithern during a volleyball meet with visiting Conant Wednesday. Smithern, who excelled on defense, and teammate Carol Perley, who was outstanding as a spiker, helped lead the Bison to victory in the 'A' meet, 15-6, 8-15, 15-5.

Assignments get tougher for Hawks; Oakton visits

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Although they have lost seven games, Harper's basketball Hawks may not face their toughest opponent until they meet Oakton College Saturday night at St. Viator at 7:30.

The Hawks' latest defeat came Tuesday at the hands of Lake County. A defeat that was speeded by a bizarre six point play the Lancers received after the teams had contended on even terms for most of the game.

Playing on even terms with Oakton will require Harper's best effort of the season. The Raiders are 7-1 with a single loss of 88-87 to Triton in a game head coach Tom Jorndt said, "We didn't shoot real well in that game and they beat us on the boards by 20 rebounds."

Jorndt may have more raw talent on his club than some of the four year colleges in the state. His big catch of the recruiting season was Maine South's all-stater, Jerry Jones. Jones is 6-3 and has been starting for Oakton at one of the forward slots.

Jorndt also has the luxury of picking from the three Sanders brothers, a trio of jumpers from Evanston who have all seen time on the floor together at one time or the other. Roy is a sophomore and the only brother to be a regular starter. Ray and Reggie both go 6-3 while Ray, with a 33 inch vertical liftoff, is the best jumper on the team.

Playing the point in Oakton's 1-2-2 offense is Tony Reibel, a gifted athlete who plays for the Park Ridge American Legion baseball team in the summer. Reibel has been with Jorndt for two years and the Raider coach regards him as the most important player on the team.

"Tony is steady and almost mistake proof," Jorndt said. "You need somebody very consistent at the point guard of our offense or else the ball will never get over to the wings and the offense just won't go. Tony's been doing the job for me for two years now."

The forward Jorndt most wants to get the ball from Reibel is Dan Welter, at 6-5 the biggest player on the team, and a 23.6 point per game scorer last year. He's only a point below that this year while snapping off 15 rebounds a game.

Oakton's fifth starter is Tom Florentine.

"Everybody on this team is a good basketball player," Jorndt said, "and everybody can shoot. We've got a very offensive ballclub. Our defense has leaked a little but if we can fix it up to the level of our offense we're going to be tough.

"I think we're going to be able to run on Harper," Jorndt continued. "Also, they are basically a two man show with (Mike) Millner and (Chris) Mielke. If we can shut off those two I think we'll handle them.

"(Tim) Holland may be able to help a little, he's the only player on that team that can jump with our best, but I don't think they've shown anybody who can pick up the load.

"We really respect Millner. We clobbered them at our place last year but when we played there he almost beat us single-handedly. We don't want that sort of thing to happen again.

"They're a 1-7 team, sure," Jorndt concluded, "but they've lost several games by less than five points. I think they've just been having some tough luck and are capable of beating just about anybody, including Oakton."

Meadows aims for top after impressive win

Rolling Meadows became a real contender for the South Division crown in volleyball with an impressive victory over Hoffman Estates Wednesday night in Mid-Suburban Conference play.

The Mustangs' 15-8, 15-0 decision over the hosting Hawks was the only divisional meet of the night. It hiked the winners' record to 3-1 and dropped Hoffman's mark to 2-2.

In other 'A' meets involving crossover action, Elk Grove defeated Palatine and Buffalo Grove outlasted Conant.

Behind the outstanding spiking of Carol Perley and the defensive work of Michelle Smithern, the Bison stopped the Cougars, 15-6, 8-15, 15-5.

Elk Grove handled Palatine, 15-9, 15-10.

In 'B' play, Palatine stopped the Grove, 8-15, 15-6, 15-3; Buffalo Grove beat Conant, 15-12, 11-15, 16-14; and Rolling Meadows posted identical 15-7 scores to best Hoffman Estates.

Butterfingers Unitas

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Unitas holds many National Football League passing records, but he also holds one mark he's not too proud of. Unitas' 95 career fumbles are the most ever in the NFL.

Milton Richman

Proud brother talks about Hall-of-Famer

NEW YORK — He is a stocky man, with broad straight-back shoulders and sharply chiseled features that suddenly turn soft when he laughs and immediately reminds you of somebody you feel you know, or maybe knew once, but somehow can't place at the moment.

Possibly that's because Philip Agganis bears so much of a resemblance to his late brother, Harry Agganis.

The people in New England used to call Harry Agganis "The Golden Greek," first when he was operating as a T-formation quarterback for Boston University and later on when he was belting home runs for the Boston Red Sox.

Harry Agganis had everything going for him, good looks, fine physique and enormous popularity. He looked like another Jackie Jensen, another Sam Chapman, one of those extraordinarily blessed athletes who star in college football, then jump to professional, baseball and do equally well.

The Red Sox gave the big left-handed hitting long-baller out of Lynn, Mass., a $60,000 bonus and he was in the process of paying them back 10-fold when he developed viral pneumonia and died from a massive pulmonary embolism in 1955 at 25.

On Tuesday evening, Harry Agganis was inducted into the National Football Hall of Fame posthumously and his brother, Philip, who works for General Electric, came down from his home in Hamilton, Mass., to stand in for and receive the framed scroll that normally would have gone to his kid brother.

Before the awards ceremony, silver-haired, 55-year-old Philip Agganis found himself in the same room with many other football's Hall of Famers, the same room through which President Ford, a one-time University of Michigan center himself, would shortly enter.

Philip Agganis didn't know any of the celebrities in the room. People kept clustering all around the Bear Bryants, the Barney Pooles and the Elroy "Crazy Legs" Hirsches, but they left Philip Agganis pretty much alone. That didn't distress him at all. His mind was mostly on his brother anyway.

"I'm not a drinking man," he said, smiling, and holding a glass of vodka and lime juice in his hand, "but this is my second one. I'm not going to finish it, though, because I want to remember everything about this evening, every single thing.

"We were five brothers, and Harry and I were very close. He loved football and was drafted by Paul Brown of the Cleveland Browns, but he felt he could last longer in baseball. I remember how Sammy Baugh used to be his favorite quarterback. But what I remember most about my brother is the love he had for his mother and his family.

"I was with him just before he died in the hospital. He thought he was making good progress. He grasped my hand and said to me, "I'm coming along fine . . .' "

The words were coming somewhat harder for Philip Agganis now and his eyes began getting misty. He didn't seem to wish to talk much anymore.

During the awards ceremony in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria, the 10 new members were officially ushered into the Hall of Fame, Philip Agganis drawing a warm hand when he stood up to receive a framed scroll in behalf of his brother.

HARRY AGGANIS

He sat down again and listened to them induct the nine others, John Ferraro, Crazy Legs Hirsch, Botchy Koch, Mal Kutner, Jim Parker, Barney Poole, Marchy Schwartz, Billy Vessels and Bill Murray.

He listened some more as George Connor, the former Holy Cross and Notre Dame tackle and linebacker, introduced previous Hall of Famers in the audience . . . Bill Dudley . . . Cliff Battles . . . Buddy Young . . . Marshall Goldberg . . . Leon Hart . . . Brud Holland . . . Whitey Wistert . . . Doak Walker . . . Bobby Layne . . . and Ken Strong.

Later, Philip Agganis broke into a smile as President Ford told some amusing football stories, and laughed along with all the others when Bob Hope followed with some of his jokes.

"I'm going right from here to Washington to organize Wilbur Mills' next car pool," Hope cracked. "They tell me his car was going down the street 80 miles an hour, and when a cop stopped it and said to Wilbur 'Who's driving?' Wilbur said, "I dunno, we're all in the back seat dancing!"

When the program was over and the affair was about to break up, Philip Agganis shook hands with those around him and told them how much he had enjoyed it.

He was among the last to leave the dais. When he did, he had a good, tight hold on the scroll he was carrying in his right hand.

St. Viator prepares for doubleheader weekend

especially for our heads."

Notre Dame and Loyola offer Antrim the unenviable task of outcoaching two men, Notre Dame's Hinger and Loyola's Bill Gleason, who rank among Illinois' most respected prep coaches.

"When you play against exceptional coaches, you just do the best with what you've got," Antrim said. "These guys have been there forever . . . in the Catholic League, Public League. You don't pull any new tricks on guys like that.

"They win because they're real basic. They won't show you a whole lot. Loyola goes all man-to-man and Notre Dame all zone. They take a few things and do them well."

What Notre Dame does best this season is give the ball to 6-6 center Pete Calabrese. He's complemented by talented 6-4 forward Rich Ferina, only major returners from last year's club which lost the regional final to Maine South.

Lost in the graduation shuffle were guard Mike English and forward Clem Naughton. "Thank God they're gone," said Antrim. "They were just awful tough."

The Lions must get a strong performance from 6-8 junior center Glenn Girard this evening. He's matched up against Calabrese, one of the ESCC's better pivotmen.

Girard began the season with a bruised right thigh. He's still wearing a protective football pad but the leg's okay and Girard's back at full mobility.

"Glenn gets a little better each week but he'll need excellent defense against Notre Dame because Calabrese is a real player," said Viator's head coach.

Antrim stressed that he's gearing the major effort toward stopping Notre Dame. "If we beat them, then we'll go into Loyola all revved up with a real good chance at two wins."

When can anyone remember two St. Viator basketball victories during the same weekend? Such a pleasant thought.

Mixed bag of mail . . . Big 10, Bulls, Walton

Fan's forum

Why doesn't the Big Ten pull out of the Rose Bowl? It would solve a lot of problems.

First, it would free the Big Ten teams to play in any bowl games they wanted to. Then it would probably give the Pac-8 teams a chance to either pull out of the Rose Bowl or else face some different competition in the Rose Bowl. Finally it would mean that football fans would get to see more good games during the holidays.

I think that the Big Ten has some good teams — certainly more than just one. If Ohio State deserves to go to the Rose Bowl, then Michigan certainly deserves to go somewhere else. And what about Michigan State and maybe even Wisconsin? The point is: these schools should have the opportunity to fill their coffers and give the fans a chance to see some good teams.

The Pac-8 teams also would benefit from the chance to play elsewhere. After all, the Big Ten — Pac-8 battles just aren't what they used to be. They are getting predictable, especially when the same two teams play for three straight years.

BULLS AREN'T THAT GOOD

Dear Sir:

I read a columnist in Sunday's newspaper saying that despite the Bucks' victory over the Bulls, Chicago's pro team should be ranked No. 1 in the NBA with Milwaukee ranked No. 2. With this type of thinking, it's no wonder fans get so shook up when our teams fail in the stretch every season in every sport.

This guy neglected to mention that the NBA champions were back at full strength, namely the Boston Celtics. Maybe he'll remember them when they come to town Tuesday night.

Besides the Celtics, this rah-rah writer seems to forget that there is a Buffalo, Washington and Detroit, too, not to mention the New York Knicks — probably the hottest team right now in the NBA.

Really, what have the Bulls ever won anyway with the team they've got. Sure, they've added a fine third forward in John Block, but the other NBA teams haven't sat by in the meantime.

Personally, I'm getting sick and tired of reading about how great Chicago teams are when they always end up losing. The Bulls are a fine team, but let's not make them the NBA champs just yet. The money players get going when the playoffs begin. Let's see if our all-star holdouts — Bob Love and Norm Van Lier — are as good about leading us to the championship as they are about lining their pockets with cash.

BIG CARROT FOR WALTON

Dear Editor:

That world-renowned vegetarian giant, Bill Walton, formerly of UCLA and now a member of the Portland Trailblazers, isn't sure whether he really wants the life of a professional basketball player. He'd probably rather backpack through the Mojave Desert. But the Portland management knew just exactly how to rekindle the Redhead's enthusiasm — just dangle the big lettuce in front of him. After all, for a vegetarian to get motivated, you need to apply the carrot and the stick. And money certainly does talk, doesn't it?

COSELL MIGHT BE RIGHT

Fans Forum:

Howard Cosell threw out an idea recently on his radio show that might have some value. Mainly, that the pro football teams should drastically reduce the size of their rosters so that the teams would be forced to use players both ways. It would mean that athletes would have to be better conditioned and, furthermore, the really high-salaried ones would finally earn what they make.

THE GAME DEVELOPED into a personal duel between Rolling Meadows' John Hogan (11) and Hersey's Clyde Glass, shown here fighting for possession of the basketball. Glass had 31 points and Hogan scored 24 as the Huskies won, 59-58, on their home court Friday. Watching the battle are Hersey's John Wozniak (left) and Mark Knuttel (14). Wozniak had seven points and Knuttel four for the winning Huskies.

MITE DIVISION TRAVEL
Warriors 2, Hoffman 4

The Warriors went to the Woodfield Hockey Center and took on a tough Hoffman team. Chico Kirkham scored first for the Warriors on fine assists from Jimmy Carlsen and Peter Calleri. Jim Carlsen scored the second Warrior goal unassisted. Mark Young and Eric Lippert played fine defense for goalie Jeff Lange.

Warriors 0, Highland Park 3

The Warriors traveled to Highland Park for an NSHL game and came away scoreless in a battle with hard-checking Highland Park team. The score doesn't reflect what a fine game the Warriors played. Bobby Nardella, Tom Short and Frankie Machac showed good offense while Kelly Walker and Glen Basgall helped goalie Lange with their outstanding defensive moves.

MIDGET TRAVEL DIVISION
R.M. Warriors 5,
Elmhurst "Red" Huskies 1

Team play highlighted the win for the Warriors over a fine Huskie team. Leading the scoring was Harry Wright with two goals while Bob Paladino, Larry Stercyk and Dave Ronci added singletons. Assists were credited to Mike Perillo, Tom Sweeney and Ronci. Leo Lewis and Jerry DelGuidice shared the goaltending duties and turned in a fine performance.

R.M. Warriors 4,
Franklin Park Jets 0

Goalie Jerry DelGuidice earned his fourth shutout while the Warriors went on to their 14th straight win behind the scoring of Joe Bracco, Jim Varey, and Bob Paladino, who sent two into the nets. Mike Perillo, Tom Sweeney, Dave Ronci and Bracco were credited with the assists in this hard-checking game while defensemen Don Carone, Jim Woloshyn, Harry Wright and Chris Jacobson turned in a fine game.

R.M. Warriors 5, Winnetka 2

The Warriors broke lose in the second period and blasted in four goals to take the lead in this hard-skating game. Russ Riendeau and Dave Roncini each scored two goals while Joe Bracco's shot rounded out the scoring. Harry Wright and Scott Pederson were credited with the assists in this N.S.H.L. game.

ROLLING MEADOWS
TRAVELING SQUIRTS
Rolling Meadows Warriors 12,
Carol Stream Squires 0

In a one sided game the Warriors scored 12 times, taking 33 shots on goal and allowing only four in return. Nine different players scored. Bill Schroll had three and Mike Yosenick two. One goal each to Pat Brunory, Eric Ortenaw, Kurt Smith, Bill Colacicco, Joel Basgall, Mike Gagliano and Greg Kowalewski. Assists went to Kowalewski, Colacicco, Ricky Perillo, John Peszek, Jeff Koehl, Gagliano, Brunory, Smith and Ortenaw.

Rolling Meadows Warriors 0,
Randhurst Jr. Cardinals 2

For the first time this season the Warriors were shut out. They were credited with one more shot on goal than the Cardinals 14-13, but two of the Cardinals connected. The Warriors just could not get the good break or passes when they needed it.

Rolling Meadows Warriors 9,
Elmhurst Blades 0

Coming off a shutout, the Warriors played hard and held the Blades to nothing, scoring nine goals by eight different players. Greg Kowalewski scored twice with both goals assisted by Bill Schroll. Ricky Perillo scored assisted by Mike Gagliano. Schroll was assisted by Ricky Perillo and Bill Bolacicco. Eric Ortenaw was assisted by John Peszek and Pat Brunory. Mike Plantan was assisted by Scott Sanders and Mike Yosenick. Sanders scored unassisted and Brunory unassisted. Mike Whisler and Danny Perillo played well in the net.

Rolling Meadows Warriors 2,
Highland Park Leafs 0

In their second game of the day, a North Suburban Hockey League game, the Warriors shut out the Leafs. It was a hard-played game with strong skating and some solid checking. Nine penalties were called, six on the Warriors! In the first minute of play Mike Gagliano scored assisted by Ricky Perillo. Then with two minutes left in the game Scott Sanders scored unassisted. Between these two goals a strong defense was played by the whole team. Danny Perillo had 14 shots on goal and earned his shutout.

HIGHLIGHTS

The Oklahoma Sooners are our national champions for the second year in a row . . . and Alabama, Ohio State, and Michigan are 2nd, 3rd, and 4th for the second year in a row. One particularly bright new face among the Top Twenty is Baylor, champion of the Southwest Conference. Michigan State is back in the group after an absence of a few years, and Vanderbilt and Brigham Young are welcome newcomers to our top forty.

Again in explanation: when we list our selected teams as the top teams, we are rating the 40 STRONGEST teams in the country, not necessarily the forty teams with the best won-lost record. A team's rating is based on the average of its performance against all opponents throughout the entire season. As we've said before, calibre of competition is a major factor in determining a team's rating. Wisconsin, Arkansas, and Missouri, for example, are all four-time losers. Yet, based on their power quotients, they would be rated as favorites over 85% of the major college football teams.

To say that our forecasting average experienced some trying weekends is a bit of an understatement, but it finally managed to settle just a little below last year. 2,238 games were included in all our forecasts this year. We picked the winners in 1,650 . . . missed in 539 (there were 49 ties), and finished with a final average of .754.

Comparing our ratings of the conferences in 1973 with those listed below for 1974, the Big Eight's first place lead over the Southeast Conference has been cut almost in half. And the Big Ten has moved into fourth place ahead of the Pacific 8 Conference. Conference ratings are based on each league's power quotient average determined from the ratings of all teams in every conference. Of the more than 65 football conferences, here are the twenty strongest in the nation:

1—Big Eight Conference	101.89	11—Ivy League	66.93
2—Southeast Conference	95.70	12—Missouri Valley Conference	65.21
3—Southwest Conference	95.35	13—Southern Conference	60.40
4—Big Ten Conference	92.46	14—Big Sky Conference	60.36
5—Pacific Eight Conference	90.49	15—Southwestern Athletic Conference	59.01
6—Atlantic Coast Conference	84.97	16—Ohio Valley Conference	58.19
7—Mid-American Conference	79.30	17—Gulf South Conference	56.65
8—Western Athletic Conference	78.05	18—Yankee Conference	55.23
9—Pacific Coast Athletic Conference .	71.12	19—North Central Conference	54.15
10—Southland Conference	68.77	20—Lone Star Conference	53.17

Demons, Warriors home for Friday contests

by MIKE KLEIN

The favorite remains New Trier West, but unpredictable recent events would indicate there's more balance than anyone thought in Central Suburban North division basketball.

Or, it'll be flaky each weekend with New Trier the only halfway safe bet until playing Maine South on Saturday, Jan. 11.

Any of the others will be hard pressed to catch Mel Sheets' Cowboys, winners over Conant, Glenbrook North and New Trier East after a 10-point loss to Evanston.

But we'll get a decent reading on the division this weekend when Maine East opens against Glenbrook South at home tonight and visits Highland Park on Saturday. Both are 8 p.m. games.

Maine West continues its victory search in the CSL South by entertaining Niles East at eight o'clock tonight. The Warriors visit Lake Forest in a Saturday non-conference game.

Back to that North Division. Maine East coach Paul McClelland has said his Blue Demons should emerge to find a place among the top five teams in CSL basketball checkers.

However, they were obliterated last weekend at defending state champion Proviso East, losing by 40 points. "We could have held it to 20 but I played 16 guys," McClelland said. "Forty or 20, what's the difference? We got creamed but we won't be the last ones. I think they got tired of losing." Proviso carried a 2-3 record into that mismatch.

One of those Proviso East defeats came at Highland Park. But the Giants couldn't manage the same trick against usually inefficient Glenbrook South. The Titans dropped a field goal inside five seconds to win, 62-61, last Friday. And that's the largest mystery during this early CSL season.

For the moment, you've got New Trier West and Glenbrook South leading the division. New Trier plays the Giants tonight.

"Highland Park plays well against good teams most of the time," New Trier's Sheets said. "If Chuck Schramm's got one thing going, it's a way of getting kids up for the big game."

And letting them fall flat for little games, such as the Glenbrook South affair? That could be right, agreed Sheets.

Maine East can't lose twice this weekend and still expect to be any factor in the CSL North. One good point, Glenbrook South has never won at Maine. But the Demons are winless at GBS, too.

"We've probably got the two most unusual gyms in the conference, our big fieldhouse and their modern dome. That might have something to do with it," McClelland said.

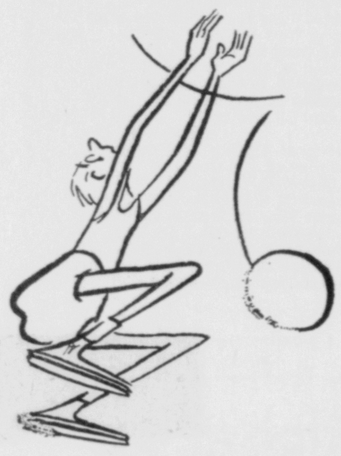
"Ours is strange and old. Theirs is strange and new. That place ought to be a roller rink."

The Titans have won just twice in six games, also beating Adlai Stevenson. McClelland saw them last Saturday when Evanston performed surgery, 79-47.

"It's hard to tell just exactly what Glenbrook has because every shot they got off against Evanston was tipped," McClelland said. "But we can't intimidate like Evanston."

Highland Park can't help but remember (. . . and Schramm won't let them forget . . .) that the Demons ended the regular season last year by winning, 77-56, on the Giants' court.

New Trier's Sheets had said that Highland Park center Rich Schwalbach, a 6-foot-8 senior, is the league's second best inside man behind logical choice



Pete Boesen of Maine South.

It was Schwalbach who turned the game around with efficient rebounding when Highland Park defeated Proviso, a game the Giants deserved to win because they played better.

"Schwalbach was tough offensively last year," said East's McClelland. "He'll always get 20 but we've got to make sure he takes a lot of shots and works hard. They can't be easy.

"His question mark last year was defensively. He did the job against Proviso and if he stays in our ballgame, then we're in trouble."

Maine East will start center Derrick Brown, a 6-5 senior, opposite Schwalbach. The pair have been seeing each other since both were sophomores on varsity, Brown then at Maine North.

While the Demons must play two conference games, Warrior coach Gaston Freeman need prepare for just one, against Niles East, and then let the chips fall as they may at Lake Forest.

There's been an important change this week at Maine West, the addition of sophomore guard Bob Zuccarini to Freeman's varsity. He joins older brother Steve, a senior and two-year starter at forward.

Young Zuccarini, about 6-2 and 180 pounds, ranks among the school's best young athletes. He lettered in varsity football this past season and is a highly competitive kid who thinks well under pressure.

Freeman isn't saying whether the sophomore guard will start against Niles East, a club with four wins and three losses against unspectacular competition.

Two spots were open through Wednesday, one forward and one guard. Only sure starters are center John Clark, forward Steve Zuccarini and guard Glen Heiden.

The other starters will come from among forward-guard Bill Makuch, forward Paul Dick, young Zuccarini and guard Norb Ploszaj who played extensively at Niles West.

Dick has the best vertical leap of any Warrior basketball player. Makuch owns a better jump shot and Ploszaj is probably quicker than either. Finding a true position for Dick is important. He played a high post at Niles West.

Freeman said there's been much work done with Clark, the 6-5 center who sports a large, red natural hair style. "We've got to teach him not to bounce the ball so much. Around eight feet out, he's as good a shot as you'll find on the turn around jumper."

The Warriors are 2-2 after stopping Libertyville which was shut out, 13-0, through one period. They've got mobility, apparent depth and the acquistion of young Zuccarini should help.

West has never been a quick starting team. They played one excellent quarter at Niles West, then were much better in beating Libertyville. They could be ready to make a move, starting tonight against Niles East.

PENETRATING the lane against Arlington's zone defense, Conant's Mike Frisch prepares to fire in a pair of his seven points. The Cardinals trimmed Conant, 69-44, in the opening game of the league season.

Young Wheeling gymnasts fall to Glenbrook South

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

Wheeling High School's sophomore gymnastics team could be cleaning up, but varsity coach Dave Watters wants the younger kids on the higher level and it's hurting the Wildcats in their early dual meets.

Wheeling opened with a dual meet win over Palatine, topping 94 points, but slipped to 86.55 in a loss to Glenbrook South Wednesday night.

Glenbrook totaled 116.95.

"We've got only one senior and two juniors on this team," Watters said, "and the rest are sophomores. We could have a really strong soph team but we're building for the future here and they'll improve more up on the varsity level.

"I think this team will really come on as they get some more experience under their belts."

Wheeling was hurt right from the start when their top free exercise man, Bill McLeshick, was sent to bed with chicken pox. Dave Schatz, the Wildcat all-around man, led the team in that first event with a 6.6.

In the other events, top team scores were posted by Jeff Kee (7.3 on side horse), Mike Spencer (5.4 on high bar and 4.7 on the trampoline), Schatz (4.0 on the P-bars) and Dale Brungraber (7.05 on the still rings).

Schatz posted a 4.15 average for his all-around.

A good deal for us
If you need a battery, we'd like to sell you one. We have good quality, and a full line.
Service calls are part of our business, but we'd rather help our customers before they have trouble—it's good for our reputation.
If we show you your battery might fail, we have a chance to sell you a new one rather than see you be forced to buy somewhere else when your present battery is dead.
The more batteries we sell before winter comes, the more we can order to take care of customers who will have to buy later on in the dead of winter.

Gary Morava award

Senior all-around performer Mark Graham of Iowa State won the first annual Gary Morava Award for excellence at last weekend's Windy City Gymnastics Invitational on the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle campus.

The internationally acclaimed Morava died Feb. 28 of this year while in training at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale. Morava, of Prospect Heights, was an IHSA state titlist for Hersey High School, six-time All-America at SIU and represented the United States in many worldwide competitions.

Illinois-Circile athletic director Bill Roetzheim presented the award to Graham who had once been a roommate of Morava during summer training camp. The silver plated cup was funded by SIU-C gymnastics coach Bill Meade and will become the annual top award at the Windy City Invitational.

Graham has now captured championships in the Big Eight athletic conference, Rocky Mountain Invitational and Midwest Open. He was the 1971 Colorado prep All-Around champion. With Graham, Iowa State has won two consecutive NCAA team championships.

YMCA turkey swim

The Northwest Suburban YMCA recently held a two week Turkey Swim in which skill and chance determined the winners. The object of the swim was to roll the dice to determine the number of lengths that could be swum and then swim that distance. At the end of the contest, the swimmers who rolled the most lengths and completed those lengths won a turkey.

The turkey swim was open to both adults and youths with a winner in each category. The adult winner was Dennis Domanchuk of Park Ridge and the youth winner was Mike Kryza of Des Plaines.

Overall there were 67 adults and 28 youths who took part in the swim with over 3,661 lengths or 51 miles being swum.

Here's one option you can't get from a car dealer.

Real rustproofing. A dealer can't order it from the factory. Because it has to be done after the car is completely assembled.

Some car dealers will do a so-called "rustproofing" job, but that's about all. They might even say it's the "same as Ziebart." That's not true. Because they don't have the training, equipment or know-how to give you complete rustproofing.

At Ziebart Rustproofing we've got the tools, the sealant and the technicians to do it right.

If you're buying a new car, you should check us out. Why not give us a call?

It's Us. Or Rust.

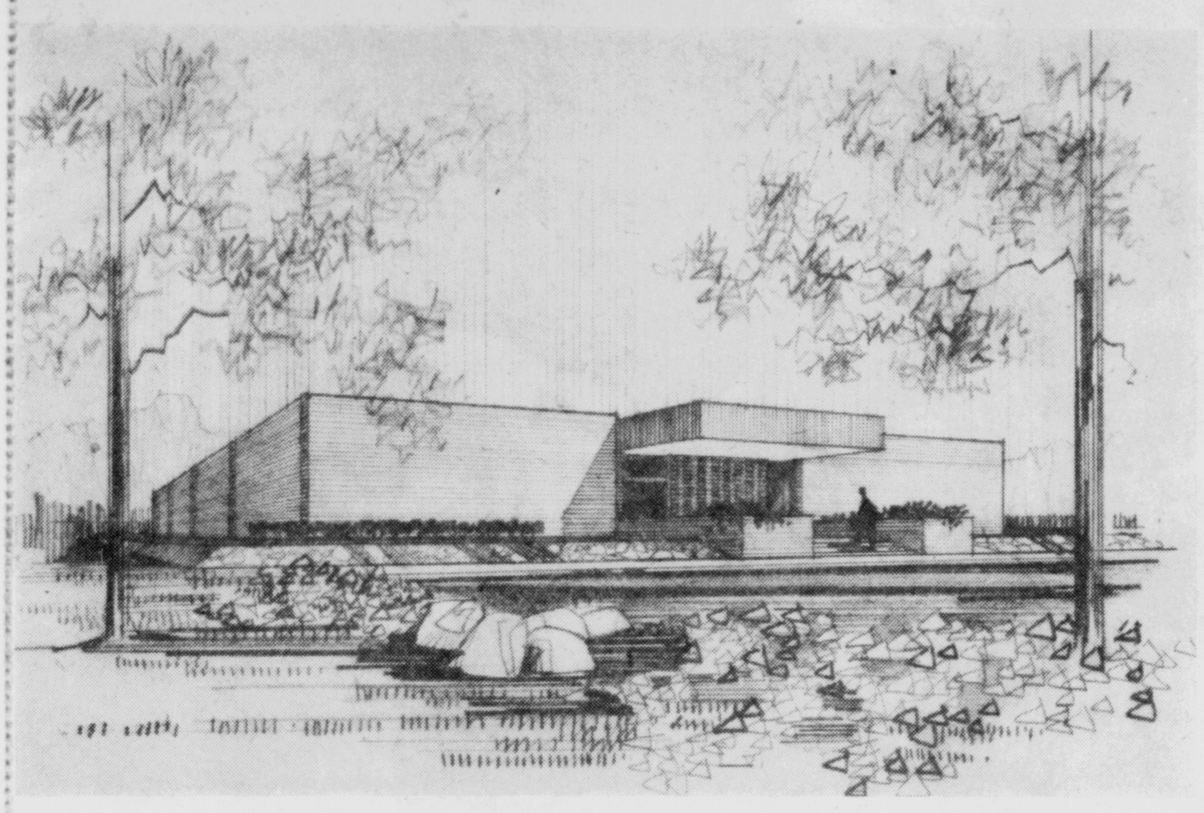
Racquet sports facilities to open



The Court House — soon to open in Arlington Heights and Schaumburg

If you've been itching to play racquetball, paddleball, or handball, but haven't been able to find a place to play, hold on just a little longer. Two new facilities will soon be opening in the Northwest suburbs.

The Court House will open at separate sites in Arlington Heights and Schaumburg in the next several weeks. The Arlington Heights club will throw open its doors Saturday with a special introductory membership plan. Located at 106 E. College Dr., just off Arlington Heights Rd. north of Rand, the Court House offers family rates ($20), individual ($15) and day rates ($5).

The Schaumburg club, at 1450 Payne Rd., will open Jan. 18 and provide the same facilities as the Arlington Heights club. The area's third Court House will begin operation Jan. 2 in Northbrook.

Each Court House will have eight regulation courts, carpeted locker rooms, sauna and exercise rooms, racquet rental, clinics and lessons, a pro shop, and a free nursery with attendant. Reserved and open court time will be available.

The popularity of racquet sports has created a need for new facilities such as the Court House, and the men behind this new club anticipated that need.

"These court games provide excellent exercise in a short period of time," said John Wineman, one of the club's backers. "Now they will be available to people in the Northwest suburbs."

The Purple Pee-Wees skated well, but were outshot 16 to 14, in a very close game right up to the closing seconds of the third period. Ted Eltzroth scored both King goals, with assists from Jerry Slobodnik, Mark Shlifka and Eric Olson.

ROBERTS & SCHAEFER

The McArthur Realty Squirts scored their second goal in the third period, while shorthanded, to beat a well-seasoned team from Rock Valley. Dan Skala and Tony DeVita scored the King goals. ATTENTION SAVERS

In time of rapidly rising prices it just makes good sense to save money anyway you can. During the winter months ahead your furnace can waste fuel and money by not operating at top efficiency. Such things as loose belts, dirty burners, clogged filters, etc. can make your furnace work extra hard and still not deliver the comfort you expect. So do yourself a favor, save money by spending a little - with us.

Inflation hurts atheists' church-state separation fight

Madalyn Murray O'Hair, the militant atheist who won the Supreme Court's celebrated school prayer case a decade ago, says inflation is undermining her fight to preserve separation of church and state.

As a result, she sees "hard times ahead for us atheists in the short range," on several major church-state issues, partly because of the formidable power of the Roman Catholic Church and the growing acquiescence of politicians.

"All dissent in this area — the separation issue — is being wiped out by inflation," Mrs. O'Hair said in an interview.

MANY GROUPS opposing organized religion's influence on political decision-making are being forced to cut their staffs and publications. Some, she said, may go out of business for lack of money.

by David E. Anderson

The constitutional wall between church and state "has been absolutely flattened in the past few years," she said.

Mrs. O'Hair, who directs the Society of Separationists in Austin, Tex., is touring the country promoting her new book, "Freedom Under Siege."

SHE RECEIVED nationwide notoriety in June, 1963, when the Supreme Court in a landmark decision upheld her claim that government-required prayers and Bible readings in public schools were unconstitutional.

Although she describes herself as "a portly grandmother" and was accompanied to the interview by her young granddaughrer Robin, Mrs. O'Hair, 55, has lost none of her love for a fight.

When she returns to Austin, she risks a fine or jail term for contempt of court for refusing jury duty. She said she objected to the oaths trial witnesses must take, as well as the Texas State Constitution requirement that all court officials affirm the existence of a supreme being.

MRS. O'HAIR expects continuing church-state battles over school prayers, federal school aid, abortion and church tax exemptions.

On school aid, "we've lost that battle," she said. "We had to stop it before President John F. Kennedy and it is too late to stop it now."

She conceded the Catholic Church "is politically astute — we can learn from them" — but faces a severe test over abortion. She said it will be the hardest fought church-state issue during the next two years.

"The Roman Catholic Church cannot control their women," she said. "They're going to continue to take the pill and have abortions. The church has to control all women to control their own women."

MRS. O'HAIR said her difficulties are illustrated by the Supreme Court's latest ruling on pornography, which left the matter for local communities to decide. On that level, she said, churches have greater influence and control in setting standards.

"Even though the churches have a declining influence, as the politicians get more and more desperate they are calling more and more on the churches," she said.

Nonetheless, Mrs. O'Hair has "unbounded optimism in the human animal" and can foresee the day reason will reign and bigotry will vanish.

Liberal leader elected

All but the archconservatives among the nation's 48 million Catholics have cause to rejoice in the results of the November meeting of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops in Washington, D.C.

For as the new president of the Bishops' Conference and of the national headquarters (U.S. Catholic Conference), the Bishops, by overwhelming majority, elected Cincinnati's liberal Archbishop Joseph Bernardin.

Election of this thoroughly congenial and considerably able young prelate — by almost twice the vote he got in the last election (when he lost to Philadelphia's strongly conservative John Cardinal Krol) — produced an immediate and electrifying effect.

THE BISHOPS, at long last, voted to go on record against capital punishment. the debate on this controversial issue lingered on (somewhat painfully) for parts of three days, due primarily to what might be termed "Krol's last stand," a masterful display of parliamentary maneuvering. When at one point dozens of the Bishops called (shouted) for the question, the tall, smiling prelate at the podium, instead of recognizing this undebatable motion, cooed into the microphone:

"Did you have your hand up, Cardinal Carberry?"

Krol's fellow conservative, the Archbishop of St. Louis, cited a number of horrible murders and a reported increase in homicide since the nation's last execution in 1967. Bishop Christopher Weldon of Springfield, Mass., while announcing himself as being opposed to the death penalty, reminded the Bishops that the condemned prisoner: "has an advantage over other persons because he knows the time of his death."

But Charleston, S.C.'s Bishop Ernest Unterkoefler, a former Virginia prison chaplain, described the experience of "having to watch men fried to death in the electric chair."

SEATTLE'S ARCHBISHOP Thomas Connolly then announced: "The Supreme Court has spoken. That should be enough."

This evoked gasps from the gallery, especially from the conservative Catholic press, which has been charging the High Court with sanctioning murder for nearly two years.

The Bishops in addition, during the only executive session of their six day meeting, voted — with the rumored objection of 40 per cent of their number — to send a letter to Congress asking that Nelson Rockefeller be interrogated "to ascertain that he will not use the office of the Vice President to promote a personal viewpoint on permissive abortion."

WHY "PERMISSIVE abortion" rather than simply "abortion"?

"I asked that same question," replied Cardinal Krol, during a press briefing, "And we were told that Gov. Rockefeller had supported abortion even beyond that which is allowed under the Supreme Court's decision. As an official, he has to adhere to the law of the land, although we think that is a very bad law."

This important distinction between what Cardinal Krol defines as "permissive abortion" and "the law of the land" may explain why the Bishops have declined to endorse any of the anti-abortion Constitutional amendments proposed in Congress.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Shelby Lyman on chess

Ambush awaits black's king

Certain positions are thrice blessed. They unexpectedly yield winning combinations, the winning procedure is effected with an economy of means and several or all of the winning variations exhibit a remarkable beauty.

Therefore, I was naturally pleased when I saw unfold the position in Diagram 1.

Here is an apparently innocent situation in which white has been able to suddenly create lethal threats against the enemy king. His last move, B-QN5, lays unbearable pressure on the black queen bishop. Black is now forced to exchange bishops, allowing a venomous queen check that will draw the black king onto the open board.

Our second diagram shows the king already exposed after only a few moves, 1 . . . BxB; 2. QxB check, K-K2; 3. QxNP check, K-B3; and 4. N-N5 check.

Though at first glance the observer may hardly be aware of how complete a catastrophe awaits our lonely monarch, white's last move, the knight check of the black king, was the surprising upswing of an irresistible fatal blow. In what follows, the white knight and queen work as one piece with rare harmony (in all variations!).

I came upon this position in an offhand game, and was utterly pleased to see the white pieces elegantly thwart every black recourse.

If you are curious, examples in point are the following:

1 . . . K-N4; 2. P-R4 check, KxN; 3. Q-B3 mate.

1 . . . K-B4; 2. Q-B3 check, K-N4; 3. P-R4 check, K-N3; 4. N-K5 check, K-R3; and white may now either win the queen with 5. NxP check or mate with 5. Q-B4 check, etc.

1 . . . K-N3 2. Q-K4 check, P-B4; 3. QxKP check, K-N4; P-R4 check, KxN; 5. Q-K2 check, K-B5; and 6. P-N3 mate.

First the queen and knight combine on the queen wing to deftly force the king onto the open king flank, and then they appear again, in Batman-Robin fashion to handcuff their fugitive on the kingside.

IF YOU FIND instructive this classic interplay of kingdom and horse, you may also enjoy the following recent effort of the English player Hartston against the Finnish Westerinen, shown in Diagram 3.

Here it is the other minor piece (the bishop) who plays consort with the most powerful white piece.

You may enjoy playing through the moves that lead to the final and pitiful mating position given in our last diagram.

These moves are: 1. Q-N3 check, KxP; 2. B-Q4 check, K-N3; 3. QxB, P-B4 (to develop the knight without losing it); 4. QxBP, N-B3; 5. Q-Q6 check, K-R4; 6. B-N7, BxQP; 7. P-KR3! (drawing the net), B-N3; and 8. Q-B4, followed by black's resignation.

The white pieces seem to thread a gnat's eye as they first control and then penetrate the black bield.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Percentage play more apt to win

South was bitter. He sputtered, "Grand slam bids are for idiots."

"I guess you're right," replied North philosophically. "I was an idiot to put an idiot in a grand slam."

We think the use of the word idiot was a trifle strong, but we do feel that North had justification for being annoyed. To start with South had a minimum opening bid with a broken six-card suit, yet he had made a jump rebid. North was entitled to play him for at least seven hearts.

Howver, the slam was a cinch the way the cards lay. If south had bothered to count to 13, he would have seen that he needed five spade tricks to make his grand slam. The best way to score those five spade tricks would have been to lead the 10 and take a first-round finesse. This would win for him if West held four spades or less including the queen, or 42 per cent of the time.

The play adopted by South was to cash the ace-king of spades right away. This would have worked if the queen had dropped but that was just under a 20 per cent play and any banker will tell you that 42 per cent is better than 20 per cent.

No green men! UFO special is a dud

by Frank S. Swertlow

NEW YORK — In the good old days of the schlock film, you could be scared witless by a sci-fi thriller about flying saucers and little green men from Mars.

The stuff we saw in the 1950s bordered on the terrible, but it was effective and scary, so much so that Japanese movie moguls copied them and thrilled us in the 1960s.

Thus with fear and trepidation I walked into a darkened screening room at NBC to see Sunday's "UFO's: Do You Believe?" Are flying saucers real? I thought with a shudder. Would this show make those old movie makers soothsayers? My hand began to shake as I reached for my notebook and pen.

MOMENTS later, Kay Gardella, the TV critic for the New York Daily News, entered the room. She, too, was anxious to see the production.

"I hope they have some little green men in this," she kidded, "I just love little green men. They're so cute."

I, too, admitted I had a weakness in my heart for verdant troopers from Mars. "Maybe we can get the NBC press department to get us a few for Christmas," I suggested. "We could hang them under the Christmas tree."

With the repartee over, the documentary began. Humbug: The show was a dud. My blood hadn't turned to ice, and the entire production seemed like a 60-minute special of frisbees. Why, there wasn't even one interview with a little green man, just a bunch of talk from humans. Some of them said there was positive evidence of UFOs; others said maybe; still others said never.

PHOOEY: WHO WANTS to see a bunch of talking humans and pictures of them looking through files or scrap books. Admittedly, some of these files were nicely arranged, but who cares. Lets have some green men or at least some metal from a saucer.

If NBC can go to the moon, why can't the moon come to NBC? Hasn't NBC made a lot of profits this year? Money buys everything. So why not offer the greenies some green. The boys in the documentary department just don't think ahead. They ought to have some of those guys from the quiz shows and soap operas advising them.

The terms of the Annexation Agreement to be considered at the Public Hearing are predicated on the desire of the OWNER and DEVELOPER to have the TRACT annexed to the Village, zoned and developed upon certain terms and conditions and in accordance with a General Land Plan entitled "Devon-53 Development" dated December 2, 1974, presented as Exhibit "B" providing for zoning and development of four separate identifiable portions of the TRACT:

A. Village agrees to zone tract to accommodate proposed uses shown on Plan dated December 2, 1974 to accept that Plan as the "Preliminary Plat" for Planned Unit Development of residential area; to grant any variations, exceptions, amendments of modifications of Zoning Ordinance or official comprehensive Plan of Village to accommodate land uses shown on said Plan.

B. Developer agrees to install:

1. water mains shown on Exhibit C and to donate the same to Village to thereafter own and maintain the same.

2. sanitary sewer mains and lines shown on Exhibit D and to donate the same to Village to thereafter own and maintain the same.

3. storm water retention/detention facility as shown on Exhibit C.

4. Nerge Road, the only public street within tract consisting of right-of-way of 100 feet and paving a width of 44 feet back of curb to back of curb. All other streets and driveways within tract are to be installed by Developer and remain privately owned and maintained.

5. public sidewalks along Nerge Road and to dedicate same to Village.

6. pedestrian walkway systems within tract in accordance with the Plan.

7. public improvements required by the Village, including public and private streets, street name signs, street lights, sidewalks, trees, water, sanitary and storm sewers and that Developer is to give security for such installations for each phase of the development as same occurs.

C. Developer also agrees to these contributions as a condition to annexation:

1. two open sites consisting of 5.08 acres in total donation to Village by Quit Claim Deed by December 31, 1975.

2. payment of annexation fees in amount equal to $500.00 per acre multiplied by 41.65 acre residential area.

3. donation of $150.00 per student based upon actual yield from residential area to Schaumburg Township Elementary School District No. 54, if redistricting is completed.

D. Developer agrees to hold open for 3 years a 1.13 acre parcel of area zoned B-2 for possible relocation of intersection of Nerge Road with Devon Avenue.

E. Agreement further provides:

1. Ten Year maximum for completion of construction and for commencement of construction within two years.

2. construction of model units in advance of approval of final plans, provided the same are not used for residential purposes.

3. present fees and ordinances (except nationwide amendments to national, building, fire or related codes) are to apply to tract for period of development, but that any less restrictive fees or ordinances are to benefit Developer at Developer's election.

4. Village to assist in acquisition of easements and rights-of-way necessary for public utilities, provided Developer bears costs of same.

5. tract is to be improved in general conformity with uses and standards set forth in Plan of December 2, 1974, subject to modifications approved by Village Engineer.

6. for variation of number of bedrooms per apartment provided total number does not change and no more than 10% of apartments contain three bedrooms.

7. for construction of development in phases.

8. no stop orders to be issued by the Village without detailing corrective action necessary.

9. Issuance of Certificates of Occupancy within ten days after application, or deliver letter informing Developer as to reasons for denial.

10. Issuance of building permits upon application and submission of Plans and assurance that public improvements will be installed.

11. Agreement of Village to enact ordinances for a 15 year recapture by Developer of its costs in extending and constructing water and sewer mains and lines which are capable of servicing other parcels of real estate both within and outside the Village.

12. In event of breach of Agreement by Village the Developer may disconnect tract from Village.

13. Provisions of agreement to be contained in ordinance granting Planned Development and zoning.

14. Effective term of ten years.

15. Obligations recited in Declaration are those of Developer, rather than Owner, except to extent Owner may become a Developer, and further that Agreement binds Developer and Village and their respective successors.

16. Agreement supersedes all prior existing Agreements.

17. Parties are entitled to all available remedies at law by reason of failure of performance by other parties.

18. Separability of terms of Agreement in the event of the invalidity of any singular provision.

All persons interested in the foregoing are invited to attend and to express their views at the Public Hearing on December 30, 1974 at 6:30 P.M., 901 Wellington Avenue, Elk Grove Village, Illinois. Copies of the foregoing documents may be examined during regular office hours at the Municipal Building, 901 Wellington Avenue, Elk Grove Village, Illinois.

STATE OF ILLINOIS

SPRINGFIELD, ILLINOIS

Opportunity For A Public Hearing Notice

The State of Illinois, Department of Transportation, is planning to improve the intersection of Des Plaines River Road (U.S. Route 45) and Milwaukee Avenue (Illinois Route 21) in Cook County.

The proposed improvement involves the widening of the three legs of this "wye" type intersection. On the southeast leg of Milwaukee Avenue, the roadway will be widened to two 12-foot lanes in each direction separated by a 6-foot mountable median. On the south leg of Des Plaines River Road the roadway will be widened to two 12-foot lanes in each direction separated by a 16-foot mountable median. On the north leg of combined Des Plaines River Road-Milwaukee Avenue, the typical cross-section will match that at the Palatine Road interchange and will consist of two 12-foot lanes in the northbound direction and three 12-foot lanes in the southbound direction separated by a variable width mountable median.

Maps, drawings, Negative Declaration (a report discussing the effect on the environment), and other pertinent information developed by the Illinois Department of Transportation may be viewed and copied at the office of the Department of Transportation, located at 300 North State Street, Room 911, Chicago, Illinois, up to December 27, 1974.

Notice is hereby given that all interested persons who wish a Public Hearing for this intersection safety improvement should notify the Illinois Department of Transportation in writing. All written requests for a Public Hearing should be addressed to: Sigmund C. Ziejewski, District Engineer, Illinois Department of Transportation, 300 North State Street, Chicago, Illinois, 60610. Any request for a Public Hearing for this project should be postmarked no later than December 27, 1974.

The absence of any written requests for a Public Hearing will be considered by the State as evidence that no Public Hearing is necessary and therefore, no such hearing will be held.

Poker night out

All the characters are there—even 'Mister Lucky'

by BARRY SIGALE

"Dimes!" he implores. "We need two more dimes. Who hasn't anted? Who's shy?"

Clink. Clink. Two white chips are tossed to the center of the rectangular table and roll onto the new pile of red, blue and yellow chips, forming a colorful and enticing pot.

"Ok. Deal!"

The Tuesday night card game is in full swing and this is the hand, finally, after an hour, that actually can be likened to poker. Five card stud, you're-in-or-you're-out, you-win-or-you-lose poker. Short and sweet but to some in this game, pretty boring.

Six players are sitting in the basement of a Tahoe Village townhome in Wheeling playing "garbage" games, variations on a theme, with spit cards, gimmick betting and spur-of-the-moment rule changes to make the evening a little more exciting.

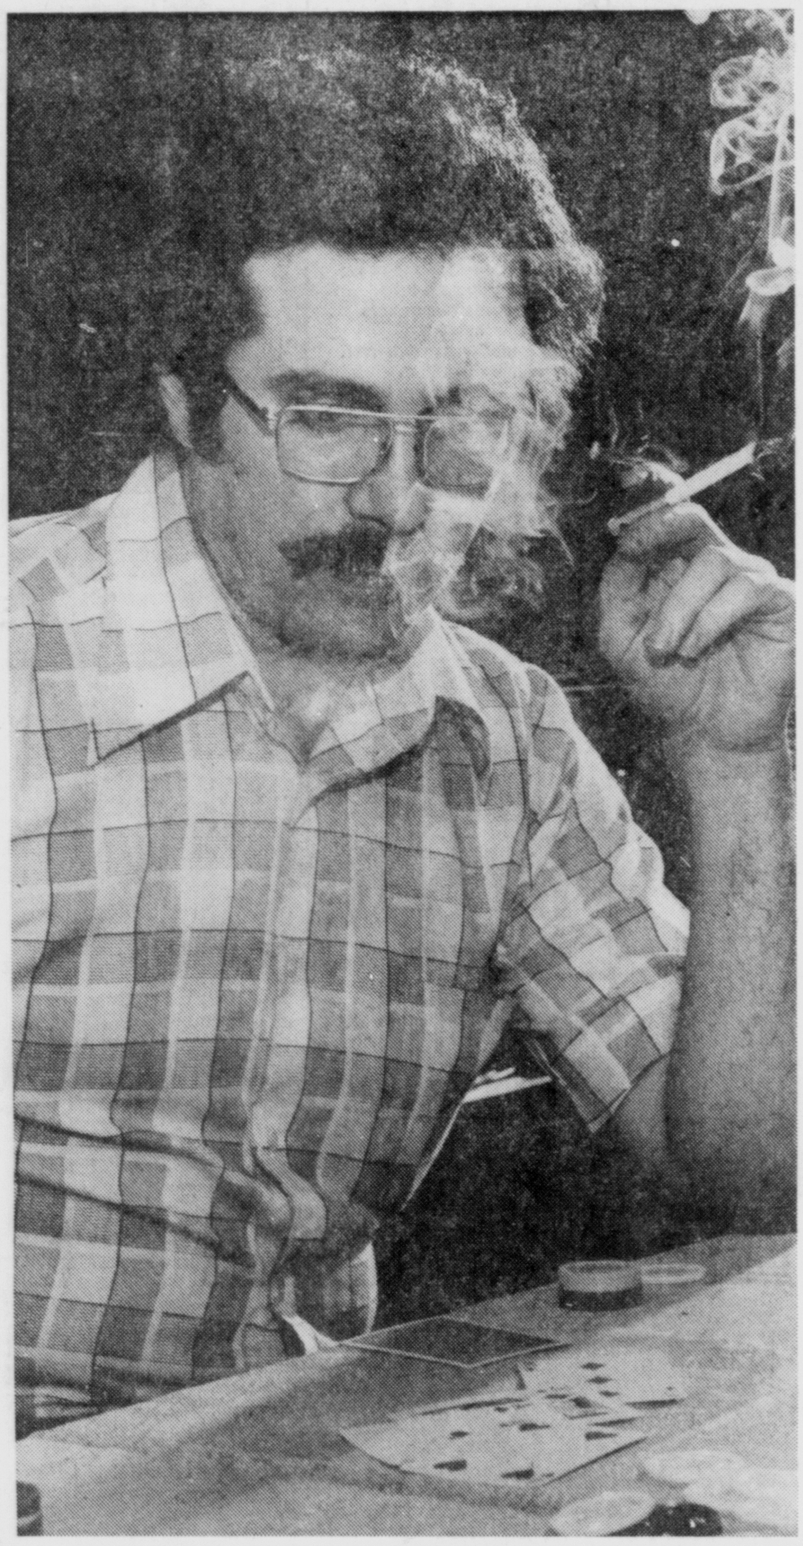
THEY ARE munching on popcorn, sipping Cokes, smoking up a storm and exchanging small talk and harmless, off-color commentaries about life and themselves. The wives are at home with the kids while their husbands enjoy the camaraderie that seems to break up the week just nicely.

The stakes are relatively small, but most probably typical for a once-a-week, friendly, carefree poker night out. The dealer antes 50 cents and betting is in multiples of dimes and quarters. The most anyone can throw on the table after three raises is $1. The top winner can take home about $20, the big loser drops about the same.

The game is a fun thing for this group. Made up of white collar types, mainly salesmen, they can afford to drop a few bucks without dipping into the family savings. They're each in their lage 20s or early 30s and have one thing in common: they are enjoying themselves immensely. Losing is secondary as long as its within a certain limit.

The deck is slightly curled, the ashtrays full, the smoke heavy, the eyes watering, the ice cubes melting and the chips flying where they may. After an hour, the players have sized up one another and get a pretty good idea of who means what he says when he raises and who doesn't. In fact, if you've played cards for a while, you might say to yourself, "Haven't I seen these guys somewhere before?" Looking around the table there's:

• "Dimes." Referred to earlier, he can't stand it when a game doesn't start as soon as the last one is finished, even though they're only using one deck. He watches everyone's bet, making sure each player throws in enough money. He also points out whose deal it is and whose turn to bet if the game is lagging. He repeats himself all night, "Your deal. What's the game? It's to you. Throw in a quarter." He loses big, despite the hurry-up table talk.



Deep in thought. 'I must have that pot.'

Dimes is impatient. "Your deal. What's the game. It's to you. Throw in a quarter."

What cards! 'Bet the limit, dummy.'

• "Lucky." He plays his cards well, dropping out when the going gets tough, but usually winning his share of the pots and finishes the night a big winner. He says very little, has a good sense of humor when he does speak and is a likable guy. Invariably, four hours after the game begins and two hands from breaking up, he wins a $20 pot all by himself. The other players should be mildly happy for him but they just can't stand him raking in the chips without at least splitting it.

• "Joker." The most unlucky of the lot, he also has the worst sense of humor but is always getting in an apparent punch line. Doing poorly, he shrinks into his chair as if he can't stand the game, which after all, he can't anymore. Once in a while he flings a chip across the table in disgust. He feeds the pot all night and comes up a loser, the biggest of the night. Then he goes home, bleary-eyed.

• "Steady Eddie." Here's a guy who means what he says, for sure. No bluffing. When he tosses those chips with authority it is certain he has a good hand. He also likes to play tricky games, where no cards are showing. He's at his best when everybody bets without knowing anything about anybody else's hand. Not conservative, by any means, he wins a few dollars.

• "The Host." The game's at his house and everything must be just right. His wife helps prepare the accounterments so he can concentrate on the game. He's in charge of the chips and keeping everybody happy. He likes to play conservative games and, in fact, deals the same game everytime it's his turn . . . criss cross, a game where each player gets five cards down, then five cards are turned up one at a time with betting on each card. No one's sure how he does, because he cashes in everyone's chips, including his own. But he's probably won a few dollars.

• "The Guest." Typically unsure of new games and rules, he likes to stay in most hands because he thinks he'll look foolish if he doesn't. In this way he "donates" money to the pot and comes up a $10 loser. When it's his deal he chooses a game he thinks he knows well enough to fool the others into losing. The kind of guy who sits there with a 3-5-7-9-J and cries to himself. But, then, why is he still betting with a mess like that?

An added attraction, or distraction, depending on who's winning or losing, is the arrival of a guy dubbed The Mayor of Tahoe. A jovial, good-natured sort, he knows everybody's business . . . whether they want him to or not. He doesn't play a single hand, preferring to chatter incessantly about this and that. His kibbitzing with the players bothers Dimes, who wants to keep the game going at a steady pace.

There isn't any one game that is more popular than another. Most of the games are variations of high-low, in which two players — one with the high hand, the other with the low — split the pot. On rare occasions one player holds both the high and low hand, thus getting a handsome reward for his good fortune.

AFTER AWHILE, two more players arrive, including Steady Eddie's brother, bringing with them fresh money and other interesting games. The pots become bigger and the playing more serious. Players with good hands or the potential for excellence bet with more vigor and abandon. Players having poor hands reluctantly fold because the pot is so full.

The games become a blur as the players attempt to get in as many hands as possible before the agreed upon 11:30 quitting time. While the two winners divide a pot, the next dealer shuffles the cards and distributes them. But, a few games stand out.

One is when Dimes, as usual hurrying up the game, is so anxious to get everybody to complete their betting that he mistakes what he is holding. He and Lucky declare high. Dimes says he has a full house, Lucky a flush.

"Sixes full!" stammers Dimes half lifting himself off his chair while reaching for the chips.

"Where?" challenges Lucky.

Lucky has an Ace-high full house. And the Ace of Spades in the hole. And all the chips on the table. Lucky's lucky.

The Tuesday night poker game. It's fun.

The Guest sits there with a 3-5-7-9-J and cries to himself. Why is he still betting?

"Sixes full!" says Dimes, salivating.

"How?" says Lucky, sweating.

"Here." Dimes shows his hand. He only has two sixes, not three, and another pair. Two pair loses to a flush. Dimes sinks into his chair, embarrassed. Lucky gathers up the chips to split with the low man.

ANOTHER IS Lucky's big jackpot. It's a seven-card game with a split in the middle. High hand wins IF one of the concealed cards is the highest spade of all among his face-down cards. The dealer declares that the game will continue for three hands to find the one winner, then a fourth hand will be split if no one has the winning combination. Three hands go by without a winner. A full house goes unvictorious because someone else has the high spade in the hole.

The fourth hand is tension-filled. It will make an evening worthwhile to win it. The pot is overflowing because it is brimming with three hands worth of chips. Everybody is excited and all kidding stops. Dimes deals. The Guest comes up with a flush, and, more importantly, a Queen of Spades in the hole. He bets heavily, seeing that the King of Spades is already on the table. The only hole card that can beat him is the Ace of Spades. He gambles that it's still in the deck. It isn't. It's one of Lucky's down cards.

Two guys fold, leaving six players to bet. Both The Guest and Steady Eddie produce a flush. Lucky shows everyone his Ace-high full house. And his Ace of Spades in the hole. The other players are green with envy. All of them to the last one expected to split the proceeds. Now Lucky turns out to be the sole winner.

A couple more hands are dealt but it is apparent the players don't have their hearts in it anymore. An attempt is made to play a pot-building hand but The Host quickly wins it before the chips can accumulate. The game breaks up an hour late with Steady Eddie's brother failing to interest anyone in a showdown hand, a quick, winner-take-all session to get rid of that empty feeling caused by Lucky's luck. Frustrated, the players depart within five minutes, headed for their sleeping households.

Christmas ideas of other lands

This Christmas, try something new. Break away from the American Christmas turkey and pie holiday and use the traditions of other countries for celebration ideas.

For tree trimming and party ideas, pick out decorations and foods popular in one particular country. Take Mexico, for example. Serve paella, a rice and seafood dish and sangria, a wine and fruit mixture.

For the children, hang a pinata, colorful paper mache animal stuffed with toys and candies. At midnight the children gather round and break the pinata with sticks to collect the prizes.

Trim the tree in colorful Mexican ornaments. Dolls, stars, and even jewelry, look bright and happy for the holidays.

Or pick a country like Japan, and serve tempura. How about Greece, or Poland? A quick trip to the library for research will help set the stage for your international atmosphere.

This system helps everyone, especially the children, learn about and understand the customs of others throughout the world, and what better way to convey the message of brotherhood and goodwill?

Try to remember . . .

the joy and fun of Christmases gone by

by LINDA FISCHER

Christmas is a time of hectic activities.

Mothers bake cookies, plan time for all the school parties, decorate the office, and try to remember what it was exactly Uncle George wanted for Christmas this year.

Fathers try to find all the boxes of decorations in the attic or crawlspace, and struggle once again to get the tree in the stand straight.

Children compose long lists for Santa Claus, scouring the catalogs and commercials for those toys and games they "just have to have."

Stores hire extra clerks to handle those customers who put off shopping as long as possible. Churches schedule special services to celebrate the birth of a Child.

And Christmas is a time for remembering . . . for recalling those Christmases past that stick in your mind for some reason.

That's what Kay did the other day. She turned off the television and thought of Christmases past.

How proud a little girl is of her first cowgirl outfit, complete with fringed vest, skirt and boots. That Christmas Kay was queen of the west.

Kay did some goofy things at Christmas — like playfully raining all the wrappings from packages on her mother as she sat on the couch, then taking her picture. Mother smiled through the mess and you knew she wasn't really mad.

All girls dream about their wedding day, and Kay wanted hers to be on Christmas Eve. Candlelight bathed the church in soft light as bridesmaids in green and red velvet dresses walked down the aisle. Naturally, a light snow falling outside capped her beautiful ceremony in her dreams.

For a parochial school student, Christmas meant the annual church program. Through the fourth grade, Kay only spoke and sang as part of her class.

But then, in the fifth grade, the solo opportunity came and Kay proudly recited her few verses from the Christmas story in Luke, chapter 2. She had a favorite song from those programs; called "Lo, in a Humble Manger," its melody still sings with thoughts of Christmas.

Not all Christmases are happy ones. Kay remembered the one in high school a month after her mother died. Now, with both parents gone, she was alone. But friends had stepped in and lent her the strength to forge ahead. It had been a Christmas of giving.

A spur-of-the-moment auto ride highlighted one of Kay's Christmases. She and her foster family had gone to church Christmas Eve, and walked out to discover a layer of snow on the ground. It was the perfect touch for the gift exchange at home later. Then they decided to go for a ride, so everyone piled into the car — dressed in pajamas, long robes and heavy coats!

In college, Christmas brought a change of pace for Kay. The food service attempted some unusual meals to bring a holiday flare to the fare. But it was difficult to study for finals while staring at the lights on the tiny tree in her room as they blinked off, on, off, on, off, on . . .

Trying to create an interesting decoration for her door that fit the theme for the decorating contest was a challenge. A last-minute brainstorm created "Little Boy Blue" with Christmas presents in his dreams.

Going home from college for the holidays meant another battle with the Christmas candy for Kay and her foster mother. They had little trouble with the cookies and other usual tidbits, but oh, that divinity! They had been warned conditions must be just right for divinity to turn out, so of course the first batches became very gooey messes!

One vacation was especially important for Kay. She brought a visitor home — someone she wanted her foster parents to really like (just in case the poor guy proposed). Well, they did, and he did, and two Christmases later, Kay was tree shopping with her husband.

They learned a valuable lesson that year — do not purchase a tree at night. The only way to get their specimen straight in the holder was to put three inches of books under one leg!

There seemed to be a perpetual discussion on whether Kay and Chuck would get another live tree or an artificial one. Kay and the live tree always won — and she always got to decorate it, too. Chuck passed on that chore.

But Kay enjoyed pulling out the decorations and lights: the glittery crabapple and crushed velvet candy cane saved from her early Christmases with her parents; the display of candles collected by her mother and enlarged over the years by Kay; and the new ornaments, two for each year of her marriage. Someday, maybe the whole tree would be done with those special ornaments.

Christmas is a time for giving, especially of yourself to others. Kay thought of the various projects for her sorority that made someone else's Christmas a little happier.

There was a future in Kay's Christmas thoughts, too — the time when she and Chuck would observe their children's first Christmases. Then they could laugh at a child's antics and worry about him pulling ornaments off the tree.

Kay's attention came back to the present, and she wondered what activities she would remember from Christmas 1974.

And she smiled. "Peace and love to all," she wished.

How to choose toys for children

Selecting gifts for children at Christmas is often the most fun — and most frustrating — part of the season's buying trips.

What exactly do you get for a six-month-old or a nine-year-old? What are their interests at that particular age?

The American Toy Institute has published a booklet called "Choosing Toys for Children of All Ages" in which they offer suggestions on the types of toys suitable for children of different ages.

Here are their comments.

Babies Under 18 Months

The baby needs brightly colored, lightweight toys of varied textures. They should be washable, too big for him to swallow, and free of rough edges or sharp corners.

Baby's first toy might be the colorful bird or fish mobiles attached firmly to his crib so he can "play" with his eyes. Soon, when he can hold things, it's time for the first rattles, the first rubber squeak-toys, and the gym exercisers that stretch across a crib.

Soft dolls and animals are fun to feel, and disks or strings of large beads are also welcome. In his bath, the floating toys will keep baby happy.

A sitting-up baby loves blocks to bang and handle — especially if they rattle or have pictures on them. Cups or boxes that nest together also intrigue him.

And he's now ready for the first simple picture books, ones that show familiar objects and can't be torn.

When baby creeps and crawls, it's time for push-and-pull toys, musical or chime toys, animals on wheels, and small wagons. Baby's hands are now able to cope with simple take-apart-and-put-together toys.

He can hammer pegs into holes (pounding boards) and slip rings onto stakes. Blocks to handle, carry around, and stack provide for an absorbing activity.

Toddlers 18 Months to 3 Years

The running-around toddler needs things to ride and climb on — a low tricycle or small, scoot-along ridem, a wagon to get into, trucks and animals to straddle, a hobby horse, a low-to-the-ground backyard gym and seesaw.

Balls and inflatable toys are good gift choices, along with wading pools and a climb-in sandbox full of pails, shovels and other sand toys.

Imitating grown-up activity offers fun and learning. A tea party like Mommy's calls for dolls, tea sets, pots and pans, play table and chairs, and maybe simple dress-up clothes.

For playing homemaker, there's child-scale kitchen equipment; stuffed animals and dolls can be part of this "let's pretend" setting.

Hands are more skillful now, though toys for this age group should be simple and not require too much fine muscle coordination. Easy puzzles, more advanced put-together toys like color cones, and shape-perception toys (square peg in square hole, etc.) help satisfy the manipulative urge.

Clay and modeling dough to poke, pat and roll caters both to the yen to manipulate things and the desire to make things. And it's not too soon for finger-paints and the first easy-to-grasp crayons.

Playing simple musical instruments, from toy piano to tambourines, is lots of fun for 2-3-year-olds. The older youngsters in this age group enjoy and can manage to operate simple phonographs.

The young builder needs more blocks of different sizes and shapes at this stage, and he will use them in many different ways, even trying to build "real" houses and towns. For outdoor play, big hollow blocks can be made into wonderful play houses and make-believe castles.

Toy safety tips

The following practical suggestions to help insure your children's safety were developed by three Florida mothers through the Toy Manufacturers of America, Inc.

1. Think before you buy. Don't impulse buy.
2. Read and keep informed of developments in toy safety.
3. Teach your child proper safe play with toys. Set good examples.
4. Supervise toy play according to the situation. Consider the child's age, personality, surroundings and experience.
5. Check the broken toys. Repair or discard them.
6. Protect the young child from the potentially dangerous toys of the older child.

Young Children 3 to 6 Years

Children like to act out grown-up roles like those of cowboys, firemen, policemen, doctors and nurses, so the costumes and equipment for the role-playing are important. So, too, are the dolls and puppets that can represent people in this kind of play.

A play store, make-believe money, pretend food, a cash register and telephone are also welcome. Imagination comes into play, too, with figure-and-scene sets — villages, forts, circuses, farms, service stations, and so on.

The larger backyard gym set provides for large-muscle activity and will keep little friends happy when they come to play.

Young homemakers want toys resembling Mommy's "grown-up" appliances, such as a vacuum cleaner or washing machine. Also called for are larged doll furniture and the equipment needed for bathing, feeding and dressing dolls.

Transportation is fascinating. Cars, trains, boats, planes, tractors and all kinds of roadwork and construction trucks find favor.

Wheel toys are needed to explore the neighborhood. Bigger tricycles and ridems are suitable now, as well as the first two-wheeler with training wheels.

For rainy-day sessions, have coloring books, paint sets, crayons, drawing boards and wooden puzzles on hand. Reading picture books and story books and listening to records continue to be fun, too.

School Children 6 to 9 Years

Boys and girls usually begin to demonstrate different play interests now, but they still play together much of the time, notably at the game table, because 6-to-9'ers are fascinated by contests of chance and skill.

Dolls of all kinds, but especially the miniatures with their fashion wear and career-oriented wardrobes, come into play at this time. Also much in demand are doll houses with scale furniture, and paper dolls to be "dressed."

Auto race layouts and electric trains have great appeal for boys at this age. They also like science sets and work benches with real tools (fine with adult supervision) and construction sets. Model-building interest starts about now and often continues into the teens.

Although interest in group play is fast becoming evident, children in this age category also play well by themselves. They can now read the many books written especially for them.

Paints, crayons, colored pencils, and clay are still good selections, and more complex puzzles can be introduced. Toy typewriters, printing outfits, handicraft sets and make-it-yourself kits are very popular.

The day of sports and active games are here. Boys go in heavily for baseball, football, basketball and hockey. Girls are fond of jump rope and hopscotch.

Boys and girls alike love water sports sports, with snorkels and fins now added to such other water toys as large beachballs and swim rings. Skates, sleds, and bigger bikes are fine now, too.

'Grown-Up' Children 9 to 12 Years

Serious attention to hobbies begins around this time. Boys and girls become involved in crafts projects of various kinds and often begin building collections of stamps, coins, rocks, and so on. There's also great interest in chemistry sets, microscopes, telescopes and other science-related products.

The desire for active physical play, which has most likely been evident since the toddler age, now finds its expression in team play. Baseball, football, basketball, ice-skate and roller-skate hockey, soccer and lacrosse gets lots of play. And it's at this age that boys and girls frequently acquire basic skills in golf and tennis.

Billiards, table tennis, archery and darts (the last two under adult supervision, of course) and similar games attract many 9-12-year-olds. Board games, in particular those requiring strategy decisions and involving a knowledge of school subjects, are also appropriate.

Dramatic play often holds great appeal for boys and girls in this age group. They like to arrange "stage sets" and follow through on all the production details, from props and costumes to the printing of programs. The performances may employ puppets, marionettes, or the children themselves as actors.

Painting, sculpting, working with ceramics, playing musical instruments, and reading a wide range of books are other activities enjoyed by these older children.

Brilliant diamonds punctuate the jet-black dial. Time told in a dramatic statement by Longines. His watch in contemporary styling. Hers, shaped in the fashionable muted ovai. Both in 10K gold-filled cases.

This beautiful pair is just one from a large collection of Hollands' fine Longine watches.

Give human interest gifts

Christmas is, no doubt, the happiest holiday of the year; especially for those no longer suffering their pre-holiday headaches.

Deciding what to get for him or her, whether family, friends, children, or parents or grandparents, makes candidates for sleepless nights. It's not only a question of budget, but equally nerve wracking is searching for something different; a gift that says you gave some thought to its selection.

One type of gift can make pre-holiday shopping interesting and enjoyable. It is choosing the gift of a do-it-yourself hobby. But you must be warned that there is such an interesting variety available, wherever hobbies are sold, the chances are that you will also be discovering one to do yourself.

There are hobbies to fit easily into any budget, from stocking fillers to the most extravagant gift; and to appeal to most everyone from home decorators to collectors; from those touched by nostalgia or caught up in technology.

There are plastic and wood hobby kits of authentic scale models that are a miniature museum of transportation: cars, ships, planes, and space vehicles to delight collectors. And for those who enjoy the outdoors, there are remote control airplanes and ships, from sleek model yachts to aircraft carriers.

There are model railroads from those small enough to require an entire living room. There are craft kits in abundance to make lovely home decorations, smart dress accessories and jewelry. The choice is limitless.

When you gaily wrap the hobby you select, its recipient will discover in it much more than the gift itself. Everyone will find the creative satisfaction of doing: for the young there is education; to the work-oriented business man or woman or the harassed mother, there is relaxation; an effective antidote for the boredom of day-to-day routine living.

Doing needlework; art; painting, even by the numbers; assembling a scale model; stamp collecting; making decorative candles; doing macrame; or any craft or other hobby that requires the use of both hands and mind is worthwhile with long-lasting benefits.

And don't be concerned if you think that the person on your list who should smile more often doesn't have the skill to do a hobby. Just as there are hobbies for the most sophisticated artisans, there are those for people who believe they are all thumbs. And the warmest thanks you can possibly receive will be their smiles of pride when he or she shows you the completed hobby you gave them and boasts about how they did it.

If you would like extra pleasure out of giving a hobby, think about making it yourself. Not only is it thrifty and enjoyable to do, but just imagine the thanks you'll receive when they open your gift and discover that you thought enough about them to actually make it yourself.

Coddle feet while shopping

NEW YORK (UPI) — Be kind to your feet while doing your Christmas shopping.

The American Podiatry Association, spokesman for the nation's foot specialists, says aching feet problems reach epidemic proportions during the holiday season.

The principal causes are extended shopping sprees in crowded stores, and all the other things that must be done lickety-split.

As a result, Americans out helping Santa are on their feet longer than at any other time of the year.

These holiday foot problems can be lessened, provided a few precautions are taken. Podiatrists advise shoppers to keep feet warm and dry.

This is especially important for older persons and for shoppers in extremely cold or damp climates. If feet do become wet, shoes and hose ought to be changed as soon as possible.

Shoppers who perspire freely must take extra care about foot hygiene. This includes bathing the feet daily and applying a foot powder. Such a routine will help make the feet more comfortable and will also fight other complications such as fungal infections.

Other tips from the foot specialists:

Wear hose or socks at all times while shopping to absorb normal perspiration and to prevent chafing and blisters.

Women should shun dress shoes in favor of low-heeled pumps, especially for shopping trips of several hours.

Waiting in line is a main cause of foot fatigue. It's a good idea to shift your weight from one foot to another, or take a few steps to the side of the line. This promotes circulation and relieves foot strain.

Kids can make pottery

Expanding its popular "Potterycraft" line, the Gilbert subsidiary of Gabriel Industries, Inc. has introduced two exciting new sets - the "Electric Potter's Wheel" and "Potter's Kickwheel Workshop" — it was announced by Morton J. Levy, Executive Vice President.

A variable-speed model, the Gilbert "Potterycraft Electric Potter's Wheel" features a UL lised 120 volt postive-drive motor and all the materials required for hand-thrown ceramics. These include three pounds of airdry potter's clay requiring no baking or firing, five non-toxic acrylic paints and glaze, UL listed table-top wheel, two double-end shaping tools, artist's brush, potter's sponge and detailed instruction and design ideas.

Its low profile bench-top design allows easy clay handling, and the wide stable base limits lateral wheel movement. In addition, the variable-speed drive enables the wheel to run faster for throwing and slower for decorating.

The Gilbert "Potterycraft Potter's Kickwheel Workshop" provides a full range of pottery-making equipment and materials, and is ideally suited to the more advanced hobbyist.

Heater makes timely gift

The personal heater now joins the radio and TV as an item that can be easily carried and used conveniently anywhere — and one that will easily fit under the Christmas tree!

Providing instant heat in the home, office or while traveling, the new Intermatic Heat Wave weighs little more than four pounds. The size of a small toaster, it can be picked up in one hand for use in a bedroom, dressing room, work area, under an office desk, in the student dormitory, in a camper, etc.

Its makers say it produces as much heat as units twice or more its size by passing a high velocity air stream over its heating elements. Despite its power the heater always remains cool to touch and the heating coils never become red hot. Molded of high impact, fire-resistant plastic and available in modern yellow, brown and orange colors, the appliance is a versatile, compact and contemporary-styled unit.

Made by Intermatic, Inc., Spring Grove, Ill.

Listed by Underwriters Laboratories, the heater has a thermostat control to maintain desired temperature. The unit also automatically shuts off before overheating if air movement is blocked, thanks to a temperature limiting switch. Operating on 120 volts, it is designed with a powerful squirrel cage blower and produces up to 5120 BTU's of instant heat.

SMART SANTA'S helpers know that girls like to work with wood, too. Skil-Craft's Handy Andy Carpenter's Tools that really work provide an excellent beginning for children of all ages . . . regardless of sex.

Wig makes 'natural' gift

Stumped about what to give that special woman for the holidays? Why not select something she will appreciate and wear all year long — a wig? With the frantic round of parties and family gatherings so near, what could be more welcomed than the instant glamour of a natural-looking wig?

Now better than ever, wigs come in beautiful colors and styles that are superb. The blending is excellent, too, eliminating that old tired wiggy look. Elura wigs contain a fine mixture of at least five to seven colors that create the appearance of natural healthy hair. They're made of Monsanto modacrylic fiber that won't frizz or lose its curl.

Styles for the holidays run the gamut from softly fluffed versions skimming the ear to classic pageboys cut at the chin or shoulder. There are also long cascades of soft waves resembling a luxurious mane of hair.

This dependable fashion accessory will be a most welcomed gift. Why not send a wig gift certificate today?

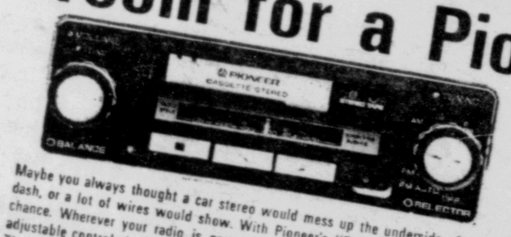
If you have room in your dash for an ordinary radio, you have room for a Pioneer stereo



Maybe you always thought a car stereo would mess up the underside of your dash, or a lot of wires would show. With Pioneer's KP-4000 & TP-7000, no chance. Wherever your radio is now, we can install these units, both have adjustable control shafts so they will fit exactly. No exceptions.
The KP-4000 plays stereo cassettes, FM stereo and AM. (It's a complete in-dash cassette system that features fast forward, rewind, and automatic stop and eject.
The TP-7000 plays 8-track stereo, FM stereo and AM. Its pushbutton tuning allows for easy selection of your favorite AM or FM stereo station.
Both units have more power than any radio: 7.6 watts R.M.S., 15 watts peak power.

Vacation nice present

You've earned it . . . you deserve it and it makes a very fine Christmas present — family vacation. There's good logic behind a family vacation as a Christmas present.

It's something everyone can enjoy, there's no worry about exchanging it for the right size and it's very much in style.

On the more serious side, chances are the children are on vacation from school, the older ones might be home from college and the entire family is together — an opportune time to vacation.

If you don't want to be on the road for the holiday itself there is always the week between Christmas and New Years.

The vacation should be viewed as a gift thought from the family to the family and that means that everyone should play a role in the plannings as well as the financing.

A COLORFUL, STYLISH 10-20 cup "mid-range" Party Perk is available from The West Bend Company in a choice of mandarin red, harvest gold and lime green colors with floral decorative motif. It combines completely automatic time and temperature controls and durable, light-weight polypropylene construction.

Stretch budget, use layaway plan

The gift-giver wants to show his affection by buying a big present, but it means stretching the budget. There's an answer to this common Christmas gift purchasing problem — it's the layway plan.

Timing is important to Christmas gift buying if the consumer is contemplating a purchase on the layaway plan.

It is a good idea to shop early. Early fall is good for gift hunting with the layaway in mind.

The early shopper gets the best selection. Merchandise is in stock and the store will lay away the gifts until the appropriate time. Check at the local store about credit terms and layaway plans.

Large appliances are not the only products you can put on the layaway plan. Ask salespeople at the store about layway plans for stereos, televisions, etc.

Or start your own layaway plan; buy early and save the gifts until Christmas.

Card anniversary

FASHION PLATES — Thirteen Limoges earthenware and fine china wall clocks from Bulova (six are shown here) tell time beautifully — and with an historical accent. Each plate shape — scalloped, fluted or plain — is handcrafted by the famed artisans of Limoges, France, in a process that was developed centuries ago. Multicolored flowers pattern the gleaming white faces of these charming timepieces, ebony numerals and sculptured hands measure time, and a hard enamel glaze imparts exceptional strength. A single flashlight battery keeps each clock's transistorized movement operating for over a year.

Books aren't just for bookworms

It is easy to choose a gift for that special someone when you select books. Books Unlimited in Evergreen Shopping Center, downtown Arlington Heights, has books for every age and interest in a wide price range.

A new local best seller is "Morris," an intimate cat biography written by Chicago Tribune columnist Mary Daniels. The rats-to-riches story tells the truth about Morris's discovery — only 20 minutes before he was to be put into his next life at the Hinsdale Humane Society.

Another popular book is "Ah-One, Ah-Two!" in which Lawrence Welk gives behind-the-scenes vignettes of life with his musical family on the road from Hawaii to New Jersey. The book has many photographs of the Welk entourage.

People of all ages seem interested in the newly-released "Bermuda Triangle," says Jim Coyne of Books Unlimited. The book describes the bizarre and continuing disappearances of planes and ships in a triangular area in the western Atlantic. Author Charles Berlitz proposes intriguing theories about strange forces which may be at work.

One book of regional interest is "Land of the Inland Seas," a lavishly illustrated history and story of the historic and beautiful Great Lakes Country — from the Western tip of Lake Superior eastward some 800 miles to headwaters of St. Lawrence River at the northeast end of Lake Ontario.

As the country's bicentennial draws closer, interest in Americana continues to grow. Alistair Cooke's "America" and "The Best of Life" remain popular. New releases include Rand McNally's "Atlas of the American Revolution" and "200 Years," a bicentennial illustrated history of the United States by U.S. News and World Report. "200 Years" comes in two volumes, slipcased.

Gift books for nature lovers include "Foliage House Plants" and "Flowering House Plants" in the Time-Life series, "House Plants for the Purple Thumb," and "10,000 Garden Questions." "Birds in the Garden and How t Attract Them" by Margaret McKinney and a "World Atlas of Birds" with 500 species portrayed in natural habitats and full color paintings will bring year-long enjoyment.

Choices for the home library might include "Writer's Market 75," "Reader's Digest Complete Do-It-Yourself Manual," "Annotated Sherlock Holmes," and the "Astrologer's Handbook."

Antique buffs will enjoy the helpful "Furniture Doctor" by George Grotz and the beautifully illustrated "A Window on Williamsburg."

Inspirational books include Catherine Marshall's newest, "Something More," and "Tapestries of Life," an anthology of the world's great writers, scholars, poets and statesmen.

Sports and game books reflect a variety of reader interest. "No Cheering in the Press Box" is a collection of recollections by 18 sportswriters from the Golden Years, 1920-1940. It is edited by Jerome Holtzman, columnist and senior baseball writer for the Chicago Sun-Times.

"Buckeye" is a study of Coach Woody Hayes and the Ohio State football machine and how it works. "Babe," written by Robert W. Creamer, senior editor of Sports illustrated, offers the first full in-depth adult biography about Babe Ruth.

"Chilton's Auto Repair Manual 1975" or "Motor Auto Repair Manual 1975" make good gifts for do-it-yourselfers.

Recent biographies include "James Dean the Mutant King," "Carrying the Fire, an Astronaut's Journeys" by Michael Collins, and an autobiography by Peter Revson, "Speed with Style."

New fiction choices are "Something Happened," Joseph Heller's first novel since "Catch 22," and "Rhinemann Exchange" by Robert Ludlum. Taylor Caldwell's new novel, "Glory and the Lightning," is set in ancient Persia and Greece, but involves timeless conflicts of all women.

Books on art and photography include the "Unknown Leonardo" which includes over 800 illustrations; "Ansel Adams: Images 1923-74," selections of the finest work of a great photographer, and "The Amateur Photographer's Handbook," the standard reference updated to give latest information on techniques, materials and equipment.

New releases in cookbooks include the basic "Family Circle Cookbook" and "Hows and Whys of French Cooking" by Alma Lach, former food editor of the Chicago Sun-Times for many years. She gives a step-by-step guide to the art of French cooking, designed especially for the American cook.

All-time favorites are "The Joy of Cooking," "The Good Housekeeping Cookcook," and "The Treasury of Great Recipes" by Vincent Price.

Books Unlimited features a very large section for young readers. "Cricket's Choice," edited by Clifton Fadiman, is a new book which includes stories, peoms and art from Cricket, a magazine for children,and grown-ups who are still children at heart.

"The Boy Who Sailed Around the World Alone" by Robin Graham is the basis for the new motion picture, "The Dove" produced by Gregory Peck.

Always good for children are "The Little Engine That Could," the Winnie-the-Pooh series and a variety of sports, mystery and science books.

A gift catalog of over 175 book selections is available at Books Unlimited. The store provides complimentary gift wrap and will mail books anywhere.

BATTERIES, flashlights and blank audio tapes are useful as stocking stuffers.

Jet-propelled hockey game

Now there's a new action game to delight the entire family. It's called Hurricane Hockey from Ideal Toy Corporation. In this home adaptation of a popular "penny arcade" game, the puck "flies" on a cushion of air as it is jet-propelled by a player on each side of the table.

The entire playing surface of the game is honeycombed with more than 12,000 tiny air holes that create the cushion of air. A powerful motor forces a jet stream up through the holes causing the puck to skate across the surface with dazzling speed.

Deck halls, trim trees minus mess

Decking the halls for the holidays is a lot of work — but it can also be fun if the entire family joins in. Come time to "de-deck," however, Mom might find that family helpers — and her holiday spirit — have vanished.

The Eureka Home Care Institute has compiled a list of helpful tips for putting up and taking down holiday decorations.

Do all basic cleaning — wash windows and walls, clean carpeting — before you begin to decorate.

Keep your vacuum cleaner and its attachments handy at all times — you'll be surprised what a great help-mate it is. Make sure your cleaner is operating at peak efficiency: replace worn bristles; check hose and wands for clogs; cord and plug for safety.

Once you've found the perfect tree, make sure you don't leave a trail of needles, dirt and small pieces of bark as you carry it into the house. Gently go over the tree with the dusting brush attachment of your vacuum. The same treatment will keep dust and last year's flocking from shedding on your carpet when you unpack an artificial tree.

Avoid carrying dust to your living room by going over decorations with the dusting brush attachment as you bring them out of storage.

Use the upholstery tool to revitalize felt Christmas stockings and tree skirts. Steam out folds and gently vacuum to raise nap.

Choosing the best location for your tree sometimes means reorganizing your living room. If carpet dents appear where heavy furniture once stood, remove them by holding a steam iron several inches above dents for one minute. Then, vacuum using several slow forward and backward strokes to raise nap.

Be sure to keep plenty of water in the stand to prolong the life of the tree, but protect your carpet or floor's finish by spreading a large piece of plastic under the tree stand.

Make certain windows are sparkling clean before decorating with frosty stencils, wreaths or lights. Before washing, remove dust from corners by vacuuming the entire window area with the crevice tool attachment. If stenciling sheds, remove artificial snow from window sills with your vacuum's dusting brush.

To help you avoid post-holiday cleaning frustrations when removing decorations, The Eureka Home Care Institute suggests the following:

Remove all decorations, including tree ornaments. Vacuum them with the dusting brush attachment and store them in dust-proof containers. Then they'll be ready for next year's decorating.

Vacuum the tree — artificial or natural — with the nozzle of the vacuum hose to remove loose particles. This will prepare an artificial tree for storage.

Spread newspapers on the floor and put on protective gloves before you begin to prepare the natural tree for disposal. Cut off branches too wide to fit easily through doorways and put them in a large box. Wrap remaining portion of the tree in a large sheet or plastic covering to prevent leaving a trail of needles as you carry the tree out of the house.

Once the tree is disposed of and decorations are packed away, thoroughly vacuum your carpeting to prevent tinsel or glitter from embedding in the weave where its sharp edges can break carpet fibers.

For more tips on household organization, timesaving cleaning suggestions and creative uses for your vacuum, write for the booklet, "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Your House." Send your address and 10 cents in stamps or coins to the Eureka Home Care Institute, Dept. MSB, 1201 E. Bell St., Bloomington, Ill. 61701.

Crafty ideas entertain kids

Crafty ideas will keep the kids busy weeks before Christmas, leaving you free to prepare for holiday entertaining.

The following ideas are suggested by stylists of Meyercord, the decal company: even the littlest gift-giver can take new texturized, vinyl decorations and press them onto plain-color mugs or glassware for special appeal.

The colorful Tex Decor press-ons come in a variety of holiday designs — elves, angels, holly — that peel right off again. Filled with Christmas candy, the decorated pieces make charming gifts.

Or, enlist the little ones to help decorate the house: let them use the press-ons on windows, glass patio and shower doors, mirrors and even lamps, where the translucent designs will glow with extra brilliance.

A PLASTIC INNER shield that protects the glass vacuum insulated filler against breakage plus high-fashion styling are featured in this versatile and attractive line of Beverage Butler thermos pitchers from Aladdin Industries. With its highly efficient glass vacuum insulated filler, the beverage butler works just like a thermos bottle to keep liquids hot or cold for hours. Because of the tough plastic inner shield, hot or cold drinks can be mixed right inside the pitcher using spoons and other utensils without fear of harming the glass filler. Complementing this practical advantage is sophisticated exterior styling that make the pitchers look at home anywhere.

Create these yummy Yule treats

A twinkie sleigh

Any child will have fun turning 13 twinkies, one doughnut, a can of ready-to-spread frosting, a few colorful sprinkles and a piece of cardboard into a gay little sleigh with Santa in the driver's seat.

The cardboard is cut into a rectangle the length of two twinkies laid end-to-end and one twinkie wide.

Runners are made by arranging four twinkies so that the long edges of the cardboard rest on the twinkies with half the length of the two front runners extending beyond the cardboard.

The sleigh box is shaped by five twinkies. Two are laid end-to-end on each side of the cardboard. The fifth is cut in half with each half forming an end of the sleigh.

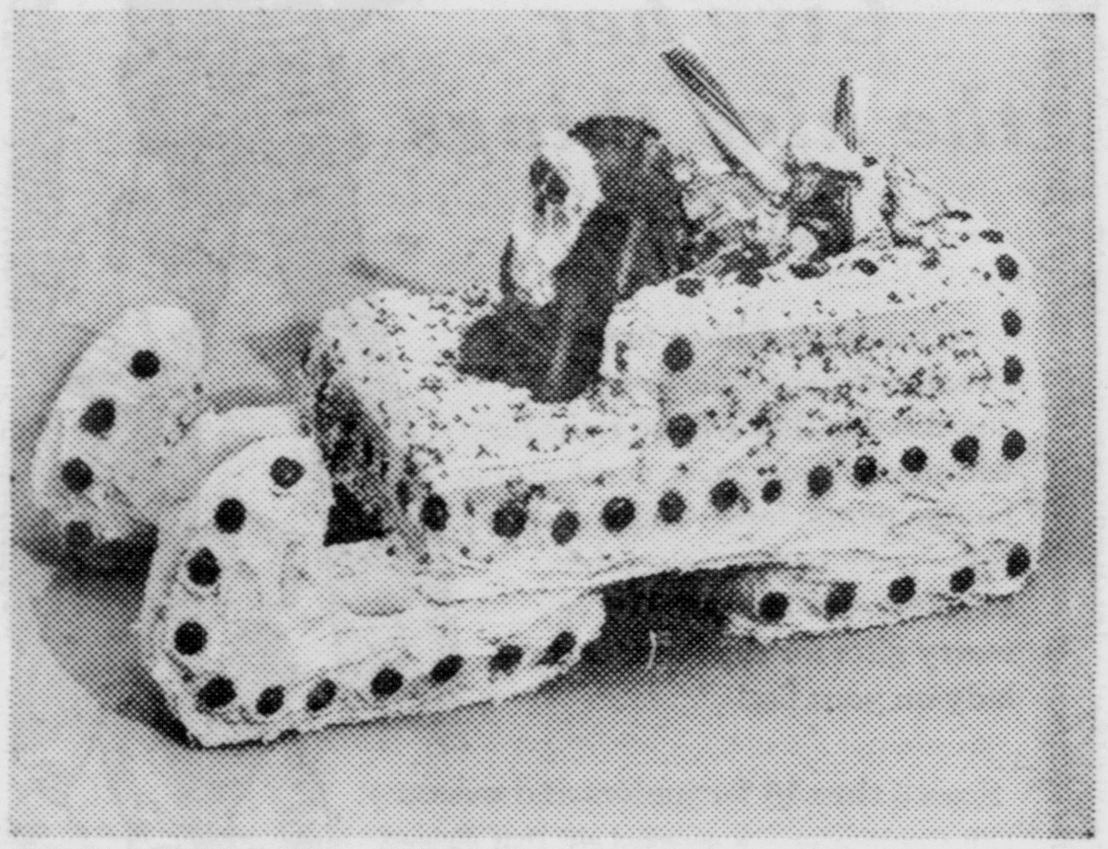
The top of the sleigh-box is three twinkies — one is placed across the back of the sleigh (over a half twinkie and resting on twinkies forming the sides), the remaining two are placed one on each side.

The curl fronting each runner is one-half of a doughnut secured in place with a toothpick. Sleigh and runners are frosted, then sprinkled with red sugar, mixed color nonpareils, chocolate shot, raisins, nuts, fruit loops or whatever colorful edibles are at hand.

Santa is made by cutting the end off a twinkie (to give him a firm base); frosting (a bit heavier for his beard); arranging a race with cinnamon red hots, chocolate chips or raisins; and sprinkling heavily with red sugar for hs famous red suit.

Or, color some of the frosting with food coloring, leaving white frosting for face and beard. A tiny marshmallow or mint makes a tassel on his hat.

Into the sleigh he goes, with a load of candy for good little boys and girls.



IN A TWINK of the eye, twinkies and donuts make Santa and his sleigh so simple that children can pull it off alone.

Easy homemade marshmallows

If you haven't tried making marshmallows, you've a double treat in store. They are very very easy and the flavor is superior to commercial made, so much so that it's a different thing entirely. Incidentally, this is a good confection for a cholesterol watcher, it has no fat or egg yolk.

2½ envelopes (2½ tablespoons) gelatin
1¼ cups sugar
1/3 cup hot water
1 cup light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla

Coating: Equal parts powdered sugar and cornstarch (about 2/3 cup of each). Or 2 cups chopped coconut, toasted, or 2 cups finely chopped nuts, or 2 cups cereal.

Combine gelatin with 1/3 cup cold water in a cup. Stir with finger until well mixed. Set aside for at least 10 minutes. Combine sugar with the 1/3 cup hot water in small saucepan. Bring to boiling, wipe down sides of pan with damp cloth, then cover and boil 3 minutes. Remove from heat, and pour into large bowl of electric mixer. Add white corn syrup, soaked gelatin and the vanilla. Beat at medium speed for 20 minutes, or until it holds a stiff peak when beaters are raised.

While candy is beating, prepare two 8-inch square pans (inch deep), by buttering them very lightly. Pour beaten marshmallow into pans and smooth top with spatula. Let stand 4 hours or overnight in a cool room. Place desired coating in a large shallow baking pan, run knife around edges of marshmallow and turn out into coating. With a long knife, lightly buttered, cut into 1-inch squares, pick pieces apart and coat each piece thoroughly. Let stand about 2 hours to dry out before storing, with wax paper between layers, in tightly covered tins.

THIS JOLLY SNOWMAN of Edam cheese imported from Holland will be at the center of holiday fun. Under his hat is a tangy cheese spread, and the bottom ball of cheese is ideal for cutting into wedges.

An edible snowman

Let a jolly snowman set a mood of gaiety and good eating this holiday season. Just lift off his hat for a tangy cheese spread. For a mellow slice of Edam cheese, cut a wedge from the bottom ball.

Equally attractive as a centerpiece at dinner, on a buffet table or at a coctail party, this easy-to-make snowman is made with two cheery red balls of imported Holland cheese and decorations that are probably around the house.

To form the snowman, place a 1 pound 14 ounce baby Edam cheese on top of a 3 pound 9 ounce ball of Edam cheese. (The snowman can also be made from a 10 ounce baby Gouda placed on top of a baby Edam cheese.)

Cut a circle from the top of the smaller cheese and save the top. To make the dip:

TASTY SNOWMAN

1 (1 lb., 14 oz.) Edam cheese imported from Holland
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 (½ oz) package green onion dip mix
¼ cup finely chopped radishes
1 (3 lb., 9 oz.) Edam cheese imported from Holland

Scoop the cheese out leaving about ¼-inch shell. Crumble or shred the cheese and combine with other ingredients. Scoop dip into the shell, replace top and refrigerate.

To dress the snowman, use toothpicks to attach gumdrop eyes, nose and buttons. Tape two-inch lengths of cord or yarn to top of cheese for hair. Attach a pipe cleaner for the mouth. Braided remnants of yarn or ribbon form the scarf.

To make the top hat, cut a circle two inches in diameter, another circle four inches in diameter and a recetangle seven inches by two inches from construction paper and tape together. Use ribbon to form the hat band.

Scraps of straw or bristles from an old broom can be tied together for a haystack.

Place smaller cheese on top of larger cheese, adjust the neckscarf and refrigerate until 1 hour before serving. To serve surround the snowman with raw vegetables and crackers for the dip. Place a cheese knife at the base for slicing.

YEAR AFTER YEAR AFTER YEAR AFTER

Selective buying adds to gifts

NEW YORK (UPI) — The spirit of Christmas is getting some stiff competition from Scrooge this year as inflation makes shoppers more conscious of value. But selective buying results in Christmas gifts with the added dividend of appreciation.

Original prints, gold and silver coins, commemoratives and wines are among the gifts that may bring investment opportunities to friends and family.

Although many authorities in these fields are reluctant to recommend buying primarily for investment purposes, chances are even a modest gift, purchased with the advice of an expert, can appreciate substantially in the next few years.

In the meantime, the gifts can be lived with and enjoyed, unlike the stock certificate which sits in a drawer.

The original print business is booming as the public becomes better educated about art and increasingly dissatisfied with cheap reproductions. Original prints in limited editions and signed by the artist offer tangible investments to the inflation wary consumer if bought from a reputable dealer.

Circle Gallery, Ltd., a nationwide dealer in original prints by well known artists, sells prints ranging from $40 to $20,000, says Jack Solomon, president. In 1969, the company commissioned Norman Rockwell to make his first lithograph entitled "Spelling Bee," which sold for $200. The current market price for the Rockwell print is $2,000.

"Our clients like prints, many are collectors and it's a place to put their money," says Solomon, "but we're not investment brokers." He says, however, that the investment value of prints often centers into the customer's decision to buy.

According to statistics released by the Original Print Collectors Group, which has some 1,400 members in the United States and abroad, the average price appreciation of artists' prints it offered in 1972 has been 95 per cent in two years. The Group guarantees members it will buy back prints for the original purchase price.

Many investors, stung by losses on Wall Street, have taken refuge in the gold and silver coin market, where valuable gifts await the Christmas shopper.

Lee Fox, director of Perera Fifth Avenue Numismatic Division, says "people can play with coins, enjoy them and still have something of real value." He recommended 19th Century coins and the newer issues, which range anywhere from $20 to $150 apiece.

"Silver dollars, which the government stopped striking in 1935, have both intrinsic and scarcity value," Fox says, "but more people today are inclined toward gold coins because gold is in the headlines." Mexico and Austria are restriking common coins containing roughly an ounce of gold which will retail about ten percentage points above the daily quotations for gold on the foreign exchange marekts, he adds.

Franklin Mint, which manufactures coins and commemoratives, says the majority of its collectors are not motivated by the desire to invest.

"The notion of giving a commemorative plate or bicentennial issue to children or grandchildren for its historical value is more important than the investment appreciation," says David Brown, director of communications.

Nevertheless, Franklin Mint has an enviable investment record in roughly a third of its products. In 1970 Norman Rockwell designed a solid silver Christmas plate for Franklin Mint entitled "Bringing Home the Tree," which sold for $125. The run consisted of 18,321 plates. "The 1970 plate has traded as high as $800," says Brown, "but the price fluctuates."

Wine has captured the imagination of the investment-minded connoisseur who wants to hedge against inflation. "The best time to acquire good wine is when it's at its youngest," according to Alexander McNally, international wine manager of Heublein, Inc. "The price will increase based on maturity and better drinkability."

Heublein, which holds the only wine auction in the Western Hemisphere, sold a record $337,966 in wines at the 1974 event in Chicago.

Jingle Bells

NEW YORK (UPI) — The popular "Jingle Bells," by Bostonian composer James Pierpont, was originally written for local Sunday school entertainment in 1857. Although it was copyrighted as "One Horse Open Sleigh," the song was soon republished under the title we use today.

IF YOU'RE THINKING of adding or replacing furniture in your living room in time for Christmas, you might consider an interesting new pecky elm collection by designer Milo Baughman. As shown, six units are grouped together on a pecky elm base. Middle top unit is a bar or desk top. Chairs are of chrome tubing and leather; cube table in center is sheathed by mirror chrome. Available at The Designer's Shop, Elms Shopping Center, Arlington Heights, with separate units starting at $130.

Babies will love Baby Bean Pod

Babies, six to 24 months, are sure to gobble up Playskool's new Baby Bean Pod. Not literally, of course, but because it's so much fun to play with, fun to have. The beans aren't the eating kind, and they're much too big to swallow.

Easy-to-grasp, Baby Bean Pod is nearly a foot long, and looks like something the Jolly Green Giant might have grown. The pod is shiny bright green flexible vinyl. The three beans it holds are smooth, bright yellow tough plastic.

Baby Bean Pod provides fascination for children who like to make things disappear and reappear and the repeated action of putting things in and taking them out. The beans snap together, they rattle, slip into the pod and pop out again for more fun.

This durable, delightful toy from the company who promises, "Our Toys Make Good Friends," provides a variety of important manipulative action and hours of delicious and safe playtime amusement.

Yarn ornaments breakproof

Deck your tree with balls of a glimmering yarn of Creslan acrylic fiber and nylon which has the right look for a tree — particularly one without lights. And there's nothing for toddlers or pets to break.

TO MAKE THE BALLS: Cut two cardboard circles to desired size of pompon and cut a hole about ¼" in center of each. For balls 1 to 1½ inches in diameter — cut 4 lengths of Glimmer yarn, each 3 yards long. Place circles together and wind yarn through center and over edges. Continue until circles are completely covered and opening is filled in.

Cut yarn between two circles and slip length of yarn between the cardboards winding it very tightly around several times; knot leaving ends long enough to tie to tree. Remove circles. Fluff pompon and trim. (You can work with two colors at a time or you can make designs by sectioning off your circle with different colors. A plastic yarn needle makes the going easier once the hole in center begins to fill up.)

Watch Mom flip her lid

Mom will really flip her lid on Christmas morning when she lifts the lid on her new washer. One 18-pound capacity machine permits complete loading in "one stop" of all the laundry additives needed throughout the wash cycle. It's the General Electric Dispensall system automatic.

She simply selects the desired cycles, speeds and water temperatures, adds the ingredients, then the Dispensall system automatically dilutes and dispenses the pre-measured amounts of pre-wash/soak products, detergent, bleach and fabric softener at the proper time during the wash cycle eliminating the need for her to return to the washer except to unload the clean clothes.

A gift of GE's new Dispensall washer will give Mother more free time for her hobbies or the kids . . . or him!

Time told in luxurious styling. Sleek, stainless steel backed. Designed for today's lifestyle. Tomorrow's too.

Holiday gifts for campers

by WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI(— What do you give a camping family for Christmas?

It all depends on how long the family has been camping.

The serious campers have all the basic equipment they need. They learned long ago not to overload their recreational vehicles with excess baggage. But they can always use expendable items such as paper plates, paper tablecloths, canned delicacies and paper firewood logs.

If you want to be generous, you can give the veteran camper a spare tire but first find out the proper size.

It's another matter with the family which is new to camping. These families have a tendency to overload in the beginning but as time goes by they begin to discard the items which they have not used.

Most campers have the Rand McNally Road Atlas and Campground and Trailer Park Guide. But there are other good books published by Rand McNally, including "Outdoor Recreation Guide" and "Discover Historic America." Subscriptions to camping magazines also make good gifts.

Several manufacturers have introduced AM-FM radios with a wavelength for special weather reports from all parts of the country. All the camper has to do to get a forecast for his region is to press a button. These radios are compact and inexpensive.

Generally, campers operate on a budget and buy inexpensive sleeping equipment. Down filled sleeping bags are a luxury but they will keep the sleeper warm in cold weather. Space heaters make ideal gifts, too, for campers who do not have furnaces in their vehicles.

Beginning campers enjoy the romance and warmth of a campfire but often when they reach the campsites they find the available firewood too wet to ignite. Compacted paper logs, which are available in many supermarkets, can be carried in the camping vehicle or car trunk.

Portable torches are useful items. They have a wick lamp mounted on a pole which can be stuck in the ground. These torches can be ignited with kerosene or special odorless fuel and they are inexpensive.

Hunting knives, barometers and compasses also are inexpensive gifts. A rod and reel is a good gift, too, even though the camper already may have fishing equipment. An extra rod always can be used.

Children in camping families usually carry along a portable cassette tape recorder. Blank tape or pre-recorded rock and roll albums on cassettes will be welcomed. A lightweight, portable televison set will keep the children quiet on rainy days.

Nylon tents are lightweight items which fit nicely into backpacks. They also offer adventure to the youngsters who want to sleep on the ground during warm weather.

Among the more expensive items are the tool kit and the citizens' band radio. Before buying one of these, it is advisable to snoop around and determine whether the camping friends have such equipment.

Games always make good gifts.

Never give a family dangerous items such as fireworks or noisemakers because they are not welcome in campgrounds anywhere.

Longer lasting toys are more fun

Those toys tucked under the Christmas tree probably are subjected to rougher treatment than almost any other Yuletide gift. From the time the youngsters come racing down the stairs on Christmas morning 'til long after the fabled day is but a pleasant memory, toys take a beating.

Since Americans will spend over $4 billion on toys this year, the leading toy manufacturers are doing their utmost to assure that consumers receive good value for their money.

One method of producing better quality toys is to select better quality materials and the nation's toy-makers are constantly upgrading their materials, especially in the area of plastics.

Among the most rugged thermoplastic materials are Tenite cellulosics, supplied by Eastman Chemical Products, Inc. Featuring high impact strength, outstanding clarity and excellent colorability, Tenite cellulosics include acetate, butyrate and propionate.

Fisher-Price Toys, a division of Quaker Oats Company and the world's largest producer of playthings for pre-school children, utilizes Tenite cellulosics for nearly a dozen different toys. The complete housing of the "Roly Poly Chime Ball," for example contains two types of Tenite butyrate — the clear version and a blue-colored variety.

Clarity and toughness were prime requisites in choosing materials for the Chime ball. The dome had to be clear so that the toddlers can view the tiny animal figures activated by rolling the ball. At the same time, the dome had to be especially durable to withstand constant dropping and other rough treatment. Following extensive testing, Fisher-Price determined that Tenite butyrate in clear and color formulations measured up to its stringent specifications.

Today rugged cellulosics can be found in several other best-selling Fisher-Price toys, including the Corn Popper, the Rattle Ball and the Music Box Clock-Radio. These materials offer a unique combination of durability and clarity that stands up exceptionally well to rugged treatment from the most active and determined pre-school tots.

Gift certificates

Most stores offer gift certificates during the Christmas season. A gift certificate can be purchased in just about any amount that fits your budget, and it's perfect for when you're stumped about gift buying.

Help your 'rascblbe' game

"How can I become a better player?" That's the question that millions of Scrabble Crossword Game players have been asking since the game's inception 26 years ago.

Now, answers to this and other questions are available in a new book appropriately titled, Scrabble Players Handbook, designed to help all players improve their game.

The Handbook gives excellent tips on tactics and strategy. Among the topics covered are what to do in various stages of the game, how to use blanks, the use of "S" for defense, passing, how to prevent your opponent from scoring, which tiles allow the greatest flexibility in forming words, the dictionary — which words to know, how to bluff, what to do with a poor rack and when to challenge.

The Scrabble Players Handbook is an invaluable tool to game improvement and makes an excellent gift for devotees of the game or for those just learning how to play.

The price of the Handbook is $7.50 which also includes a year's membership in the Scrabble Crossword Game Players, Inc. and entitles the member to issues of the quarterly Scrabble Players Newspaper.

To receive your Scrabble Players Handbook and membership, just send your name and address along with a check or money order for $7.50 to Scrabble Players, 200 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10010.

Help Santa pack musical presents

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — To tootle a toy flute, beat a drum or strum a play harp is the Christmas day vision of many a child.

Musical gifts in Santa's pack also please adults.

With one in five Americans now playing an instrument, a musical gift can strike a responsive chord with practically everyone on the gift list.

Melodic toots and syncopated twangs resounding from countless households this Christmas will make the holiday very merry, indeed.

A variety of instruments and accessories designed to meet the musical needs of those in every age group, budget and experience level is available in music stores. Some tips from Santa helpers at the American Music Conference:

A piano, still the most played instrument, can be a fruitful gift for the family. The musical investment, which can start at about $700 (unless you can find a bargain in the "used" line), is suitable for both social and solitary playing. Today's new learning techniques make tickling the ivories much more fun and almost as easy as painting by number.

The organ is also an ideal gift for the entire family. With all the new "stops" available, most organs can make just one amateur sound as if an entire combo is performing. While you can invest as much as $4,000 on an electronic organ, there are also new units priced at about the $400 level which can start the family off on a unique musical adventure.

Children too small to play a piano or an organ will enjoy a number of instruments that also help develop musical skills. For youngsters just getting started with music, such easy-to-play instruments as tonettes (under $2) and recorders (from $2 to $12), both of the flute family, can help teach them proper breathing and fingering techniques.

In the percussion family, triangles, bells, cymbals, castanets or tone blocks will help a young beginner express his sense of rhythm. They vary in price from less than $1 to about $20 for a complete set. Other easy-to-play instruments include claves, rhythmic sticks and harmonicas. The harmonica, ideal for all ages, would be a good portable gift for a folk-music buff. It will also enable a beginner to participate in family music sessions.

A melodica might be a useful gift for children in grades one to three. This instrument, a miniature keyboard attached to a mouthpiece, can provide a valuable introduction to the later study of piano or organ.

For someone already taking music lessons, the holiday season might be a good time to replace his present instrument with a new one. Those who play in a band or orchestra might welcome a new trumpet, violin or clarinet.

Among the fretted strings, the versatile guitar is still the most popular. Mandolins and dulcimers have caught the interest of both guitar players and musical beginners. The dulcimer, also a fretted instrument, was popular in Elizabethan times and is in the midst of an American revival. Handmade versions cost as little as $35.

A synthesizer might be a choice gift for the electronically minded. Its plugged-in sound is capable of imitating that of any orchestral instrument as well as creating totally new tones. It looks like a short piano keyboard set below a pilot's control panel and can help its owner develop an understanding of musical form, color, texture and line. A small portable synthesizer, generally pre-set, costs about $500.

Sheet music, which starts at about $2, is another good choice for someone already acquainted with music — from the instrumentalist to the choir singer.

Healthy kitten makes good gift

NEW YORK (UPI) — If Santa's plan is to help someone at your house cozy up to a yule kitten, read on.

Giving a kitten for Christmas is a popular idea. More than 13 million households already keep a cat — or two or three or more.

No one knows for sure but authorities estimate there are up to 30 million cats in America — including the super-independent wild ones which belong to the out of doors.

The cat's a popular pet for many reasons — including its affectionate nature, clean habits, quiet ways and high adaptability.

In this era of turning the thermostat down at night to save energy there's a new reason for a cat.

That is — plunk him on the bed with you at night. A cat's like a hot water bottle through the night, his body heat radiating and turning off some of the chill.

The mixed breed domestic shorthair is the number one cat. Purebreds are the aristocrats of catdom and can be found in many pet shops. The mixed-breed cat can be viewed at animal shelters everywhere.

Sometimes you find them being offered door to door by children distributing a new litter.

If buying a kitten, inspect the place of purchase. A happy, healthy kitten will adapt better to his new home if he comes from a good one.

Look for tidy pens, clean feeding bowls and fresh water. Notice the way the owner or shop attendant handles the animal.

Make sure the kitten has sharp, white teeth — two full rows. That is a sign he is ready to be weaned from his mother.

Notice if the kitten is lively, saucy. This is a sign of good health. Check for a firm, sturdy body, a sleek, shining coat, and clean, clear eyes. Runniness from eyes or nose could indicate infection.

Place the yule cat in a wicker basket for giving. Or — put your kitty in a little house, especially made to give the cat privacy when he wants to get away from the rest of the household.

Most felines like these — but you never know. Cats are so very independent.

Christmas facts from around the world

Yes, there really was a St. Nicholas. He was the beloved Bishop of the Greek Church of Myra, and he lived in Asia Minor during the early part of the 4th century . . .

Under Oliver Cromwell's regime . . . in 1644, the observance of Christmas in England was forbidden by an act of Parliament.

The Pennsylvania Dutch name for Santa Claus is — Pelznickel . . .

There actually is a town of Santa Claus — in Indiana.

The man who set Dec. 25 as the date of Christ's birth was Pope Julius. The time he set it: 340 A.D. . . .

The inhabitants of Alaska carry a star around with them when they go from place to place on Christmas Eve singing carols . . .

Before the 5th Century A.D., there was no general consensus of opinion as to when Christmas should fall on the calendar. Among the dates considered: Jan. 5, March 25 and Dec. 25 . . .

"Xmas" got its origin from "X," an abbreviation of Christ deriving from the Greek letter X (ch) beginning His name . . .

Lights are put in windows on Christmas Eve for a reason. To guide the Christ Child wandering over the world.

In the Philippines, Christmas is known as Santa Nino, and children sing carols and parade through the streets behind a band . . .

The Christmas tree traces its origin to Germany . . .

Christmas Seals originated in Copenhagen, Denmark in 1904. They were the idea of a postal clerk named Holboell, who dreamed them up as a benefit for a children's hospital . . .

Tradition says the first Christmas was celebrated in 98 A.D. . . .

In the Ukraine, singers on Christmas Day go about the villages carrying mangers and singing folksongs.

In Czechoslovakia, fortunes are told after the evening meal Christmas Day by pouring melted lead or wax into water and studying the shapes formed . . .

Poles in Poland don't have their Christmas dinner until the evening star is seen . . .

In the U.S. Eastern South, Christmas Day is often greeted with fire crackers, pistols, cannons, horns and bells . . .

In Belgium young belles still take candles to the well on Christmas midnight to see the faces of their "future husbands" . . .

Mistletoe over the door at Christmas time owes its origin to the Druid priests of ancient England. They used to cut it down and hang it over doors to bring happiness to those passing under . . .

The colors of the Christmas flag are red and green . . .

The lamb is the symbol of Christmas because this animal once covered Him like a canopy when Roman soldiers were searching to kill the Child . . .

France has no Santa Claus — only Pere Noel . . .

In Austria on Christmas, the people bake two big loaves of bread. One typifies the Old Testament; the other, the New Testament . . .

Another name for Christmas in England is "Boxing Day." Came from the custom of Old English servants going around on Dec. 26 with earthen boxes to collect their Christmas gifts in the form of money . . .

In Puerto Rico, children at Christmas time — instead of hanging up stockings — put boxes on the roof . . .

According to legend, the robin's breast is red because the bird once fanned his wings for a long time to warm the Christ Child in the manger.

Houseplants: Something for everyone

There should be an adage, "For the season that glows, give a gift that grows," because plants offer a warmth at Christmas unlike any other gift.

Any environment, be it livingroom or office, bedroom or bath, takes on another dimension with the addition of a houseplant. The drab-sounding name cloaks a sea of individuality as varied as your gift list, not only in terms of personality, but in texture and shape as well. The feathery fronds of a Fern, the ruffled mound of a Piggyback, the emerald ripple of a Peperomia; the spread of a Selloum, the training of a Tradescantia, the stateliness of a Spathiphyllum — indeed, the possibilities are multidimensional!

A houseplant's "hardiness" as well as its physical appearance should be considered when making gift selections. Some plants can withstand more neglect than others, and one plant's "suitability" might be altered depending on whether it was going to a green-thumbed grandmother or a beleaguered bachelor. Aspidistra and Mimosa pudens, known commonly as Cast Iron and Sensitivity, are two examples of plants which bear names characteristic of their constitution. Some plants like to be warm, others cool; some dry, others wet; but most plants thrive in the climate of a terrarium. At Schmitt Nursery in nearby Prospect Heights there is a vast choice of not only the terrarium container's shape and size, but also its contents: a mirrored hexagon of Hoya and Hedera, a candy jar of Cactus and Kalanchoes, a brandy snifter of Saxifraga and Selaginella — their names are as intriguing as their looks.

Faced with such variation it is wise to make plant selections where there is knowledgeable service and, more importantly than ever these days, reasonable prices. Schmitt's offers both. There are hanging baskets of Golden Pothos and Purple Passion, table plants of African violets and Zebras, and floor plants of Palms and Philodendrons. There are Blue Teddy Bears and Pandas, Watch Chains and Chocolate Soldiers; Mother of Pearl and Lipstick, Ribbon and Irish Lace.

For a child, the gift of a plant can open up an awareness of nature that will enrich his life. So this Christmas, for schoolteacher or secretary, electrician or executive, give the gift that purifies the air while it transforms the atmosphere from vague to vibrant — give a houseplant!

Give kids special chair

Dad has his favorite chair. And Mom may lay claim to the sofa.

If the young ones in your house don't have a place to sit they can call their own, Mickey Mouse may have the answer this Christmas.

It's a bean bag chair, a toy, and a flexible companion all rolled into one with Mickey's smiling face and form providing the design.

Because most kids like to follow their folks around and have their own pint-sized chairs available, the bags, designed and manufactured by Babcock Phillips, of Richmond, Va., are light enough to be pulled from room to room.

And since Mom wants something that's practical, the Mickey Mouse bean bags are made of quality vinyl that wipes clean with a damp cloth. The durable bags are also scuff resistant.

One bean bag style, with Mickey's face silk-screened on a black vinyl background, comes with big floppy ears that snap on and off. A mouse pulled by the ear can't be ripped, and each ear could double as a pillow for visiting playmates.

Kids like to play with their furniture, and in contrast to the formal pieces in your house, the bags are ready for just about anything. Filled with thousands of light polystyrene beans, they don't mind being kicked or kissed, flopped on, punched, or pressed into service all day long.

Children will be delighted to see Mickey beckoning from under the tree on Christmas. You'll be furnishing their world and their room with something very special.

THE LION AND THE lamb of the fable are really Hallmark candles, designed to please someone on your gift list. The pair is $4.50 . . . at the Gift Box in Mount Prospect.

Compact gift will make her happy

If she likes to guess what her Christmas gift is, give her these compact clues. "It's small — but not smaller than a bread box, flexible — but strong, opens easily, and needs emptying about once a week."

The gift that matches the clues is General Electric's new Trash Compactor which is smaller in exterior size that other compacting appliances.

The new compactor has a door that can be hinged on either side for versatile location.

It swings open automatically with the touch of your hand or nudge of your knee for easy loading of bottles, cans, boxes or packages to be crushed by 3,100 pounds of compaction force. And it is decoratively flexible with reversible color panels in White, Harvest, Coppertone or Avocado.

Let General Electric's new trash compactor take the guess work out of your Christmas shopping.

A COMPACT ITEM for Christmas shopping lists. General Electric's new Trash Compactor, smaller in exterior size than other compacting appliances, has a door that can be hinged on either side for versatile location.

Jack's . . .FOR EVERY MAN ON YOUR LIST . . .ALMOST

On December 25, 1825, Rip Van Winkle awoke from a twenty years' nap. His wife gave him a nightcap and a pair of pajamas.

On December 25, 68 A.D. Emperor Nero received a book of matches and a fiddle. He was burned — and so was Rome.

On December 25, 1942 General Douglas MacArthur received his 10th pair of Old Glory cuff links. "I shall return them!" he cried.

If only their well-meaning gift-givers had shopped at Jack's . . . then they'd have gotten what they really wanted. Like the snappy, leather-look shirt jacket at right. With flap pockets, epaulettes and snap closures in blue, gold or gray. Sizes 38 to 46. $50.

Cut is what counts

Short and wavy is the look this winter, between ear and chin length, but not everyone can wear this style. For any hairstyle, however, a good cut is the most important factor. With a good cut all that is needed for nice hair is a blowdryer, a brush and an occasional curling iron or electric rollers.

Your hair should fit your lifestyle and complement your clothes. Hair should be soft and natural, simple yet smart. For more formal occasions, accent your appearance with earrings, a necklace or a slight change in make-up.

Strawberry Fields is a unique beauty salon with an accent placed on receiving a quick cut. The stylists all specialize exclusively in scissor cutting and blow drying. They also believe that you should not have to wait hours for your hairdresser so appointments are booked in a manner to avoid jamups.

The decor of the salon is a cheerful red and white. The salon is located in the lower level of Northpoint Shopping Center in Arlington Heights.

Long Grove toy store offers quality, selection

Dolls, trucks, trains and games — they're all part of the magical world of toys that can be found at Franklin and Sons, Purveyors of Fine Toys, located on Long Grove Road in Long Grove.

Franklin and Sons does not carry many of the name brand toys children see advertised on Saturday morning television. Instead, owner Frank Myley looks for some of the less well-known brands that are made better and are better money values. "Parents shouldn't be slaves to Saturday morning T.V. because many of the toys advertised really aren't good toys. Parents should think developmentally when buying toys. Toys should be more than a babysitter — they should help a child learn and think," said Myley.

The store carries a complete line of Vogue dolls which Myley says are an excellent buy because the company has only raised the price of the dolls two per cent over last year.

This year Myley is relying heavily on English toys; a better value because the English inflation rate is even higher than that in the U.S., so consequently Americans get more for their dollar.

One unique doll from England is the Sasha doll. The doll has no facial expression, yet when the head is moved in different positions, her face seems to change, also. According to Myley, the doll is very durable because it operates just like children do. The Sasha doll is priced from $13.95-$18.95.

The store also carries one of the largest selections of Peggy Nisbet costume dolls. There are various historical characters including Henry VIII and his wives. The dolls are handmade and some are even available in limited editions. They range in price from $4.95 to $30.

Myley carries steam engines, complete with real steam, as well as tractors, trucks and trains. Several of the train sets have indoor/outdoor tracks with cars that can actually carry things. Train sets can run from $35 to $250.

Myley says he doesn't notice much "sexism" in toys on the part of the kids — they choose what they like. Sometimes he does see problems when it comes to the attitudes of the parents. Although Myley hasn't noticed too many girls buying trucks, he says boys are now buying male dolls.

The store carries cowboy guns although Myley tries to stock guns that don't look too realistic. "I'd rather have my kids role play with a toy gun than pick up a rock and throw it through a window," Myley said.

The game department in the store carries many of the standard games as well as Japanese slot machines and full size jet hockey tables. Myley also carries Monopoly in five different languages. The streets of Munich are on the German Monopoly board instead of Boardwalk and Park Place, and of course, there is German money.

An English game that has become a big seller is called London Cabbie. The object of the game is to drive a taxi around the streets of London. The winner is the person who accumulates the most tips and fares.

Franklin and Sons is also well known for its selection of doll houses and doll house furniture. The store also carries a wide variety of stuffed animals, including the Steiff animals imported from Germany.

China still popular

Chinaware is an example of man's innate urge to beautify the functional. It is history.

Porcelain craftsmanship originated in the splendid courts of the Orient (hence the name china). Early in the 16th century, Portuguese explorers brought this hard substance home with them — and created a sensation in the western world.

Astonished at this delicate material that could not be scratched by steel and intrigued by its translucent brilliance, the nobility for years looked to the distant Wast for dishware to adorn their own tables and dies to enhance their shields, crests, and coats of arms.

Christmas caroling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Caroling — accompanied by the melodious strains of pianos, organs, flutes and other instruments — is an age-old holiday tradition.

Some observers say the word "carol" may date back to the Greek "Choraules" which involved use of an instrumentalist who played for a circular chorus of dancers and singers.

Others trace the word to early France, where the world "carole" meant a ring dance accompanied by song.

Trains are for girls, too

Last year, when Lionel ran a network television commercial suggesting the purchase of electric trains as a Christmas gift for girls, and then followed up by showing a girl on its catalog cover, the earth shook as another widely held sexist attitude crumbled.

It will be as likely this year that the train set chugging around the base of the Christmas tree will be piloted by a girl as by a boy. With the exception of Caroline Ranald, the eight-year-old train buff whose letter to Lionel resulted in the change of attitude, it can be presumed that most of the girls in the country will be beginners at electric train operation.

Lionel's 1974 line includes 17 complete train sets, several of which are designed to introduce the novices of both sexes to the joys of model railroading, one of the most popular hobbies in the country. Four of the sets are in the miniature HO gauge, which Lionel is introducing for the first time this year. In particular, the five-car Santa Fe set, featuring the red and silver Santa Fe diesel locomotive in precise detail, is directed at beginners.

The easy-to-operate U.S. Industrial Switcher and Cannonball sets are part of Lionel's standard 027 gauge beginner's line. All of Lionel's train sets come complete with locomotive, cars, track and safe, UL-approved transformer.

This year, in a totally new departure for Lionel, the company is introducing a new, pre-school, non-electric toy train called "Happy Huff 'n' Puff." This kid-powered train is developed around a story about how the train got its name. The story is told in a colorful story book inside each train set. This large size engine, its cars and track are molded of Duromite, a special formula plastic that provides extra strength, durability and a wood appearance. It is easy to handle and runs exceptionally well on or off the tracks. "Happy Huff 'n' Puff" is recommended for young train buffs (of both sexes) ages two to six.

For the many thousands of youngsters of all ages who are well along in model train collecting, Lionel is offering an enormous variety of rolling stock and accessories to turn the most simple layout into the most sophisticated and realistic installation.

The United States bicentennial celebration is being acknowledged with the introduction of the "Spirit of '76" commemorative series of cars. These cars represent the original states admitted to the Union. Three cars are now available, representing Delaware, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, the first three states. By December, cars representing Connecticut, Maryland, Georgia and Massachusetts will also be available. The cars are decorated with the original American flag, the state flags, state motto, flower and tree, as well as information regarding the state's entry into the Union.

As far as Lionel's non-sexist advertising is concerned, it has resulted in a deluge of letters of praise for the company. One man from the midwest, a father of two girls and no boys exulted, "Finally, I now have an excuse to buy the electric trains I've been wanting for years."

The brilliant diamond at 12 o'clock. The jet-black dial. Time divided into 4 quadrants. And the fully jeweled Wittnauer movement, a perfect example of Swiss precision. Mark time dramatically and with unfailing accuracy in this elegant matching pair.

New twist for old game

The game of pick-up sticks is as old as the hills — but Steven has given it a new feature which makes the game so safe it would satisfy a 'Naderite.'

New Ball End "Pic up Stix." It's the same great game — with safe ball ends instead of yesterday's pointed sticks. And the ball ends give the play action real pizzaz. The sticks pivot and swipe and roll with a flair that stymies even the most accomplished of players.

Steven's "Pic up Stic." Remember the name . . . it's a great safe game.

Don't spoil turkey

NEW YORK (UPI) — Don't spoil your holidays by using the overnight method of roasting turkey. You'll risk food poisoning.

When a bird is cooked one hour or longer at 450 to 500 degrees, then left overnight in a closed oven with heat off, the temperature drops eventually to a level that encourages bacterial development which can cause food poisoning.

Electronic gifts top Santa's list

Santa, the world's first space traveler, has turned to toys spawned by the space age.

Many of the Christmas gifts this year will be of an electronic nature, the heart of which are miniaturized circuits resulting from equipment originally designed for space rockets that have sent men to the moon.

Included on his list of gifts are color TV sets, car stereo tape players, electronic calculators, stereophones, radios and stereo amplifers.

Santa, who is ever sensitive to current trends, has stocked up on the kind of gifts that are helping Americans enjoy a better life today. One of the more popular items that will be exchanged among friends this year, Santa predicts, will be the inexpensive miniature electronic "brains" that help the average man solve such mundane chores as figuring household budgets, checking monthly bills and balancing the checkbook.

Of course teachrs may also use the units to check homework and prepare assignments for students. And best of all, at income tax time these electronic calculators also help speed the taxpayer through those detailed computations in seconds.

Holiday flower tips

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heed these tips and keep holiday cut flowers fresh, suggests the American Society of Florists:

• Place stems in deep warm water. Pour warm water into the container in which they will be arranged. Cut stem ends diagonally with a sharp knife. Remove all foliage below the water level. Add a commercial flower preservative to the water.

• Poinsettias have a milky substance or juice which should be sealed into the stem by quickly dipping stem ends one to two inches into boiling water.

Let us put some green into your Christmas shopping . . .

with CREDIT RESERVE CHECKING

It happens . . . especially at Christmastime . . . The balance in your checking account isn't sufficient to cover the cost of your Christmas shopping. Where will you get the money?

1. You could apply for a regular loan — if you have the time. Or you could take the easiest, most convenient course of all — and simply write a check for it. With a Credit Reserve Checking account - CRC — you have instant "borrowing power" that lets you write checks for more money than you have in your account. You use your regular personal checks, so no one knows you are borrowing — a feature many users appreciate and you make your purchase just as though you had the money all the time.

2. A credit reserve of from $300 to $3000 can be established dependent upon your income and ability to make repayments.

3. You can borrow as often as you like — up to the limit of your credit reserve. Each time you write a check for more money than you have in your checking account, funds are automatically transferred in multiples of $100 from your Credit Reserve to your checking account. When repayment is made, the line of credit is built back to its original amount and can be used again and again.

Jack Klugman

Brett Somers is married to Jack Klugman, although, they are now separated.

Jack, who has been Oscar Madison for four years on ABC's "The Odd Couple," has won two Emmys for the character he also played on Broadway. He was also the 1974 Golden Globe Award winner, for this role.

Jack's first big role on Broadway was in "Saint Joan" with Kim Stanley. He later appeared with Rod Steiger in the play, "Stevedor." After several years of stock, Jack returned to New York as understudy to Henry Fonda in "Mr. Roberts." He later appeared with Ethel Merman in "Gypsy."

Klugman's movie credits include such films as "Cry Terror," "Twelve Angry Men," "Days of Wine and Roses," "Act One" and "Goodbye Columbus."

I hope you can answer tnis question. I say that "Chariots of the Gods" was on TV, but my aunt says no. She thinks that I was speaking about the previews. Please tell me if I am right or wrong.

D.K.
Arlington Heights

We're sorry to break the news to you, but unfortunately, you are wrong. There was a special on ABC some time ago, narrated by Rod Serling, dealing with the same subject matter called "In Search of Ancient Astronauts." The show dealt with the theories put forth by the author of the book entitled CHARIOTS OF THE GODS. This is probably what you saw.

Yes, Lynne is from Evanston, although she was born in Detroit. She attended Evanston Township High School, the University of Washington and the Pasadena Playhouse before returning to the Windy City where she enrolled at the Goodman Theatre.

While modeling in Chicago, she got an offer to do TV commercials for an airline. While getting national exposure on the airline commercial, she began her stage career in a rock musical entitled "House of Leather."

Lynne made her movie debut in "Scream Blacula" and has guested on some of the top television shows, including "The F.B.I.," "All in the Family" and "Toma."

She now lives in Manhattan Beach, Calif. You can write to her at ABC-TV, 4151 Prospect Avenue., Los Angeles, Calif., 90027.

I would like to know what happened to the new series which was scheduled for the new season based on the TV-movie "Sunshine"?

B.B.
Arlington Heights

The new series, also entitled "Sunshine," will show up on NBC during the second season, which begins in January. The series, based on the made-for-TV-movie, will again star Cliff DeYoung as Sam. The story is based around a young musician trying to bring up a child after her mother died of cancer.

The show was originally scheduled for last September, but because of an FCC ruling on access time, the series was shelved until now.

Could you please tell me where I can write to get tickets for the television show "Tattle Tales"?

G.H.
Arlington Heights

Sure! Write to CBS-TV, Television City, Los Angeles, Calif., 90027.

Did Yvette Mimieux really star in the movie "Time Machine," and was she ever in an early beach-party movie?

M.E.
Arlington Heights

Yvette Mimieux

Yes, Miss Mimieux starred in the "Time Machine" in 1960 and as a matter of fact, it was her movie debut. She later starred in "Where the Boys Are," a beacher. Now the very talented actress has turned to writing. She wrote a made-for-TV movie entitled "The Hit Lady" which aired earlier this year on ABC.
